Senators Want To Bar Expansion Of Gov't 'Hacking'

A bipartisan group of senators introduced a bill Thursday to block a rule change that would expand judges' authority to give the FBI access to private computers, saying the move would permit the government to hack into the devices of law-abiding citizens.

Intercept Targets CFPB, Calling Agency Unconstitutional

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau violates the separation of powers by vesting all of its authority in its director, making its proceedings unconstitutional and unfair, according to Intercept Corp., a payments processor seeking to bar a $12 million administrative proceeding against it.

Star Witness Challenged On Fattah's Link To Loan Scheme

A political consultant and star government witness in the corruption case facing Rep. Chaka Fattah, D-Pa., admitted under cross-examination Thursday to having no records to support his claim that the embattled congressman personally agreed to repay an illegal, $1 million campaign loan.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

How The House GOP Won Its Challenge Against The ACA

The Obama administration suffered a key Affordable Care Act defeat when a D.C. district court enjoined any further reimbursements to health insurers for the ACA's cost-sharing reduction program, with the court noting that the U.S. House of Representatives' complaint was not about how the administration implemented the law, but how the administration funded the law, says Nicole Elliott at Holland & Knight LLP.

The Future Of CFPB Small Business Lending Regulation

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's entry into small business lending regulation will impose additional compliance costs on financial institutions. Its data collection program will equip the bureau with tools to police small business lending for disparate impact discrimination, redlining and credit discrimination in emerging areas, say Michael Gordon and Franca Harris Gutierrez at Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale and Dorr LLP.

Why Cos. Must Pay Attention To Delaware's Blockchain Plan

Delaware corporations, including a majority of the Fortune 500, will soon have the ability to issue shares using the same technology that underlies the virtual currency bitcoin. Blockchain technology can eliminate the complexity, cost and delay prevalent in today's capital markets, but the greatest impediment to its implementation remains a legal one, says Marco Santori, head of the blockchain technology focus team at Pillsbury Winthrop Shaw Pittman LLP.

Virtually All Contractors Subject To New Cybersecurity Rule

The rule issued by the U.S. Department of Defense, NASA and General Services Administration this week expressly lists a set of 15 security controls that most contractors will be expected to implement. While it requires concerted focus on compliance, the rule is likely to be taken as more limited and palatable to defense contractors than the DOD's 10-month-old Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement rule, say attorneys with Arnold & Porter LLP.

TTIP Won't Come Easy On Either Side Of The Atlantic

Sustained intercessional efforts by the U.S. and EU will be required to conclude the ambitious, high-standard Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership in a way that satisfies both sides' interests and makes a compelling case for free trade, say Paul Davies and Charles De Jager at Crowell & Moring LLP.

LEGAL INDUSTRY

Top 5 Reasons Partners Walk Out The Door

In today's fiercely competitive legal market, partners may be tempted to leave their firms and seek out a new gig for a wide variety of reasons, including the perception that they're not being paid enough and a loss of faith in a firm's management. Here, experts give Law360 five reasons top talent may look for the exits.

More Pink Slips For Partners Expected As Work Dries Up

Sixty-two percent of law firms report their nonequity partners are not sufficiently busy, and more than a quarter of firms are actively trying to thin the herds, according to a recent survey of managing partners and firm chairs.

BigLaw's Struggle To Profit Is Here To Stay, Survey Says

Many of the market forces eating into law firm revenues are here to stay, including greater price competition, more commoditized legal work, corporate legal insourcing and decreased client demand, according to a survey of firm managing partners and chairs.

BigLaw Sending More Support Staff Jobs To Low-Cost Hubs

Just a week after DLA Piper LLP revealed it will cut 200 U.K. support staff positions with a portion of those heading to its recently opened operations hub in Poland, two more BigLaw giants say they plan to relocate support staff roles to soon-to-be-opened service centers in low-cost locales.

Law360's Weekly Verdict: Legal Lions & Lambs

DLA Piper and Milberg LLP triumphed this week over a malicious prosecution case brought against them by Facebook, earning them a spot on Law360's list of legal lions, while a former Nelson Mullins Riley & Scarborough LLP partner made her way onto this week's list of lambs after she was sentenced to probation for "unruly" behavior that forced an international flight to be diverted to Philadelphia.

NJ Class Plaintiffs Facing Tougher Row To Hoe, Experts Say

Third Circuit rulings on class identification standards have made New Jersey federal court a potentially treacherous place for class actions, but the appeals court's recent approval of an NFL concussion settlement offers plaintiffs some leeway in the discovery needed for certification, experts said during a New Jersey State Bar Association panel discussion Thursday.

EXTERNAL EMAIL

Dear Fritz,

I finally have time after deep cleaning and fixing up up my new house to contact a few people and make a few phone calls and to go out job seeking. I looked up my Godmother and maternal cousin, Armande Ritter to give her a call. Since you were from Oregon also I thought you might be interested in this.

Armande has early onset of dementia and she gets mixed up very easily. It's so sad because she was such a brilliant woman. She can still communicate and we discuss family, mainly the Maudens and Caussou families and are trying to get to the bottom of a family haunting that may or may not bear any truth to it.

First, I would like to tell you what was really disturbing to me was the genealogy of the Ritter family name. It doesn't surprise me. "Ritter. The name Ritter is the 970th most common surname in the U.S. Ancestors of this family most likely spoke Czech Jewish, German, German Jewish or Polish Jewish."

What is interesting is of the one non profit that I knew she was affilitated with and that is the Dan A. and Armande Ritter Unitrust - non profit 501c filed non profit #936286009.

This is what I found to be interesting when I went to look for the phone # listed for her name in the website search - Armande Ritter in Salem, OR is the bizapedia profile at bizapedia.com (website copied and listed below).

I'm wondering if someone else is doing all of this either because of blackmail or extortion. Someone or some people who are following me and stalking me, the Siegels, the Meyer and Lansky families? Could that Czech Jewish someone be Lux Ward MKULTRA suspect Patricia Ann Foulk Jakl Aktas? Is this a reason that she and Ozgur Aktas are watching me so closely and watching the Ritter family so closely?
Their coven? The Mothers of Darkness Castle in Muno, Belgium? The Wewelsburg Castle in Germany? In the website of the artwork donated by Armande Ritter to the Mill Race Park in Salem, Oregon she is wearing our maternal grandmother's beautiul opal ring at the Statesman Journal website. Armande is touching this sculpture of art (lava rock formation) with her hand that she wears this ring on. She knows exactly what she is doing in this art form. Its presence is in the disclosure of the content of this email. Armande inherited the opal ring and I inherited the family wooden rosary beads passed down from our maternal grandmother, Leontine Maudens Caussou.

The conference, officially titled The 32 Annual Intoxilyzer User's Group, is being held August 29 - September 1, 2016. If able, we would love to have Mayor Goodman give a welcome. It would be the morning on August 29th, probably around 9am (we are still working on the schedule). V'Dara is the host hotel/conference center. A 15 minute welcome to Las Vegas, and maybe something regarding DUI's or Alcohol/Drugs would be awesome. We are hoping for 100-110 attendees - comprised of a mix of police officers, scientists and technicians.

I don't really have anything specific I need her to speak about. I was thinking along the lines of a welcome to Las Vegas kind of talk. If she wants to be topic appropriate, the room will be full of police officers and scientists, all of whom work in a DUI related capacity. So anything along the lines of alcohol, drugs, forensics or DUIs would be more than welcome. She could also talk a little about just the city in general. Anything would be awesome.

City Council Letter - November meeting.docx

Dear Mayor Goodman,

We are sending this e-mail in anticipation of the November 21 meeting where our application regarding SUP-72940 will be considered. We wanted to take this opportunity to reach out to you and provide you with some background about our application. Please see attached.

We are hoping you would consider approval of our application as we have complied with all the rules and have taken steps to ensure our neighborhood is least impacted by any potential rental activities.

We would be willing to have restrictions on our permit to limit rentals to a minimum of 5 days, or whatever the council recommends.

Please let us know if you have any questions or concerns that we can address between now and our November 21st meeting.

Thank you so much for your time.

Subject: SUP-72940 (PRJ-72939) – Special use permit for short-term rental

Dear Mayor Goodman,

Thank you very much for hearing and considering our application for short-term rental. As our application was held in abeyance to the November 21st City Council meeting, we wanted to take this opportunity to provide you more information on our application.

We have been a frequent traveler to the Las Vegas from our home in California area since we have been adults, over 20 years. We love the city and have begun planning our retirement in Las Vegas. We purchased a multi unit apartment last year to start our retirement planning. We are hoping to purchase more long-term rental units in the future. In our investment planning, we heard about the short-term rental market and decided it would be a great opportunity to be able to buy our future retirement home, use the home for getaways for our family, and rent it out when not in use.

We then began researching the short-term rental rules as we searched for the ideal home for our vacation getaways and future retirement. We ensured that we conducted our search in areas that would conform to the rules laid out by the planning department, such as location and proximity to an existing short-term rental. We kept in touch with representatives from the planning department, as we completed our search, to ensure we would be in compliance with all the rules.

We then applied for this SUP, which has been abeyed 3 times. We paid over $1,000 to apply for this permit and satisfied all the requirements laid out by the planning department.

We are trying to understand what the planning department and city council are looking for to consider approving our application. In the initial planning meeting, the planning commission expressed concern that we are out of town residents. There is no rule that discourages out of town ownership of short-term rentals. However, we wanted to ensure we addressed the concerns of the planning department. We hired a property manager and a handyman, to ensure that we have a local contact to address any issues with our property. We joined our local neighborhood watch program and have built a relationship with our neighborhood watch captain, Helen Moore, who is supportive of our application. We also sent out letters to our immediate neighbors, notifying them of our plan to rent our property out, and providing them our contact information to communicate any concerns they may have. We also put in exterior security cameras and an alarm, to better monitor the property and guest activity.

In the first city council meeting held on June 15th, the council stated that their only concern was that they had heard of noise complaints regarding our property, in proposing an abeyance. We took the opportunity to reach out to Helen Moore and the local police department. They confirmed to us that, since we purchased the property in March, there have been no noise complaints received. We made our inquiries to the local police department by phone and via email, our contact is Omar Lopez and his contact information is below.

During the latest city council meeting on September 12th, City Council voiced concern that there are 35 protest cards regarding our application versus the two individuals who spoke on our behalf. The majority of our nearest neighbors do not have any concerns about our planned short-term rental. We have spoken to 3 of our immediate neighbors and they want to remain neutral due to potential harassment by our only vocal protester, Robert Fisher, who resides on 1409 Nugget Creek Dr. They have shared with us that Robert has harassed them in the past for church group gatherings and other things.

We have reached to Mr. Fisher, as well, to understand his specific concerns and have not received a reply. His only statement during the various meetings was that the neighborhood is comprised of many retirees. Mr. Fisher has been representing himself as the captain of the neighborhood watch to the neighborhood, planning commission and city council, during the various meetings on our application. We have confirmed with our representative from the Crime Prevention Unit that Helen Moore is the neighborhood watch captain, and not Mr. Fisher. It appears that Mr. Fisher may have different motivation for protesting our application. Mr. Fisher has constructed 3 additional unpermitted structures in his backyard and rents them out, along with various rooms in his house. His protest may relate to competition in the rental market.

The planning department sent out 2 sets of notices to the 500 nearest residents. So a great majority of the nearest residents do not object to our short-term rentals. Of the 35 protest cards, most are duplicates and did not state their reason for protest. We read through the ones that stated their reason for protest and believe that we can mitigate people's concerns.

Some people objected to our house being a rental property in general. As we mentioned, we will be renting this property out since we are not ready to move to the Las Vegas area full time. It is just a matter of whether it will be a long-term or short-term rental. On June 6th, we began renting the property with a 31-day minimum. We prefer the short-term approach to allow us to be able to use the property periodically for our own use. The short-term approach will also allow the property to be owner occupied periodically. With the long-term approach, it will become a rental property full-time and it will be much harder for us to evict bad tenants.

We read complaints of potential noise and drugs in the neighborhood. We do not allow parties and have taken steps to prevent, detect, and resolve potential noise issues in our property. We have exterior video cameras in the front and back to detect additional guests, parties, and potential drug use. We have reached out to our neighborhood watch captain, Helen Moore, and she keeps us updated on the neighborhood and any concerns with the property. We have proven responsive in addressing any concerns Helen has communicated, which is why she is supportive of our application.

We have engaged with our property manager, Justin Novinger, who also manages our long-term multi-unit rental in Las Vegas, to be able to immediately address any issues. We have reached out to Omar Lopez and other contacts at the local police department provided by Helen Moore, to provide our contact information. We have provided our contact information to all of our immediate neighbors.

With regards to parking and traffic, we believe we have enough parking spaces to address potential tenants. Our house is 3 bedrooms and 1,317 square feet and has a two-car garage and a driveway that can accommodate two additional vehicles. We also believe parking and traffic requirements would be the same whether the property is a long-term or short-term rental.

We plan to require a 5-day minimum rental and would be happy to make this a condition of our license. Our target market consists of corporate travelers and families on vacation. Even a 1-week or 10-day minimum would be satisfactory.

Please let us know if there is any additional information we can provide or any actions you want us to undertake to facilitate approval of our short-term rental. Please feel free to reach out to us via e-mail, phone call or letter via the contact information attached.

Again, thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Mark and Chrystal Del Rosario

Study: Cyberbullying Rampant among Teens, Worrying Parents and Children

According to a recent Pew Research Center survey, nearly 60 percent of U.S. teens have experienced online harassment and threats, ranging from name-calling to having explicit photos forwarded without their consent. The data also showed that cyberbullying is a significant concern to parents and to young people, with most teens believing that government and social media sites are not doing enough to prevent it. Other highlights of the study include:

- 42 percent of teens say they've been called offensive names online, the most common type of cyberbullying
- 21 percent reported being closely monitored by someone other than a parent with constant questions about location and activities
- 16 percent say they've been targeted with threats of physical violence.

Written and designed for teen audiences, our quick-reading tabbed Cyberbullying -- Keeping Tabs® On Digital Safety (EM80821)B explains what cyberbullying is and how to avoid it. This guide also discusses:

- the harm cyberbullying can cause
- how readers may have played a part in cyberbullying in the past
- what type of action is appropriate if one experiences cyberbullying as a victim or witness.

It's Never Too Late to Give Good Parenting Advice, according to Oxford University Research

While discussion of parenting interventions has traditionally focused on families with younger children as the primary beneficiaries, new research shows that older children gain just as much as younger ones from these interventions. Scientists from Oxford University analyzed data from 15,000 families around the world to reach their conclusions -- which essentially found no evidence for the common belief that earlier interventions are more powerful. "With respect to common parenting interventions for reducing behavior problems in childhood, rather than believing 'earlier is better,' we should conclude, 'it's never too early, never too late,'" said lead researcher Frances Gardner of Oxford University.

R. Gil Kerlikowske is the former Commissioner of U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP), having been nominated by President Obama and confirmed by the Senate in March, 2014. When he left office in January 2017, he was the only confirmed CBP Commissioner during President Obama's administration. He is now currently an IOP Fellow at Harvard Kennedy School of Government.

CBP was formed as part of the Department of Homeland Security in 2003 as a result of the recommendations issued by the 9/11 Commission. Its dual responsibilities are to secure America's borders and facilitate lawful travel and trade. CBP is the second-largest contributor of funds to the U.S. Treasury, collecting $46 billion in Fiscal Year 2015. As the nation's largest law enforcement agency, CBP employs 60,000 people at and between 328 ports of entry nationwide as well as in 40 countries around the world, with an annual budget approaching $13 billion.

Before Mr. Kerlikowske was named CBP Commissioner, he served for five years as President Obama's drug policy advisor as Director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy (ONDCP), a Senate-confirmed cabinet level position. When he started at ONDCP in May 2009, the growing abuse of and addiction to prescription drugs was not widely known by the general public. Besides authoring the ONDCP's annual National Drug Control Strategy, he initiated the first Prescription Drug Strategy.

Mr. Kerlikowske served as Chief of Police for nine years in Seattle (2000-2009); during this period, crime decreased to its lowest level in 40 years, video cameras were installed in patrol vehicles, less lethal technology such as Tasers were issued, the department received national accreditation, and he implemented civilian management of Internal Affairs. He was elected twice as President of the Major Cities Chiefs Association, which represents the largest city/county law enforcement agencies in the United States and Canada.

Mr. Kerlikowske was Deputy Director of the Office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) during the Clinton administration under Attorney General Janet Reno from 1998-2000. Please join us for this exciting talk!

KEEPING UP WITH DISRUPTION

Shifting into innovation gear

How can you innovate when banking is so tightly regulated? One helpful tip is to get developers, compliance officers, risk managers, and other key people in the same room. EY's Roger Park and Steve Guddat discuss helpful ways to move your bank forward. Read more

ONLINE SECURITY

"Don't you know me yet?"

A customer walks into a bar where he's been imbibing for 20 years and orders a beer. "Who are you, sir?" says the bartender. That may sound like a joke, but when a bank or online merchant shows no recognition for a customer, it alienates them, according to new research from Experian. Read more

Atom's blog is smashing

Atom Bank is a new bank in Britain that hasn't opened its physical doors yet, but which is saying a lot on the web. From a company blog:

"… lots of new companies describe themselves as fintechs and not banks. They think that what banking does is commoditised and adds no real value. They believe that the customer experience can be shaped and enhanced by building better digital front-ends. Better apps, better websites. Here at Atom we disagree. Our Chairman often reminds us that you can put lipstick on a pig, but that doesn't change the fact that it's still a pig. I prefer using the cliché that real beauty is more than skin deep. Subject: RE: Freedom Park Suicide

Good Morning, please read below the information relative to the referenced suicide;

On August 10, 2017 at approximately 0815 hours, I was notified of a deceased male at Gary Reese Freedom Park. I responded to Freedom Park at approximately 0830 hours and met with Deputy Marshal Sergeant Charles Seipel and Marshals Compson and Thatch. LVMPD patrol officers arrived shortly after.

Sergeant Seipel advised that City of Las Vegas Fire was notified by an unidentified caller of a sick or injured-white male in the park this morning at approximately 0739 hours. LVFD arrived and discovered 55 year-old Donald Wright, lying on his side on a picnic bench in the park. LVFD determined Wright was deceased.

The Deputy City Marshals arrived shortly after and cordoned off the scene with evidence tape.

Coroner's Office Investigators arrived at Freedom Park at approximately 1000 hours. They inventoried and photographed Wright's property at the scene. They found several bottles of prescription medication next to Wright and in his personal belongings. Next to the pill bottles was a note that read:

"Please let me say livin life just to have fun and play gets old especially once all the drugs are sold out then your left in the shadows."

A second note was found that provided an address for Wright's father and Wright's statement that he wanted to die.

The Coroner investigators saw no trauma on Wright's body. They found nothing that made them suspect Wright's death was related to foul play. Per the Coroner Investigators, the medication found at the scene was most commonly prescribed for schizophrenia, depression and epilepsy.

Davis mortuary personnel arrived at Freedom Park at approximately 1030 hours.

There were no media personnel at the scene.

A citizen by the name of Warren Foshee walked up next to the scene and stated a friend in the park called him and told him about Wright. Warren stated his son lives with the decedent's sister in Arkansas. The sister's name is Carol Doviall at [redacted] Warren stated he has been a friend of the decedent for 6-7 years.

Wright's SCOPE record indicates he had two felony convictions; Possession of Controlled Substance and Arson 1st degree. He had a Murder charge in 1995 that was later dismissed. All other offenses were mostly drug related. Per Offendertrak, Wright was never incarcerated at the City Detention Center.

Please let me know if you need anything else.

Hi, All. Please be aware our DPS team is investigating an apparent suicide in Gary Reese Freedom Park. A black male adult, 55, was found dead at one of the picnic tables. Investigators say it appears he overdosed on some type of pills. Metro is assisting in the investigation. Those on the scene are waiting for the coroner to arrive at this time.

On-Demand Video: The 21st Century Cures Act: Implications for Research and Drug Development

Event held February 27, 2017

For immediate release

In the latest in a series of live webcasts by The Forum at Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health, a panel of experts discussed the 21st Century Cures Act that authorizes greater funding for medical research and relaxes regulatory processes for drugs and medical devices. With Trump administration appointees to the Food and Drug Administration still pending, panelists welcomed the Act's support for research but warned that actual appropriations may not materialize, and that streamlined approval processes require vigilance after drugs and devices are marketed in order to protect the public. New definitions and measurements for successful products are required, along with ways to educate consumers on realistic expectations.

This Forum was presented jointly with STAT.

EXPERT PARTICIPANTS

Otis Brawley, Chief Medical Officer, American Cancer Society

Jeffrey Drazen, Editor-in-Chief, The New England Journal of Medicine

Aaron Kesselheim, Associate Professor of Medicine, Harvard Medical School/Brigham and Women's Hospital, and Director of the Program On Regulation, Therapeutics, And Law

Pamela Tenaerts, Executive Director of the Clinical Trials Transformation Initiative

MODERATOR

Ed Silverman, Senior Writer and Pharmalot Columnist for STAT

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE DISCUSSION

- The 21st Century Cures Act, signed in December 2016 by President Obama, authorizes greater research funding and the inclusion in regulatory decisions of some under-used elements, such as patient experiences. But in relaxing regulatory requirements, the Act may reflect a misconception that the FDA is a bottleneck.
- There's no guarantee that higher funding will actually materialize or that it will continue smoothly for the Act's four priority research initiatives: brain and neuroscience research; precision medicine that individualizes treatment; cancer study; and regenerative medicine to treat previously incurable conditions like spinal cord injury.
- After-market studies will be increasingly important to detect problems that may arise after drugs and devices start winning speedy approval without the current regulatory rigor.
- The public needs to understand that drug and device "cures" are far less likely than small increases in life expectancy or odds for improvement. Consumers will need to lower their expectations and weigh side effects more heavily when deciding what treatments to accept.

The Cures Act combines welcome aspects with worrisome ones

Kesselheim: "So the Cures Act increased the NIH budget about 3 percent per year over the next 3 years...But many, many parts of this part of the bill overemphasize speed over science and the reliance on less rigorous data to meet those standards. And that's what's made this part of the bill particularly controversial."

Higher funding might not materialize for the major initiatives in the law

Drazen: "The bill does a lot of things, but one of the key things that it does is it says that there will be more money for certain areas. But as you mentioned, the bill says that there shall be more money, but it doesn't say the money is actually coming."

Consumers need better information on treatment risks and benefits

Tenaerts: "When things are accelerated and drugs or treatments are approved with less numbers, you have to keep in mind that that's a different kind of approval than when they are approved with regular clinical trials...Some of what efficacy means is…It's improvement, and that improvement needs to be substantiated down the line."

After-market studies will be increasingly important

Brawley: "The FDA can now look at 15- to 20-person trials and actually approve drugs based on that...We may approve a drug, and it may be out on the market for five or six years, and we decide the drug really is not as good as we initially thought it was, and we may have to rescind the approval...I actually look at the current FDA and see some very wise people there who have a whole track record of making what I would call good decisions."

Marketing will make withdrawing drugs harder

Drazen: "We need to have a way to connect with the public because we allow the drug companies to connect with the public...There's the Division of Drug Marketing at the FDA. They have to approve those advertisements so they're not misleading. But they [the ads] certainly suggest that people with almost any condition are going to improve from therapy...That doesn't mean that everybody who gets a drug is going to get better."

Expert recommendations

Each expert offered policy recommendations at the end of the show.

Through in-person events paired with state-of-the-art interactive webcasting, The Forum at Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health convenes the best-informed and most influential scientists, policymakers, and practitioners to address worldwide health problems that require immediate decisions and practical solutions.

A Warm, Nurturing Parent-Child Bond Helps Children Thrive, Despite Poverty

A positive parent-child relationship can counteract many of the serious challenges faced by young children growing up in poverty, according to Columbia University researchers. Living in poverty has been shown to contribute to negative behaviors in children, including inattention, impulsiveness, aggression, withdrawal, depression, and anxiety. Columbia researchers found that low-income parents who provide a nurturing environment help their child overcome obstacles and develop socially and academically. "The good news is that parents who struggle financially are still finding ways to have the kinds of interactions with their children that help them to develop socially and emotionally, despite the many external stressors competing for their attention," said co-author Yang Jiang.

Q&A: Delivering Accurate and Up-to-Date Information

Q: Our clients count on us for advice that they can trust -- their health and safety depends on it. What steps does Channing Bete Company take to ensure that every publication is accurate and up-to-date?

A: We agree that nothing is more important than accuracy. That's why every fact we publish is backed by multiple, verifiable, authoritative sources. And it's not enough to get the facts and figures right; for real accuracy, you have to keep up with the most current laws, mandates, regulations, and guidelines relating to specific topics. For example, our editorial staff regularly monitors the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the National Institutes of Health, and the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, to name just a few.

In addition, we adhere to rigorous writing and design standards for readability -- so people of all reading levels can understand the material. Our products are also subjected to careful internal review and are reviewed by outside experts before publishing.

Finally, once published, our materials undergo ongoing review and revision to reflect the most recent research findings. When new research affects our publications, we respond quickly and efficiently to update our resources.

Explore our Web site to see for yourself!

And remember, all Channing Bete Company® products feature:

- research-based facts delivered in simple terms
- content tailored to specific audiences
- an attention-grabbing, professional look and feel
- top-quality production values that underscore the importance of the content
- an ironclad guarantee -- backed by over 50 years of publishing experience!

Subject: Duties of the City Attorney

Per the LASVEGASNEVADA.GOV website, the Duties of the City Attorney are:
The City Attorney's Office oversees all legal aspects of the city from the drafting of ordinances and legal opinions to the supervision of special counsel and the prosecution of violations including DUIs, drug offenses, domestic violence and traffic offenses that take place within Las Vegas city limits.

Nowhere does it say the City Attorney is a negotiator between a developer and a community. I believe its time that Brad Jerbic stopped trying to negotiate an agreement between Yohan Lowie & Company and the residents of Queensridge. I appreciate his effort, but IT'S NOT HIS JOB.
Let Mr. Lowie's staff negotiate with the Queensridge residents at Mr.Lowie's expense and then have Mr.Jerbic review any agreement on behalf of the City's interest.
I believe Mr.Jerbic is exposing the City of Las Vegas to a potential lawsuit.

Issue 153 – July 10, 2018

We should all be proud that the UNLV School of Medicine is developing a reputation for diversity. Both ethnic diversity and diversity when it comes to upward mobility. Unlike most medical schools, many of our students don't come from privileged backgrounds. We take pride in the fact that 25% of our students are the first in their families to go to college. These extremely bright, passionate students enter medical school with a different perspective. They are keenly aware of the need to bring quality healthcare to underserved populations. It's in this particular group of students that we find extraordinary stories of perseverance and tenacity. Traits that will continue to help them excel in life. I hope you enjoy reading about one such student who reminds us all, that it's not about where you come from, but where you're going.

CRYSTAL DICKSON: FORGING A PATH TO SUCCESS

How, as a little girl, she'd often be left alone by her parents at night, during the day... how, because of their unpredictable behavior, she'd hide in a room or in a closet when they were home... how her parents got repeatedly arrested for using methamphetamine... how she hated visiting her dad in prison... how other students and even adults, assumed she could never amount to anything because of what her parents had done.

The more you talk with this honors graduate of Advanced Technologies Academy in Las Vegas — she also graduated with honors from UCLA in Los Angeles — the more you realize just how wrong it is to assume family background dictates a child's future.

"I remember in high school when a social worker came... she was talking to me and saw my grade point... It was above 4.0. There was a look of shock on her face. I felt kind of mad. It shouldn't have been shocking. That attitude is held, unfortunately, by a lot of people. A lot of people assume things that they shouldn't… my sister didn't do drugs either... when you have parents like mine, people who are older and just students treat you differently and you feel that. A lot of people thought that because my parents had problems with addiction, I would as well."

Dickson credits her grandmother, an accountant who became her guardian in elementary school, with bringing stability to her life. "She has always encouraged me."

It wasn't until high school that Dickson thought she could make a future for herself. "Because of my parents, people don't expect much from you and you start to feel the same way. But then I noticed if I studied, I could do well in class... People started reacting to me differently... I realized I had the ability to determine my future... In high school I wanted to have a career in public health or research because I wanted to have a job where I could have a positive influence on people's lives. But becoming a doctor never seemed attainable."

Her mindset changed after she won scholarships to attend UCLA. There, she majored in neuroscience after her mother was in a car accident and suffered a traumatic brain injury. "In college, my confidence in myself grew and I started volunteering at a neurology clinic. It was while volunteering… taking vitals and talking to patients that I decided that I wanted to become a doctor... I still haven't decided on a speciality, though."

During college, she also volunteered with children who came from backgrounds similar to hers. "I spent a lot of time volunteering with foster youth (three years) because I wanted children born into circumstances like the one I was born into to know that there was hope and that they do have the ability to improve their futures."

Dickson now lives with her grandma. So does her mother and a brother. "My mother has been clean since I was a sophomore in high school.... she did have to get her teeth removed because of what methamphetamine did to her teeth... My dad is in prison. He goes because of what he does to get money for drugs. Once it was forgery... I haven't talked to him in a long time. I told him the last time he got out of prison that I wouldn't talk to him again if he went back... I used to hate going to the prison. I had negative experiences there."

It isn't unusual to see Dickson carrying two bags of heavy books — one on her back and one on her arm — into the medical school library or virtual anatomy lab. She studies either in the library or a classroom. She is passionate about what she believes she can do through medicine to help others, particularly the underserved. That sincere desire — one that shows "a fire in the belly," according to Dr. Sam Parrish, admissions director for the medical school — played a key role in her winning admission. Dickson wants to help change the medical care system in the U.S.

"I do not believe that one's socioeconomic status should determine their health outcomes, but that is something that is very prominent here. There are so many people that don't have insurance and can't afford to see a doctor until it's an emergency... I have chosen to become a doctor because there's something enormously special about being able to have a direct influence on someone's life and help inspire them to lead healthier, happier lives."

NEW TO UNLV SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

The UNLV School of Medicine welcomes two recent additions — Dulcie Gunner, director of human resources, and Shirley Robinson, who provides primary administrative support to chief finance officer (CFO) Joann Strobbe.

Dulcie Gunner, PsyD

Director of Human Resources

Before moving to Las Vegas, Gunner was the director of human resources for Behavioral Health Services in Gardena CA.

"I like the challenge of being a part of a new organization that enhances and serves the community," Gunner said. "I like to be creative, add value and service to an organization."

Shirley Robinson

Administrative Assistant

Before Robinson arrived at the medical school, she provided administrative support to the finance director of Temecula, CA.

"Careers in medicine represent a 'calling' of sorts and the school of medicine presented an opportunity to explore the possibility of starting a career, or contributing to, the medical/healthcare industry," she said.

Toshiba Company history. What's interesting is the "storage solutions." Could that be storage as in large cargo containers such as the business at LinkedIn by Ozgur Aktas? He was a military contractor either at an American military base in Turkey or was it in Germany? I always thought it had to do with global drug trafficking of heroin and cocaine. Is it possible these large storage containers contained nuclear waste moving it via these large cargo containers? Large storage containers Toshiba or data storage - Toshiba - Samsung? Or both? It's my undestanding that the FBI can go back 10 years on a website to track information.

Toshiba Corporation (, Kabushiki-gaisha Tōshiba, English: /təˈʃiːbə, tɒ-, toʊ-/[2]) is a Japanese multinational conglomerate headquartered in Tokyo, Japan. Its diversified products and services include information technology and communications equipment and systems, electronic components and materials, power systems, industrial and social infrastructure systems, consumer electronics, household appliances, medical equipment, office equipment, as well as lighting and logistics.

Toshiba was founded in 1939 as Tokyo Shibaura Denki K.K. through the merger of Shibaura Seisaku-sho (founded in 1875) and Tokyo Denki (founded in 1890). The company name was officially changed to Toshiba Corporation in 1978.

It is listed on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, where it is a constituent of the Nikkei 225 and TOPIX indices, the Osaka Securities Exchange and the Nagoya Stock Exchange. Toshiba is the ninth largest semiconductor manufacturer in the world.[citation needed] In 2017, Toshiba filed unaudited quarterly results because of uncertainties at Westinghouse, which had filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection. Toshiba stated that "substantial doubt about the company's ability to continue as a going concern exists".[3]

Toshiba is organized into four groupings: the Digital Products Group, the Electronic Devices Group, the Home Appliances Group and the Social Infrastructure Group. Midea Group, a Chinese company, bought a controlling 80.1% stake in the Toshiba Home Appliances Group in 2016.[4][5]

History

Tanaka SeisakushoTanaka Seisakusho (, Tanaka Engineering Works) was the first company established by Tanaka Hisashige, one of the most original and productive inventor-engineers during the Tokugawa / Edo period. Established in July 1875, it was the first Japanese company to manufacture telegraph equipment. It also manufactured switches, and miscellaneous electrical and communications equipment. The company was inherited by Tanaka's adopted son, and later became half of the present Toshiba company. Several people who worked at Tanaka Seisakusho or who received Tanaka's guidance at a Kubusho (Ministry of Industries) factory later became pioneers themselves. These included Miyoshi Shōichi who helped Fujioka make the first power generator in Japan and to establish a company, Hakunetsusha to make bulbs; Oki Kibatarō, the founder of the present Oki Denki (Oki Electric Industry); and Ishiguro Keizaburō, a co-founder of the present Anritsu.[6]

After the demise of the founder in 1881 Tanaka Seisakusho became partly owned by General Electric and expanded into the production of torpedoes and mines at the request of the Imperial Japanese Navy, to become on the largest manufacturing companies of the time. However, as the Navy started to use competitive bids and then build its own works, the demand decreased substantially and the company started to lose money. The main creditor to the company, Mitsui Bank, took over the insolvent company in 1893 and renamed it Shibaura Seisakusho (Shibaura Engineering Works).[6]

Shibaura Seisakusho

Shibaura Seisakusho (, Shibaura Engineering Works) was the new name given to the company Tanaka Seisakusho (Tanaka Engineering Works), after it was declared insolvent in 1893 and taken over by Mitsui Bank.

In 1910, it formed a tie-up with GE USA, which, in exchange for technology acquired about a quarter of the shares of Shibaura. With this investment GE now had a stake in both Tokyo Denki and Shibaura Seisakusho - two companies that had a complementary line of products in light as well as heavy electrical equipment. Both companies were merged in 1939 to create Tokyo Shibaura Denki (Tokyo Shibaura Electric Company, now Toshiba). The relation with GE continued until the beginning of the war and, after the war, resumed in 1953 with GE's 24 percent shareholding. This percentage has, however, decreased substantially since then.[6]

Hakunetsusha (Tokyo Denki)

Hakunetsusha ( ) was a company established by Shōichi Miyoshi and Fujioka Ichisuke, two of Japan's industrial pioneers during the Tokugawa / Edo period. It specialized in the manufacture of light bulbs.

The company was established in 1890, and started out by selling bulbs using bamboo filaments. However, following the opening up of trade with the West through the Unequal treaty, Hakunetsusha met with fierce competition from imports. Its bulb cost about 60 per cent more than the imports and the quality was poorer. The company managed to survive with the booms after the First Sino-Japanese War of 1894–95 and the Russo-Japanese War of 1904–05, but afterward its financial position was precarious.

In 1905 the company was renamed Tokyo Denki (Tokyo Electric) and entered into a financial and technological collaboration with General Electric of USA. General Electric acquired 51 percent share of ownership, sent a vice president, and provided the technology for bulb-making. Production equipment was bought from GE and Tokyo Denki soon started selling its products with GE's trademark.

In 1939, Tokyo Denki and Shibaura Seisakusho were merged to form Tokyo Shibaura Denki (Tokyo Shibaura Electric Company, now Toshiba).

Toshiba was founded in 1939 by the merger of Shibaura Seisakusho (Shibaura Engineering Works)[7] and Tokyo Denki (Tokyo Electric). Shibaura Seisakusho had been founded as Tanaka Seisakusho by Tanaka Hisashige in July 1875 as Japan's first manufacturer of telegraph equipment.[6] In 1904, it was renamed Shibaura Seisakusho. Through the first decades of the 20th century, Shibaura Seisakusho had become a major manufacturer of heavy electrical machinery as Japan modernized during the Meiji Era and became a world industrial power. Tokyo Denki was founded as Hakunetsusha in 1890 and had been Japan's first producer of incandescent electric lamps. It later diversified into the manufacture of other consumer products and in 1899 had been renamed Tokyo Denki. The merger of Shibaura and Tokyo Denki created a new company called Tokyo Shibaura Denki (Tokyo Shibaura Electric) (東　芝　　). It was soon nicknamed Toshiba, but it was not until 1978 that the company was officially renamed Toshiba Corporation.

The group expanded rapidly, driven by a combination of organic growth and by acquisitions, buying heavy engineering and primary industry firms in the 1940s and 1950s. Groups created include Toshiba Music Industries/Toshiba EMI (1960), Toshiba International Corporation (1970s) Toshiba Electrical Equipment (1974), Toshiba Chemical (1974), Toshiba Lighting and Technology (1989), Toshiba America Information Systems (1989) and Toshiba Carrier Corporation (1999).

Toshiba is responsible for a number of Japanese firsts, including radar (1912), the TAC digital computer (1954), transistor television and microwave oven (1959), color video phone (1971), Japanese word processor (1978), MRI system (1982), laptop personal computer (1986), NAND EEPROM (1991), DVD (1995), the Libretto sub-notebook personal computer (1996) and HD DVD (2005).

In 1977, Toshiba acquired the Brazilian company Semp (Sociedade Eletromercantil Paulista), subsequently forming Semp Toshiba through the combination of the two companies' South American operations.

In 1950, Tokyo Shibaura Denki was renamed Toshiba. This logo was used from 1950-1969. It was also used later on for hard drives .[8]

In 1987, Tocibai Machine, a subsidiary of Toshiba, was accused of illegally selling CNC milling machines used to produce very quiet submarine propellers to the Soviet Union in violation of the CoCom agreement, an international embargo on certain countries to COMECON countries. The Toshiba-Kongsberg scandal involved a subsidiary of Toshiba and the Norwegian company Kongsberg Vaapenfabrikk. The incident strained relations between the United States and Japan, and resulted in the arrest and prosecution of two senior executives, as well as the imposition of sanctions on the company by both countries.[10] Senator John Heinz of Pennsylvania said "What Toshiba and Kongsberg did was ransom the security of the United States for $517 million."

In 2001, Toshiba signed a contract with Orion Electric, one of the world's largest OEM consumer video electronic makers and suppliers, to manufacture and supply finished consumer TV and video products for Toshiba to meet the increasing demand for the North American market. The contract ended in 2008, ending seven years of OEM production with Orion.

In December 2004, Toshiba quietly announced it would discontinue manufacturing traditional in-house cathode-ray tube (CRT) televisions. In 2006, Toshiba terminated production of in-house plasma TVs. To ensure its future competitiveness in the flat-panel digital television and display market, Toshiba has made a considerable investment in a new kind of display technology called SED. Before World War II, Toshiba was a member of the Mitsui Group zaibatsu (family-controlled vertical monopoly). Today Toshiba is a member of the Mitsui keiretsu (a set of companies with interlocking business relationships and shareholdings), and still has preferential arrangements with Mitsui Bank and the other members of the keiretsu. Membership in a keiretsu has traditionally meant loyalty, both corporate and private, to other members of the keiretsu or allied keiretsu. This loyalty can extend as far as the beer the employees consume, which in Toshiba's case is Asahi.

In July 2005, BNFL confirmed it planned to sell Westinghouse Electric Company, then estimated to be worth $1.8 billion (£1 billion).[11] The bid attracted interest from several companies including Toshiba, General Electric and Mitsubishi Heavy Industries and when the Financial Times reported on 23 January 2006 that Toshiba had won the bid, it valued the company's offer at $5 billion (£2.8 billion). The sale of Westinghouse by the Government of the United Kingdom surprised many industry experts, who questioned the wisdom of selling one of the world's largest producers of nuclear reactors shortly before the market for nuclear power was expected to grow substantially; China, the United States and the United Kingdom are all expected to invest heavily in nuclear power.[12] The acquisition of Westinghouse for $5.4 billion was completed on 17 October 2006, with Toshiba obtaining a 77 percent share, and partners The Shaw Group a 20 percent share and Ishikawajima-Harima Heavy Industries Co. Ltd. a 3 percent share.

In late 2007, Toshiba took over from Discover Card as the sponsor of the top-most screen of One Times Square in New York City.[13] It displays the iconic 60-second New Year's countdown on its screen, as well as messages, greetings, and advertisements for the company. It was taken over by Capital One in late 2018.

In January 2009, Toshiba acquired the HDD business of Fujitsu.[14][15]

Toshiba announced on 16 May 2011, that it had agreed to acquire all of the shares of the Swiss-based advanced-power-meter maker Landis+Gyr for $2.3 billion.[16] In 2010 the company released a series of television models including the WL768, YL863, VL963 designed in collaboration with Danish designer Timothy Jacob Jensen.[17] In April 2012, Toshiba agreed to acquire IBM's point-of-sale business for $850 million, making it the world's largest vendor of point-of-sale systems.[18][19]

In July 2012, Toshiba was accused of fixing the prices of LCD panels in the United States at a high level. While such claims were denied by Toshiba,[20] they have agreed to settle alongside several other manufacturers for a total of $571 million.[21]

In December 2013, Toshiba completed its acquisition of Vijai Electricals Limited plant at Hyderabad and set up its own base for manufacturing of transmission and distribution products (transformers and switchgears) under the Social Infrastructure Group in India as Toshiba Transmission & Distribution Systems (India) Private Limited.

2014 OCZ Storage Solutions Acquisition

In January 2014, Toshiba completed its acquisition of OCZ Storage Solutions.[22] OCZ Technology stock was halted on 27 November 2013. OCZ then stated they expected to file a petition for bankruptcy and that Toshiba Corporation had expressed interest in purchasing its assets in a bankruptcy proceeding.[23][24] On 2 December 2013, OCZ announced Toshiba had agreed to purchase nearly all of OCZ's assets for $35 million.[25] The deal was completed on 21 January 2014 when the assets of OCZ Technology Group became a new independently-operated subsidiary of Toshiba named OCZ Storage Solutions.[26] OCZ Technology Group then changed its name to ZCO Liquidating Corporation;[27] on 18 August 2014, ZCO Liquidating Corporation and its subsidiaries were liquidated.[28] OCZ Storage Solutions was dissolved on 1 April 2016 and absorbed into Toshiba America Electronic Components, Inc.,[29][30] with OCZ becoming a brand of Toshiba.

In March 2014, Toshiba sued SK Hynix accusing the company for stealing technology of their NAND flash memory.[31]

In October 2014, Toshiba and United Technologies agreed a deal to expand their joint venture outside Japan.[32]

Toshiba announced in early 2015 that they would stop making televisions in its own factories. From 2015 onward, Toshiba televisions will be made by Compal for the U.S., or by Vestel and other manufacturers for the European market.

In January 2016, Toshiba's security division unveiled a new bundle of services for schools that use its surveillance equipment. The program, which is intended for both K-12 and higher education, includes education discounts, alerts and post-warranty support, among other features, on its IP-based security gear.[33]

As of March 2016, Toshiba is preparing to start construction on a cutting-edge new semiconductor plant in Japan that will mass-produce chips based on the ultra-dense flash variant. Toshiba expects to spend approximately 360 billion yen, or $3.2 billion, on the project through May 2019.[34]

In April 2016, Toshiba recalled 100,000 faulty laptop lithium-ion batteries, which are made by Panasonic, that can overheat, posing burn and fire hazards to consumers, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. Toshiba first announced the recall in January, and said it was recalling the batteries in certain Toshiba Notebook computers sold since June 2011.[35]

In September 2016, Toshiba announced the first wireless power receiver IC using the Qi 1.2.2 specification, developed in association with the Wireless Power Consortium.[36]

In late December 2016 Toshiba announced losses in the Westinghouse subsidiary from nuclear plant construction would lead to a write-down of several billion dollars.[37]

In January 2017, a person with direct knowledge of the matter reported that the company plans on making its chip division a separate business.[38]

2015 accounting scandal

Toshiba first announced in May 2015 that it was investigating an accounting scandal and it might have to revise its profits for the previous three years.[39][40] On 21 July 2015, CEO Hisao Tanaka announced his resignation amid an accounting scandal that he called "the most damaging event for our brand in the company's 140-year history". Profits had been inflated by $1.2 billion over the previous seven years.[41] Eight other senior officials also resigned, including the two previous CEOs.[42] Chairman Masashi Muromachi was appointed acting CEO.[43] Following the scandal, Toshiba Corp. was removed from a stock index showcasing Japan's best companies. That was the second reshuffle of the index, which picks companies with the best operating income, return on equity and market value.[44]

In September 2015, Toshiba shares fell to their lowest point in two and a half years. The firm said in a statement that its net losses for the quarterly period were 12.3 billion yen ($102m; £66m). The company noted poor performances in its televisions, home appliances and personal computer businesses.[45]

In December 2015, Muromachi said the episode had wiped about $8 billion off Toshiba's market value. He forecast a record 550 billion yen (about US $4.6 billion) annual loss and warned the company would have to overhaul its TV and computer businesses. Toshiba would not be raising funds for two years, he said. The next week, a company spokesperson announced Toshiba would in early 2016 seek 300 billion yen ($2.5 billion), taking the company's indebtedness to more than 1 trillion yen (about $8.3 billion).[46]

In May 2016, it was announced that Satoshi Tsunakawa, the former head of Toshiba's medical equipment division, was named CEO. This appointment came after the accounting scandal that occurred.[47][48]

2017 US nuclear construction liabilities

In February 2017, Toshiba revealed unaudited details of a 390 billion yen ($3.4 billion) corporate wide loss, mainly arising from its majority owned US based Westinghouse nuclear construction subsidiary which was written down by 712 billion yen ($6.3 billion). On 14 February 2017, Toshiba delayed filing financial results, and chairman Shigenori Shiga, formerly chairman of Westinghouse, resigned.[49][50][51]

Construction delays, regulatory changes and cost overruns at Westinghouse built nuclear facilities Vogtle units 3 and 4 in Waynesboro, Georgia and VC Summer units 2 and 3 in South Carolina, are cited as the main causes of the dramatic fall in Toshiba's financial performance and collapse in share price. Fixed priced construction contracts negotiated by Westinghouse with Georgia Power have left Toshiba with uncharted liabilities that will likely result in the sale of key Toshiba operating subsidiaries to secure the company's future.[52]

Westinghouse filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection on 29 March 2017.[53][54] It was estimated this would cost 9 billion dollar annual net loss.[55]

On 11 April 2017, Toshiba filed unaudited quarterly results. Auditors PricewaterhouseCoopers had not signed of the accounts because of uncertainties at Westinghouse. Toshiba stated that "substantial doubt about the company's ability to continue as a going concern exists".[3][56] On 25 April 2017, Toshiba announced its decision to replace its auditor after less than a year. Earlier in April, the company filed twice-delayed business results without an endorsement from auditor PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC).[55][57]

On 20 September 2017, Toshiba's board approved a deal to sell its memory chip business to a group led by Bain Capital for US$18 billion, with financial backing by companies such as Apple, Dell Technologies, Hoya Corporation, Kingston Technology, Seagate Technology, and SK Hynix.[58][59] The newly-independent company was named Toshiba Memory Corporation.

On 15 November 2017, Hisense reached a deal to acquire 95% of Toshiba Visual Solutions for US$113.6 million.[60]

Later that month, the company announced that it would pull out of its long-standing sponsorships of the Japanese television programs Sazae-san, Nichiyō Gekijo, and the video screens topping out One Times Square in New York City. The company cited that the value of these placements were reduced by its exit from consumer-oriented lines of business.[61]

On 6 April 2018 Toshiba announced the completion of the sale of Westinghouse's holding company to Brookfield Business Partners and some partners.[62]

3D television

In October 2010, Toshiba unveiled the Toshiba Regza GL1 21" LED backlit LCD TV glasses-free 3D prototype at CEATEC 2010. This system supports 3D capability without glasses (utilising an integral imaging system of 9 parallax images with vertical lenticular sheet). The retail product was released in December 2010.[84]

4K Ultra HD televisions

4K Ultra HD (3840×2160p) televisions provides four times the resolution of 1080p Full HD televisions. Toshiba's 4K HD LED televisions are powered by a CEVO 4K Quad + dual-core processor.[85]

HD DVD

Further information: HD DVD

On 19 February 2008, Toshiba announced that it would be discontinuing its HD DVD storage format following defeat in a format "war" against Blu-ray.[86] The HD DVD format had failed after most of the major US film studios backed the Blu-ray format, which was developed by Sony, Panasonic, Philips and Pioneer Corporation. Conceding the abandonment of HD DVD, Toshiba's President, Atsutoshi Nishida said "We concluded that a swift decision would be best [and] if we had continued, that would have created problems for consumers, and we simply had no chance to win".[87]

Toshiba continued to supply retailers with machines until the end of March 2008, and continued to provide technical support to the estimated one million people worldwide who owned HD DVD players and recorders. Toshiba announced a new line of stand-alone Blu-ray players as well as drives for PCs and laptops, and subsequently joined the BDA, the industry body which oversees development of the Blu-ray format.[88]

REGZA

REGZA (Real Expression Guaranteed by Amazing Architecture) is a unified television brand owned and manufactured by Toshiba. In 2010 REGZA name disappeared from the North American market, and from March 2015[89] new TVs carrying the Toshiba name are designed and produced by Compal Electronics, a Taiwanese company, which Toshiba has licensed its name to. REGZA is also used in Android-based smartphones that were developed by Fujitsu Toshiba Mobile Communications.

Chromebook

In October 2014, Toshiba released the Chromebook 2, a new version with a thinner profile and a much-improved display. The Chromebook runs exclusively on Chrome OS and gives users free Google Drive storage and access to a collection of apps and extensions at the Chrome Web Store.[90]

3D flash memory

In March 2015, Toshiba announced the development of the first 48-layer, three-dimensional flash memory. The new flash memory is based on a vertical stacking technology that Toshiba calls BiCS (Bit Cost Scaling), stores two bits of data per transistor and can store 128Gbits (16GB) per chip.[91] Toshiba's memory division was spun off as Toshiba Memory Corporation.

Environmental record

Toshiba has been judged as making "low" efforts to lessen their impact on the environment. In November 2012, they came second from the bottom in Greenpeace's 18th edition of the Guide to Greener Electronics that ranks electronics companies according to their policies on products, energy and sustainable operations.[92] Toshiba received 2.3 of a possible 10 points, with the top company (WIPRO) receiving 7.1 points. "Zero" scores were received in the categories "Clean energy policy advocacy", "Use of recycled plastics in products" and "Policy and practice on sustainable sourcing of fibres for paper".

In 2010, Toshiba reported that all of its new LCD TVs comply with the Energy Star standards and 34 models exceed the requirements by 30% or more.[93]

Toshiba also partnered with China's Tsinghua University in 2008 in order to form a research facility to focus on energy conservation and the environment.[94] The new Toshiba Energy and Environment Research Center is located in Beijing where forty students from the university will work to research electric power equipment and new technologies that will help stop the global warming process.[94] Through this partnership, Toshiba hopes to develop products that will better protect the environment and save China.[94] This contract between Tsinghua University and Toshiba originally began in October 2007 when they signed an agreement on joint energy and environment research.[94] The projects that they conduct work to reduce car pollution and to create power systems that don't negatively affect the environment.[94]

On 28 December 1970 Toshiba began the construction of unit 3 of the Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Plant[95] which was damaged in the Fukushima I nuclear accidents on 14 March 2011. In April 2011, CEO Norio Sasaki declared nuclear energy would "remain as a strong option" even after the Fukushima I nuclear accidents.[96]

In late 2013, Toshiba (Japan) entered the solar power business in Germany, installing PV systems on apartment buildings.[97]

Now let's go to my notes: Congress Trade Act - China.

1. In the last year of his presidency, Bill Clinton called on Congress to help him change China's normal trade relations status with the U.S. to permanent. This would amend the Trade Act of 1974 which had the trade status of China annually reviewed to determine the best course of action.

Permanent normal trade relations

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
Jump to navigationJump to search

The status of permanent normal trade relations (PNTR) is a legal designation in the United States for free trade with a foreign nation. In the United States, the name was changed from most favored nation (MFN) to PNTR in 1998.

In international trade, MFN status (or treatment) is awarded by one nation to another. It means that the receiving nation will be granted all trade advantages, such as low tariffs, that any other nation also receives. Thus, a nation with MFN status will not be discriminated against and will not be treated worse than any other nation with MFN status.[1]

Applicability

Granting of permanent normal trade relations status is automatic, except where specifically denied by law.[2]

Embargoes also apply to additional parties; see United States embargoes.

History

In 1948 the United States joined the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the predecessor organization of the World Trade Organization. In accordance with GATT provisions the United States agreed to extend what was then called Most Favored-Nation status (MFN) to all GATT member countries. This status was also applied to some countries that were not GATT members. However, a member may opt out of its obligations by invoking the non-application provision (Article XIII of the WTO or Article XXXV of the GATT) if it determines it cannot extend GATT/WTO principles to newly acceding members for political reasons.[3]

In 1951, the U.S. Congress directed President Harry Truman to revoke MFN status to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries except for Yugoslavia.[3]:2 During the Cold War, most Communist countries were denied MFN status if they did not meet certain conditions.[1]

In December 1960, Poland was granted MFN status by President Eisenhower.[1] In 1962, Congress enacted a directive that jeopardized the MFN status of Poland and Yugoslavia; however, the directive was delayed until a new one was passed that allowed any countries with MFN to keep the status if the President determined it to be in the national interest of the United States.[1]

Title IV of the Trade Act of 1974 superseded these provision. Section 401 of Title IV requires the President to withhold MFN status from countries that had not acquired that status by the time of the law's enactment on January 3, 1975. In effect, this meant all communist countries, except Poland and Yugoslavia. Section 402, the Jackson-Vanik amendment, withholds MFN status from countries with strict restriction on freedom of emigration.[3] Countries that wish to have PNTR must fulfill two basic requirements:[citation needed] (1) comply with the Jackson-Vanik provisions of the Trade Act of 1974 that states that the President of the United States determines that a country neither denies or impedes the right or opportunity of its citizens to emigrate; and (2) reach a bilateral commercial agreement with the United States. Jackson-Vanik allows for the President to issue a yearly waiver to allow the granting of PNTR.

For many years, People's Republic of China was the most important country in this group which required an annual waiver to maintain free trade status. The waiver for the PRC had been in effect since 1980. Every year between 1989 and 1999, legislation was introduced in Congress to disapprove the President's waiver. The legislation had sought to tie free trade with China to meeting certain human rights conditions that go beyond freedom of emigration. All such attempted legislation failed to pass. The requirement of an annual waiver was inconsistent with the rules of the World Trade Organization, and for the PRC to join the WTO, Congressional action was needed to grant PNTR to the PRC. This was accomplished in late 1999, allowing the PRC to join WTO in the following year.[4]

By Act of Congress, the United States granted permanent normal trade relations (PNTR) status to Czechoslovakia (later the Czech Republic and Slovakia), Hungary, and Romania after the fall of the communist governments in those countries. The United States granted PNTR to Albania, Bulgaria, Cambodia, Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania before their countries acceded to the WTO.[3] Before it granted PNTR, the United States invoked the non-application provision against Mongolia for more than two years after it joined the WTO on January 29, 1997. It also invoked the provision against Armenia from its WTO accession on February 5, 2003, until it was granted PNTR on January 7, 2005, and with Kyrgyzstan from when it joined the WTO on December 20, 1998, until receiving PNTR on June 29, 2000.[3]

According to a 2005 Congressional Research Service report, as of 2005, only Cuba (see United States embargo against Cuba) and North Korea (see North Korea–United States relations), were specifically denied NTR status.[5] The same report said that in accordance with the Jackson–Vanik amendment, Belarus and Turkmenistan had been temporarily afforded NTR treatment by presidential waiver and that Azerbaijan, Kazakhstan, Tajikistan, and Uzbekistan were temporarily afforded NTR treatment by a presidential compliance determination.[5]

In December 2006, the U. S. granted Permanent Normal Trade Relations status to Vietnam.[3]:3[6] Vietnam had a temporary free trade status on a year-to-year waiver basis as a prerequisite for accession to the WTO since 2001.[6]

In the same year Ukraine was granted PNTR. In December 2012, President Barack Obama signed the Russia and Moldova Jackson-Vanik Repeal and Sergei Magnitsky Rule of Law Accountability Act of 2012 (Magnitsky Act) granting PNTR to Russia and Moldova.[3]

U.S. and China

In the last year of his presidency, Bill Clinton called on Congress to help him change China's normal trade relations status with the U.S. to permanent. This would amend the Trade Act of 1974 which had the trade status of China annually reviewed to determine the best course of action. The piece of legislation was introduced to the house as H.R. number 4444 on May 15, 2000 by William Reynolds Archer, a Republican Representative from Texas (he had three cosponsors). Introduce to the house the legislation referred to the Ways and Means committee in the House of Representatives to be amended and written up.[7] The legislation was introduced by saying that the bill was a top priority for the rest of the year and it was vital to the U.S. agriculture market to have access to a market that accounts for one-fifth of the world's population.[8]

The other crucial point made was the involvement the U.S. needed to help the workers of the People's Republic of China to lead better lives.[9] Congress added some important points into the legislation to make sure that when China entered the World Trade Organization it could be reprimanded for crimes against the workers of the country, and certain markets would be mutually exclusive between the two countries. The People's Republic of China's businesses had to abide by human rights for their workers as stated in the internationally recognized worker rights. To monitor the workers' rights Congress established the Congressional–Executive Commission on the People's Republic of China. The commission was to monitor acts of China which reflect compliance or violation, compile lists of persons believed to be imprisoned, detained, or tortured due to pursuit of their human rights, monitor the development of the rule of law in China, and encourage the development of programs and activities of the U.S. government and private organizations with a goal of increasing the interchange of people and ideas. The committee formed, along with the Office of the United States Trade Representative (USTR), and the International Trade Commission (ITC) was to give an annual report to the President.[7]

Congress believed that they needed to pass a bill that would help the economy stay stimulated if not have a higher growth than at the time.[10] The most productive and trouble-free way to keep the economy growing strong was to outsource and trade more with China. China was to help provide America with superior markets in industry, agriculture, and technology. Congress as whole thought that without these things America would fall behind economically and technologically to some enemies of America.[citation needed] If China did not get support from America they could go to another country that would not be so strict on their treatment of people, and they could use that country to gain access to the WTO. The down side to this was that no markets could provide and receive China's goods like the United States markets could.[8]

The International Trade Commission's report was the determination of China's impacts on United States market, and how those certain disruptions can be remedied or expanded. The ITC was to find what domestic industries were being hurt by the trade and to present how the repair could be made. This was the most important part of the bill for most of the country. The bill breaks down to depending on how the different markets in the U.S. economy are doing it can use China's markets as a catalyst to help stabilize when need be.[clarification needed]

The bill created a stir among Congress and the American people when presented because people did not believe that America could actually do anything to help regulate China's treatment of workers.[11] Aside from people's rights activists many business men believed in the bill to help flourish the different areas of industry. The legislation was passed by the House of Representatives on May 24, 2000 and by the Senate on September 19, 2000. Members of the senate wanted to add in amendments on treating their workers even better than stated in previous legislation, and to make the punishment for breaking the rules greater. Congress was up for re-election that year so due to time constraints all twenty four amendments were rejected. The President signed on Oct 10, 2000 and that day it became Public Law No: 106-286.[7]

US imports from China more than quadrupled between 2000 and 2015, increasing the decline of US manufacturing jobs.[12] Since the passing of the bill there have been three attempts to repeal the PNTR with China. The strongest attempt was in 2005 when House Rep. Bernie Sanders and 61 co-sponsors introduced a legislation that would repeal the Permanent Normal Trade Relations with China. Rep. Sanders said to the house, "anyone who takes an objective look at our trade policy with China must conclude that is an absolute failure and needs to be fundamentally overhauled". The Representative goes into numbers of the trade deficit increased and the number of American jobs being lost to our overseas competitors. One point that Sanders did not make due to time constraints and the legislation being passed so quickly was that nothing in the way China treats its workers has changed.[13]

What's Next In The 'Varsity Blues' Admissions Fraud Case

The sweeping college admissions fraud case brought in Boston this week was unlike any public corruption case ever seen, with an unusual structure that could signal that prosecutors may look for plea deals with some parents while wielding their racketeering chops at trial against those central to the scheme.

re: SHARE/CARE Crisis Intervention Center/ Transitional Housing Proposal 2/16/2018

Good morning Mayor Goodman:

I would like to meet with you regarding my proposal for the development of the "SHARE/CARE" Crisis Intervention Center and transitional housing to be located at the Southeast corner of Foremaster Lane and North Main Street, Downtown Las Vegas.

The partnership that I have formed is comprised highly experienced existing Southern Nevada providers with over fifty (50) years operating experience and is led by my SHARE nonprofit housing corporation.

I believe this is the right project to address ending our homeless problem.

I am available to meet at your convenience and I thnak you.

Proposed new project:
SHARE/CARE 24/7/365 Crisis Intervention Center with special needs housing.

Special needs housing development

Veterans Village Las Vegas is dedicated to the creation of an environment that is home to United States Veterans. This is a unique and innovative approach to holistic and comprehensive housing with 24/7/365 crisis intervention intensive support services. Public and private collaborative partnerships have been created to provide supplies and services to residents including housing, medical, mental health and dental services, employment training, referrals and placements, food pantry/nutrition programs and transportation to the VA Hospital and VA primary care clinics.

Veterans Village Crisis 24/7/365 Intervention Model for Reintegration

Veterans Village Las Vegas is dedicated to the creation of an environment that is home to United States Veterans. This is a unique and innovative approach to holistic and comprehensive housing with intensive support services. Public and private collaborative partnerships have been created to provide supplies and services to residents including housing, medical and mental health services, employment training, referrals and placements, food pantry/nutrition programs and transportation to the VA Hospital and primary care clinics.

The Veterans Village Las Vegas Emergency Housing Fund is the "Safety Net" that is a unique, efficient and effective method to triage and expedite the process to provide housing and intensive supportive services to a United States Veteran. Veterans Village is open 24/7/365 and is able to help take a US Veteran from the streets to housing within hours opposed to weeks and months that it normally takes with the US Department of Veteran Affairs and other housing agencies.

Veterans Village Las Vegas is a "Safety Net" that provides "Bridge Housing" working in collaboration and housing US Veterans with other partner agencies such as The VA, US Vets and HELP USA, housing a Veteran while the bureaucracy takes time to process the Veteran to other housing. This solves a major problem with the elimination of downtime in delivering housing and services.

Veterans Village Las Vegas has its initial residence located at 1150 Las Vegas Blvd. South which is 122 units with a 24/7/365 Crisis Intervention Center and is currently in escrow and its second site to be located at 50 North 21st Street, Downtown Las Vegas and will be a 204 unit residence also containing a 24/7/365 Crisis Intervention Center.

The process of in which a US Veteran is chosen includes a "Triage Interview" of each resident by a Veterans Village Crisis Intervention Specialist, and assessment of the individuals needs and a plan of action which includes housing, job referral, food/nutrition, clothing, medical or mental health access, 12 step meetings, if needed and the comradery of Veterans living with other Veterans.
Case management is provided through partnerships with local collaborating agencies such as WestCare Nevada, HELP of Southern Nevada, US Vets, HELP USA, Workforce Connections, Southern Nevada Mental Health, The US Department of Veterans Affairs an d other nonprofit agencies. Veterans Village Las Vegas has Memorandums of Understandings with agencies that defines the services that are provided the residents. This is another unique partnership that allows Veterans Village to streamline and expedite services without duplicating services that already exist in the community. This delivery of compassionate and intensive service is a one of a kind agency in Southern Nevada and throughout the United States that provides this type of program.

The average length of stay for a resident at Veterans Village Las Vegas is 6 to 18 months depending the individual's situation and plan of action to reenter mainstream society.

The process of housing a U.S Veteran resident at Veterans Village Las Vegas is as follows:

Step #1:

A complete triage of the Veteran is made which includes why the Veteran is homeless, where they are living, what income that they may have and how we can get them comfortable and stabilized.

Step #2:

Once the initial triage is completed, Veterans Village crisis intervention staff may confer and reach out to its partnering agencies who may provide immediate assistance depending on the need which could include emergency suicide prevention, emergency room/urgent care needs, employment and other needs that could arise depending on the individual and the crisis at hand.

Step #3:

Assess the financial situation of the Veterans. Many arrive with no funds and Veterans Village Las Vegas could provide emergency housing assistance, if available and in many cases, provides that gap funding until benefits are restored or vouchers may be available from Veterans Village Las Vegas partners. All methods are explored to prevent the Veteran from going back onto the street. Nobody is ever refused service at Veterans Village Las Vegas 24/7/365. This 24/7/365 crisis intervention process is unique to Veterans Village as the only agency that provides this type of service to our Veterans in the USA.

Step #4

A plan of action is implemented and monitored during the residency at Veterans Village Las Vegas and is monitored by the crisis intervention specialist for the duration of residency.

Step #5

The United States Veteran moves into permanent housing and the Veterans Village Las Vegas mission is accomplished:

Outcome:

Housing our United States Veterans one at a time with respect and dignity.

CARE Complex (Existing Services)
200 Foremaster Lane
Las Vegas, NV 89101
501 C (3), EIN 20-4010647

Program description: The CARE Complex is located in the heart of the downtown homeless corridor and is dedicated to serving the needs of the homeless by offering a unique, holistic approach to providing the resources necessary to help individuals return to productive society. Our approach is to provide quality services to everyone that comes to us for help. We emphasize helping those homeless individuals who truly want to help themselves. We pride ourselves on providing those things necessary for an individual to help themselves. Clients often simply need to reestablish their identity and need such as: birth certificates, state issued identification, social security cards, military DD 214's, graduation certificates (high school, college, GED, proof of specialized training. Additionally we help provide work clothing, showers, hygiene products, a place to receive mail and electronic communication,. CARE also partners with other non-profits by providing an ideally located facility to offer their specialized services to individuals close to where they reside.

People Served: We proudly serve the homeless population residing in the area known as the Homeless Corridor in downtown Las Vegas achieve their goal of employment as a means to end their homelessness.

Intake and Assessment

- Outpatient Substance Abuse Treatment - Men, Women, Adolescents, Spanish-speaking Adults
- Intensive Outpatient Substance Abuse Treatment - Men, Women
- Adolescent Prevention Services
- Adolescent Street Outreach Services
- Adult Re-Entry Services

Crisis stabilization is needed when individuals are at risk of suicide, homicide, or a severe mental health crisis of some kind. Nurses, doctors, and psychiatrists work to assess the client and determine the proper medical course needed to start the stabilization process. They then monitor the individual and refer them to programs and services they will need once stabilized.

When addiction to drugs or alcohol is severe, detoxification may be needed to ensure client safety and avoid complications when usage ends. Particularly in regards to long-term users, quitting may lead to various medical crises. Detoxification units provide a safe method to sobriety with a team of medical professionals monitoring the process. Once complete, clients are then connected to other programs and services for treatment. An example of a program such as this includes: Florida's Guidance Care Center.

Triage centers focus on each client's individual needs and determine a proper course of medical action. From detoxification to crisis stabilization and more, triage provides short-term immediate care and professional assessment. Through collaboration with first responders, social service programs, and government agencies, triage centers provide a better option for individuals in crisis who do not belong in an emergency room. With registered nurses, psychiatrists, and a medical director, clients are given personalized attention for proper stabilization and then connected to further medical services.

SHARE Housing Element

It is proposed that SHARE nonprofit development corporation intends to develop 50 to 75 units of housing at the SEC Foremaster Lane and North Main Street (Site aerial/maps enclosed)

In conclusion, this master plan will add:

- Badly needed housing for individuals in need of transitional housing with intensive supportive services at the heart of the problem.
- This will highly complement the City of Las Vegas “Courtyard Project” which is in development.
- My development team is highly experienced with my having fifty (50) years’ experience planning, developing, constructing, managing and operating 24/7/365 transitional housing in Southern Nevada and across the United States. Please review my bio and Resume which is enclosed.

I would like to meet with you at your earliest convenience to discuss this plan of action and I thank you.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Consumer Financial Services Cos., Prepare For New Dynamic

Appointment of a new, more industry-friendly Consumer Financial Protection Bureau director by President Donald Trump would most likely reduce the number of enforcement actions brought by the bureau. Nevertheless, providers of consumer financial services should not assume that their enforcement risk will disappear along with current CFPB Director Richard Cordray, say attorneys with Mayer Brown LLP.

The Significance Of Landry In Upcoming Lucia Rehearing

It is likely the concerns first raised by D.C. Circuit Judge A. Raymond Randolph in Landry v. Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. regarding the majority's appointments-clause analysis will be on the minds of the court's other judges at the upcoming en banc hearing of Raymond J. Lucia Cos., a case that concerns U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission administrative law judges, says Jovalin Dedaj of Duane Morris LLP.

China's Food Safety System In The Year Of The Rooster

2016 may have been the Year of the Monkey, but Chinese authorities were not monkeying around with the food industry, as they tightened the regulatory reins on China's food safety management system. As the Year of the Rooster begins, multinational firms doing business in China must understand the country's new and revised food laws and regulations, say attorneys and staff at Keller & Heckman LLP.

Data Analytics Now Cost-Effective For Smaller Firms

A recent survey found that nearly two-thirds of Am Law 200 firms are now using data analytics, compared to only about a tenth of regional and boutique firms. Subject: Apr 19, CMS 2016 new Hospital CoPs for Pharmacy and Medication

Good morning,

In 2016, the CMS issued a 45-page memo announcing many changes to the hospital CoP pharmacy standards. It includes changes to ten tag numbers or sections, compounding of medication and beyond use date (BUD), and to bring them into alignment with acceptable standards of practice.

There have also been many changes in the nursing section of the CoPs that address medication usage. This includes changes to timing of medication, self-administered medication, compounding, bloód, and safe opioid use. CMS is now issuing a deficiency report showing when the pharmacy is cited for being out of compliance. Additionally, the CMS interpretive guidelines address pharmacy related standards and medication management, which is not only a significant issue with CMS but also with The Joint Commission. Also, for the first time, CMS has mentioned that nursing needs to be aware of some of the pharmacy standards and vice versa.

Medication error is one of the biggest areas of concern in hospitals today. According to CMS, around 1.9 million inpatients have to suffer from drug related adverse outcomes, which accounts for almost 5% of all readmissions. Around 838,000 outpatients have drug related adverse events. Hospitals that spènd more resources on medication issues generally have lower rates. The stakes have never been higher for hospitals to prevent patient re-admissions.

Join expert speaker Sue Dill Calloway, RN, MSN, JD, in this Live Webinar—"CMS 2016 New Pharmacy and Medication Hospital CoP Standards" on Tuesday, April 19 at 1 pm ET, to identify the top problematic areas in pharmacy standards and medication management and get practical strategies to overcome these problems. Get a better understanding of verbal orders for medication, NS standing orders, order for medications, and policy required by CMS for high risk drugs, and more!

Plus, you'll get 2 AAPC-approved CEUs for attending this 2-hour session!

Session Objectives:

- Why hospitals that receive Medícare/Medicaíd reimbursement must follow the medication guidelines for all patients.
- Identify the CMS requirements on BUD and compounding.
- Comprehend the CMS' various requirements for pharmacy policies and procedures.
- Understand why CMS requires a policy for high risk drugs such as double checks or dose limits.
- How to locate the CMS Manual?

- New and revised standards, regulations, and laws put forth by CMS, TJC and the federal government.
- Review the CMS 45 page memo regarding pharmacy and medication changes. Also, understand the final changes.
- Discuss the standardization of prescribing and communication practices.

Session Agenda:

- Pharmaceutical services requirements
- Common problematic pharmacy standards
- Standards of care
- Recent CMS memos: safe injection practices, infection control breaches, luer misconnections, insulin pens
- Meeting the needs of patients
- Condition or standard level deficiencies
- Required policies and procedures
- Dispensing and administration of medications
- Pharmacy personnel requirements
- Monitoring effects of medications
- Compounding of drugs

Federal authorities wound up arresting eight members of the Rise Above Movement, and five of them have since pleaded guilty to federal riot charges. This summer, FBI Director Christopher Wray testified that, over the last nine months, the bureau’s domestic terrorism investigations had led to 90 arrests, many of them involving white supremacists. And in recent weeks, there have been additional arrests: a Las Vegas man said to be affiliated with Atomwaffen and a young man in Chicago affiliated with Patriot Front, another white supremacist group.

The federal authorities confront a Neo-Nazi group that ProPublica and Frontline have been covering for years.

The activity concerning the threat of white racists has gone beyond arrests. There have been a variety of proposals making their way through Congress aimed at creating federal criminal statutes that might make prosecuting domestic terrorism threats more effective. The FBI Agents Association has supported new laws.

We went back to German, a fellow with the Brennan Center for Justice's Liberty and National Security Program and the author of the forthcoming book "Disrupt, Discredit, and Divide: How the New FBI Damages Democracy," to inquire about the significance of the seeming burst of enforcement efforts.

Disrupt, Discredit, and Divide | The New Press

The FBI, made aware of German's observations and arguments, declined to comment, but it provided a link to recent testimony by bureau officials before Congress.

Testimony | Federal Bureau of Investigation

Testimony

There have been a handful of arrests of alleged white supremacists in recent weeks. What do you make of them? A temporary reaction to the El Paso, Texas, massacre? Evidence of a deeper commitment by the FBI? Coincidence?

First, the arrests of several white nationalists allegedly planning acts of violence since the El Paso attack demonstrate beyond question that the FBI has all the authority it needs to act proactively against white supremacist violence. Claims from the FBI Agents Association and other current and former Justice Department officials that the government needs new laws to target this violence are false. I worked successful domestic terrorism undercover operations against white supremacists in the 1990s, and no one ever suggested we didn't have all the authority we needed.

It is hard to know if these arrests mark a new increase in attention to far-right violence because the Justice Department doesn't keep reliable data about how many investigations and prosecutions it conducts against white supremacists. It sometimes categorizes them as domestic terrorism, other times as hate crimes or even gang crimes, obscuring the true scope of the violence they inflict on our society. And since the Justice Department defers the investigation and prosecution of hate crimes to state and local law enforcement, the FBI doesn't even know how many people white supremacists kill each year.

The Justice Department and FBI de-prioritize the investigation and prosecution of far-right violence as a matter of policy, not a lack of authority. These recent cases are a result of increased public pressure to do something about these crimes. But the Justice Department and FBI have done nothing to amend their policies that de-prioritize the investigation of white supremacist crimes. Maintaining public pressure and focusing on changing the biases that drive these policies is essential to forcing a change in priorities at these agencies.

At least two of the arrests appear to have involved a certain infiltration of white hate groups online. Noteworthy? Overdue?

Many researchers have suggested that the internet fuels white nationalist violence and therefore suppression of these online communities is necessary. But white supremacists have been killing people in this country for more than a 100 years before the internet was created. They use the internet more to communicate today than 20 years ago, just like all the rest of us do, but that doesn't mean there is more violence. In fact, as the recent cases suggest, internet communications make them far easier to track and infiltrate, so it is more a boost to law enforcement more than to violent militants.

But mass monitoring of social media for clues isn't an effective strategy, as there are far more people expressing racist ideas online than committing violence. The FBI would be very busy chasing down false leads, which would only dull the response. Instead, the FBI and other law enforcement agencies should work from reasonable criminal predicates. Where there is objectively credible evidence that someone is planning to do harm they should act. The number of homicides in the U.S. has fallen significantly since the 1980s and 1990s, but so has the clearance rate. Even though there are fewer homicides now, fewer are being solved. I think it is because we are spending so much time and resources on suspicion-less surveillance and intelligence gathering rather than traditional evidence-based law enforcement tactics.

There is a variety of proposed legislation aimed at creating more specific federal domestic terrorism statutes. Worthy? Wrongheaded?

Congress shouldn't pass broad new laws or stiffer penalties, as there are already dozens of federal statutes outlawing domestic terrorism, hate crimes and organized violent crime that carry significant sentences. There are bills that demand better data collection by the Justice Department, which would reveal where counterterrorism resources should be devoted and where they are being wasted. This is the better approach. Proper policies can't be developed without a better understanding of the crime problem.

In the meantime, Congress should explore mechanisms to fund and implement community-led restorative justice practices that would redress the communal injuries hate crimes are designed to inflict. White supremacists try to intimidate and marginalize the communities they attack. Making sure these communities are cared for, protected and supported after an attack frustrates that goal. More policing isn't always the right answer, and certainly not the only one.

© Provided by Pro Publica, Inc.There was recently news coverage of leaked FBI threat assessments listing the promotion of an array of political conspiracy theories as a domestic menace. What did you make of that?

The FBI intelligence assessment declaring conspiracy theorists a domestic terrorism threat should worry all of us. It had a line defining conspiracy theorists as those who do not hold the "official" or "prevailing" view on a particular topic. Given that the intelligence community has often been the promoter of false narratives, particularly about the lawfulness of its own conduct, giving them license to target people who disagree with the "official" view is chilling. It is basically a declaration that the government will treat dissent as dangerous.

There was a recent case that has to puzzle the public. A Coast Guard lieutenant was arrested with guns and a target list of politicians and others, and held on firearms charges. At least one federal magistrate thought he deserved bail because the government had failed to provide evidence of terrorist acts and the simple gun charges didn't merit him being held without bail. A judge overturned the magistrate and kept the lieutenant held. All that can be hard to follow for an American public concerned about safeguarding its rights and its citizens. Thoughts?

It's difficult to talk about cases that have not yet gone to trial because there is little information available outside the government's allegations, which haven't been proven yet. But there are some principles of our legal system that should be applied in all cases, including this one, even though we seem to have moved far from them over the years. First, people are innocent until proven guilty. That means, absent government evidence that a defendant poses a threat to the public or to abscond, that person should be released until trial, and bond should only be used to guarantee appearance. Of course, many people with allegations that seem less serious than those against the Coast Guard officer don't receive bond, but that is a question for those judges and prosecutors, not the ones involved in this case.

Obviously the government initially failed to present evidence that justified pretrial confinement, so based on the charged conduct the judge considered bond. This result should happen more often, not less. When the government got its act together, added charges and presented evidence of a potential threat to the public, the judge ordered him held. The burden is on the government and shouldn't be met through sensationalized press releases but through reasonable evidence presented in court.

Second, prosecutors can only charge people with crimes they committed, not crimes the government thinks they might commit in the future. Lots of people stockpile weapons in this country. And if keeping a creepy diary is against the law, plenty of people will go to jail. Where the government has evidence that laws were broken, they have the power to act, which — ironically given the hyperbolic news coverage of this incident — they did here. The officer was arrested and is being prosecuted for crimes the government alleges he committed, so there seems to be no problem.

The Justice Department seems to have tried to make this into a test case for demanding new authorities, even though prosecutors obviously had enough evidence to address the threat. Compare this case to the Larry Hopkins case in New Mexico. There the FBI received a tip in 2017 that a formerly incarcerated felon who was the "commander" of a border militia group that harassed migrants was also planning to assassinate Hillary Clinton, George Soros and Barack Obama. The FBI went to Hopkins' trailer and recovered nine firearms he was not permitted to own due to his previous felony convictions, which included weapons charges and impersonating a police officer. The FBI did not arrest Hopkins and instead let him continue to operate with his militia group for 18 months, harassing migrants in the desert, until a video of his group pointing weapons at a group of migrants they detained went viral and sparked public outrage. Only then did the FBI take action.

Comparing the two cases, the FBI had much more significant evidence of potential dangerousness from Hopkins than from the Coast Guard officer, yet they took no action against Hopkins. I think they saw the Coast Guard officer's case as a ready-made scandal near D.C. that they could sensationalize to pressure Congress into passing a broad new domestic terrorism law. Obviously, they already had enough authority to arrest him on the drug and weapons charge, and his possession of illegal silencers. So there was no lack of authority to arrest him in the first place. It was a manufactured scandal.

What, if anything, is different today than two summers ago in Charlottesville concerning the threat of white supremacists and the government's response at all levels to it?

I think the violence in Charlottesville was a wake-up call for everyone. The media finally recognized that white supremacists were engaging in terrorism, too. The level of violence these far-right groups inflict has been persistent over time, but studies show that the media gave terrorist acts perpetrated by Muslims 350% more coverage than violence committed by other terrorists. The increased reporting post-Charlottesville eventually caused policymakers to take notice, which in turn compelled the FBI and Justice Department to begin to take these crimes more seriously. The media coverage drives public perception, which causes policymakers to act. It remains to be seen whether they react in a way that improves the situation and builds a more inclusive society, or makes it worse by giving law enforcement broad powers to continue targeting marginalized communities agitating for civil rights and changes in government policies

A labor of love from the public... This raises more questions about the inception of the FBI Division by one J. Edgar Hoover. More cover up by the FBI? Partial you say? The good cop, dirty cop concept in law enforcement? Nepotism at the inception of the FBI in 1929 by one J. Edgar Hoover and that of former US President Herbert Hoover? Were these men white supremacists? KKK? Does this same ideology spill over into the civil rights era of the 1950's and 1960's and assassinations of African American civil rights leaders? Do white race supremacists and black race supremacists associate themselves in private meetings? Is this done through surveillance and reporting to the FBI? To the CIA? Would this other arm of the law namely the KKK (KKK associated to Nazi War Criminal Joseph Dietrich - Gestapo police?) get all this information that is also reported to the FBI? Is this of the "classified" secret files contained within the FBI division? In the US military? NSA? Black Ops?
Did we find the woodpile of supremacists?

Appearance

A coming into court by a party to a suit, either in person or through an attorney, whether as plaintiff or defendant. The formalproceeding by which a defendant submits to the jurisdiction of the court. The voluntary submission to a court's jurisdiction.

In a criminal prosecution, an appearance is the initial court proceeding in which a defendant is first brought before a judge.The conduct of a n appearance is governed by state and federal rules of Criminal Procedure. The rules vary from state tostate, but they are generally consistent. During an appearance, the judge advises the defendant of t he charges and of thedefendant's rights, considers bail or other conditions of release, and schedules a Preliminary Hearing. If the crime chargedis a misdemeanor, the defendant may sometimes, depending on the local rules of court, enter a plea of guilty or not guilty atthe initial appearance; if the crime is a felony, the defendant usually enters the plea at a later court proceeding. A criminaldefe ndant may have an attorney present and may confer with the attorney during the appearance.

In some situations, a defendant may not need to appear in court in person and may even make an appearance by mail. Forexample, when i ndividuals receive traffic tickets they may choose to send in a check for the amount of the fine.

Many state statutes permit appearances to be made by two-way, closed-circuit television. For instance, North Carolina's ruleon video appearances reads:

> A first appearance in a noncapital case may be conducted by an audio and video transmission between thejudge and defend ant in which the parties can see and hear each other. If the defendant has counsel, thedefendant shall be allowed to commun icate fully and confidentially with his attorney during the proceeding(N.C. Gen. Stat. § 15A-601(a1)[1994]).

An appearance is also a coming into court as a party to a civil lawsuit. Although an appearance can be made by either the plaintiff (the one who has sued) or the defendant (the one being sued), the term most often refers to the action of thedefendant.

The subject of appearance is closely related to the subject of Personal Jurisdiction, which is the court's authority over anindividual party. An appearance is some Overt Act by which the defendant comes before the court to either submit to orchallenge the court's jurisdiction.

Any party can appear either in person or through an attorney or a duly authorized representative; the party need not bephysically present. I n most instances, an attorney makes the appearance. An appearance can also be made by filing a noticeof appearance with the clerk of the court and the plaintiff, which states that the defendant will either submit to the authority ofthe court or challenge its jurisdiction. In a lawsuit i nvolving multiple defendants, an appearance by one is not an appearancefor the others. Valid Service of Process is not required before an appearance can be made.

Historically, appearances have been classified with a variety of names indicating their manner or significance. A *compulsory*appearance is c ompelled by process served on the party. A conditional appearance is coupled with conditions as to itsbecoming or being taken as a genera l appearance (defined later in this article). A corporal appearance indicates that theperson is physically present in court. A de bene esse (La tin, "of well being," sufficient for the present) appearance isprovisional and will remain good only upon a future contingency. A gratis (Latin, " free" or "freely") appearance is made by aparty to the action before the service of any process or legal notice to appear. An optional appear ance is entered by a personwho is intervening in the action to protect his or her own interests, though not joined as a party. A subsequent a ppearance ismade by a defendant after an appearance has already been entered for him or her by the plaintiff. Finally, a *voluntary*appearan ce is entered by a party's own will or consent, without service of process, although process might be outstanding.

The two most common categories of appearances are general and special.

General Appearance

Any action by which the defendant recognizes the jurisdiction of the court constitutes a general appearance. This is anunqualified submissio n to the court's personal jurisdiction over the defendant and is treated as the equivalent of a validservice of process.

By making a general appearance, the defendant agrees that the court has the power to bind her or him by its actions andwaives the right to raise any jurisdictional defects (e.g., by claiming that the service of process was improper). The defendantalso waives the objection that the case is brought in the wrong venue. The defendant does not, however, waive anysubstantive rights or defenses, such as the claim that the court lacks jurisdiction over the subject matter of the case orauthority to hear the particular type of case (e.g., a Bankruptcy court will not h ear personal injury cases).

Special Appearance

A special appearance is one made for a limited purpose. It can be made, for example, to challenge the sufficiency of theservice of process. But most often, a special appearance is made to challenge the court's personal jurisdiction over thedefendant. It prevents a default judgmen t from being rendered against the defendant for failing to file a Pleading. (A defaultjudgment is an automatic loss for failing to answer the co mplaint properly.)

When a defendant makes a special appearance, no other issues may be raised without that appearance's becoming ageneral appearance. If a party takes any action dealing with the merits of the case, the party is deemed to have made ageneral appearance and submitted to the jurisdiction of the court.

If a challenge is successful and the court agrees that it does not have personal jurisdiction over the defendant, it will dismissthe action. If th e court finds against the defendant on that issue, that decision can later be appealed.

The right to make a special appearance is almost universally recognized, except where abolished by statute. As a rule, leaveof court (permi ssion) must be obtained before a special appearance can be made, but this is not always the case.

Federal Rules

Federal courts and states that have adopted the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure have eliminated the distinction between ageneral and a s pecial appearance. Instead of challenging the court's personal jurisdiction in a special appearance, adefendant can do so by use of a pretria l motion to dismiss the Cause of Action, or in an answer to the complaint. A removalproceeding, in which a defendant asks to have the case moved from state court to feder al court, is regarded as a specialappearance.

Limited Appearance

In a number of states, a defendant in a lawsuit based on Quasi in Rem Jurisdiction may make a limited appearance. Quasiin rem is a Latin phrase for a type of jurisdiction in which the court has power over the defendant's property because it lieswithin the geographic boundaries of the court's jurisdiction. The presence of the property gives the court jurisdiction over theperson of the defendant. To invoke quasi in rem jurisdiction, the court must find some connection between the property andthe subject matter of the lawsuit.

A limited appearance enables a defendant to defend the action on the merits, but should the defendant lose, he or she will beheld liable onl y up to the value of the identified property and not for all possible damages. A defendant who makes a limitedappearance and wins the cas e can be sued again by the same plaintiff in a different court.

In states that have no provision for a limited appearance, a defendant can avoid being subject to the personal jurisdiction ofthe court by refu sing to appear, thereby causing a default and a consequent Forfeiture of the property. Or the defendant cansubmit to the court's personal j urisdiction, defend the case on its merits, and face the possibility of full liability. The defendantmust decide which course of action is best, af ter comparing the value of the seized property with the damages being soughtby the plaintiff and considering the likelihood of winning the c ase at trial.

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure do not provide for limited appearances in federal court but instead defer to state law onthat issue. A sli ghtly greater number of courts permit limited appearances than do not. The law of the jurisdiction in which theaction is brought must be con sulted to determine whether limited appearances are permitted.

Withdrawal

If an appearance has been entered through Fraud or mistake or after the plaintiff's complaint has been materially amended,the discretion of the court may permit the appearance to be withdrawn. A proper withdrawal is treated as if no appearance atall had been entered in the cas e. A defendant who has withdrawn a general appearance may ask the court for leave to file aspecial appearance to challenge the court's jur isdiction.

If someone makes an unauthorized appearance on behalf of the defendant, it may be stricken or set aside by a motion of anyparty with an i nterest in the proceeding.

Delay or Failure to Appear

A defendant who fails to appear in court pursuant to a service of process might have a default judgment entered against heror him and be h eld in Contempt of court. A failure to appear does not, however, result in a waiver of objections to the court'sjurisdiction.

If a defendant fails to make an appearance in the time allotted by statute or court rules, he or she may lose certain rights. Butif the circumst ances warrant it, a court may extend the time of appearance.

Emotional Abuse May Be Just as Harmful to Children as Physical Abuse

Emotional abuse -- such as ridicule, intimidation, rejection, and humiliation -- may be just as damaging to a child as physical abuse and neglect, according to a recent McGill University study. Researchers found that the two types of abuse activate the same areas of the brain and contribute to many of the same long-term consequences. "These consequences are wide-ranging and include everything from anxiety and depression to rule-breaking and aggression," says David Vachon, lead author.

Supreme Court Won't Reverse 4th Circ.'s NC Voter ID Ruling

The U.S. Supreme Court on Wednesday declined to reinstate portions of North Carolina's voter identification law after the Fourth Circuit ruled that the legislation targeted black voters with near "surgical precision."

2nd Circ. Vacates $655M Jury Award For Terror Attack Victims

The Second Circuit on Wednesday overturned a $655 million Anti-Terrorism Act judgment against the Palestinian Authority and Palestinian Liberation Organization in a suit claiming they rewarded and promoted employees who engaged in violence against Americans, saying a New York federal court didn't have general jurisdiction.

Calif. Gov. Vetoes Pro Bono Requirement For Bar Entry

California Democratic Gov. Jerry Brown has rejected a bill that would have required law school graduates to log at least 50 hours of pro bono work before joining the state bar, reasoning that the mandate would be an additional burden to law students already dealing with high tuition and shaky employment prospects.

Financial Planning Coalition Argues For DOL Fiduciary Rule

A coalition of financial planning industry groups urged a Texas federal judge Wednesday to end a challenge to a U.S. Department of Labor rule that requires more retirement account advisers to act in their clients' best interests, saying the regulation will not harm the industry.

Ex-Sen. Levin Slams IRS Over Apple's $14.5B Irish Tax Bill

Following the European Commission's finding that Apple owes €13 billion ($14.5 billion) in back taxes to Ireland, former U.S. Sen. Carl Levin denounced both Apple and the Internal Revenue Service, saying Tuesday that the revenue agency has let the software giant get away with avoiding taxes on American soil.

Calif. Pols Make Last-Ditch Effort To Pass State Bar Fee Bill

With just hours left on the clock, California lawmakers were still unable as of Wednesday evening to get a bar funding bill on the extent of reforms needed for the embattled organization through political gridlock.

3 Takeaways From FDA's Off-Label Forum Plan

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration's surprise announcement Wednesday of a two-day forum on its oversight of off-label promotion contained intriguing glimpses into the agency's thinking and suggests that policy changes may still be a ways off, experts say. Here are three takeaways from the announcement.

Banks To Stay On Edge Despite Feds' Laundering Assurances

Federal regulators are trying to reassure banks that the ongoing push against money laundering activity does not mean banks should automatically drop relationships with foreign financial institutions just to avoid strict compliance measures, but those words are unlikely to soothe private institutions' concerns without concrete policy changes and similar assurances from New York regulators, experts say.

CORRECTED: Texas Political Sign Regulation Limits Speech, Court Rules

Texas is contemplating its next step after a state appeals court struck down portions of a law that allowed the state to regulate signs along the highway on Friday, holding that parts of the Texas Highway Beautification Act of 1972 dealing with political signs restricts free speech in violation of the First Amendment. Correction: An earlier version of this story too narrowly described the portions of the law struck by the Supreme Court. The court struck all content-based restrictions from the Act, not just those related to political signage. The error has been corrected.

Berger Singerman Adds Veteran Fla. GC In Tallahassee

Florida firm Berger Singerman LLP has added a 20-year veteran of state government and most recently general counsel at the Florida Office of Financial Regulation to its government and regulatory practice team in Tallahassee, the firm announced Thursday.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Why Congress Should Quickly Re-Up 2 Small Biz Programs

Despite bipartisan efforts, the future is uncertain for the by all accounts highly successful Small Business Innovative Research and Small Business Technology Transfer programs. These programs provide valuable research funding to companies with good ideas but little capital, and Congress' failure to reauthorize would be an unfortunate mistake, says Tina Reynolds of Morrison & Foerster LLP.

Automated Cars Are Here While Regulators Remain En Route

In response to the rapid development of automated vehicles and the potential lack of National Highway Traffic Safety Administration authority to cope with the new technology, the NHTSA has undertaken expeditious and unconventional efforts toward releasing guidance by the end of the summer. This timetable has caused a ruckus of speculation and miscommunication, say Mike Nelson and Jim Siliman of Sutherland Asbill & Brennan LLP.

OSHA's Insufficient Approach To Improving Workplace Safety

Recently the Occupational Safety and Health Administration has promulgated new regulations and interpretations to expand its enforcement authority. However, its punitive approach to improving workplace safety and health has negatively impacted employers' views of the agency and is at best ineffective and at worst a significant waste of time, money and resources, say attorneys at Keller and Heckman LLP.

Banks Must Prepare To Change Common Pay Practices

Earlier this year, six federal regulatory agencies proposed regulations that would expand the scope of existing restrictions on incentive compensation at banks and other financial institutions. These changes are likely to have unfavorable tax and accounting consequences and would thwart standard equity compensation programs, says Mark Jones of Pillsbury Winthrop Shaw Pittman LLP.

CAB Rules Won't Get Private Funds To Their Destination

While the final "capital acquisition broker" rules recently approved by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission offer an intriguing alternative to the traditional private fund placement agent model, many private fund sponsors likely will find them too restrictive to serve their needs, say attorneys with Sutherland Asbill & Brennan LLP.

California's 'Made In The USA' Law: 1 Year Later

One year ago — on Sept. 1, 2015 — California Governor Jerry Brown signed into law a long-awaited amendment to the state's "Made in the USA" statute. While some hoped it would dissuade plaintiffs, these claims continue, much to retailers' chagrin. Luckily, courts in several recent cases have granted motions to dismiss, say attorneys with Sedgwick LLP.

NY Clean Energy Order: Unfair To Small Hydro Facilities?

A recent order from the New York Public Service Commission involving the implementation of a large-scale renewable energy program is yet another reminder that state or federal regulatory policies can interfere with wholesale competitive electricity markets with potentially unforeseen economic consequences, says Richard Drom of Eckert Seamans Cherin & Mellott LLC.

Demand for legal associates is high these days, yet the hiring market remains competitive, according to industry experts who say successful associates will carve out a niche for themselves in growing practice areas and make themselves indispensable to both their firm and their clients.

The Top In-House Hires Of August

S&P picks up a general counsel from the energy industry, Macy's nabs Office Depot's top lawyer, and several outside counsels go in-house to take full-time jobs with clients. Those hires top the in-house moves you should know about.

Chadbourne Partner Hits Firm With $100M Gender Bias Action

A media and consumer protection partner hit Chadbourne & Parke LLP Wednesday with a $100 million proposed class action lawsuit in New York on behalf of all female partners at the law firm, alleging the firm's male-centric culture results in gender disparity in pay and bonuses.

Majority Of Law Firms Increasing Tech Budgets, Survey Says

More than half of law firms increased the percentage of their budgets dedicated to technology between 2015 and 2016, and security management continues to be firms' biggest challenge in terms of internet technology, a new survey released by the International Legal Technology Association said.

Venable Privacy Pro To Become Firm Chairman In 2017

Day Pitney Partner To Join Fed. Bankruptcy Court In Conn.

A Day Pitney LLP partner will assume his new role as a U.S. bankruptcy judge for Connecticut on Thursday after practicing bankruptcy and restructuring law for more than 30 years, replacing a judge who recently retired and returned to private practice after decades of service, the firm announced.

Rainmaker Q&A: Sheppard Mullin's Richard Simmons

Being unafraid to "sell" by candidly describing your skills without going over the line is a talent. Having great Lakers seats at center court has never hurt either, says Richard Simmons, partner at Sheppard Mullin Richter & Hampton LLP.

Rainmaker Q&A: Kluger Kaplan's Alan Kluger

A common denominator in all successful attorney-client relationships is the ability to transcend the "traditional" attorney role and become one of the client's most trusted advisers. These kinds of relationships cannot be manufactured but rather take years to cultivate, says Alan Kluger, a founding member of Kluger Kaplan Silverman Katzen & Levine PL.

Reconciling The Practice With The Business Of Law

The tension between practicing law and managing the firm is giving way to the realization that the latter had been largely overlooked, meagerly funded, and often underappreciated, says Dr. James Bailey, a professor at George Washington University School of Business and the keynote speaker at the Legal Marketing Association Southeast conference in September.

I really hate those type of special treatment, especially if you not filipino and low rank, they will treat you like crap.

- Status: Resolved
- Answers: 4

The Supply Corps ratings in the USN are still very heavily represented by Filipinos. It began a century ago when the Navy was racially segregated and Filipinos had to be in ratings as cooks or stewards. Now it continues because of family traditions and the fact the most supply ratings don't need a clearance, so you don't need to be a native born US citizen. If you control the food, parts, stores and services you wield a lot of power. The Filipinos stick together and often vote as a bloc on things like SOY boards to support their Sailors. A Filipino Senior or Master Chief can exercise almost 'tribal' power over more junior Filipino Sailors and have personal luxuries and perks beyond even the Commanding Officer like having special snacks or even meals made for him, uniforms tailored, shoes shined, food delivered, wake up service, etc. It is just a very different culture. Sailors outside of that culture sometimes see something crazy like, "How'd those guys get Ben and Jerry's 5 months into the Persian Gulf?" and the answer is, "It's the Filipino Mafia."

if they really did had such things as special treatment and "only look out for themselves" i can kind of understand. if you're an american and you went to another country, you would mostlikely find whites like you and band together. still i think special treatment is wrong but i think it is understandable

Companies Should Avoid The BigLaw Bonus Structure

Since passage of the Trump tax plan last year, companies have been touting bonuses they've handed down to rank-and-file employees. This highlights the trend of employers favoring bonuses over pay raises in the belief that variable, short-term rewards are less risky to the business than permanent increases in labor costs. But law firms have been using this strategy for years — and there are dangers, says Michael Moradzadeh of Rimon PC. Read more »

DAYS UNTIL THE GREATEST LEGISLATIVE SESSION EVER BEGINS: 7

DAYS UNTIL THE STATE GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN: 156

DAYS UNTIL THE NEVADA PRESIDENTIAL CAUCUS (FOR NOW): 375

DAYS UNTIL THE 2016 ELECTION: 652

Good morning, everyone. After reading all of the stuff in the weekend papers, and comments from my broad range of weekly insiders, I really wonder why we are paying attention to what can only be called The Failure Caucus, Not to diminish real terrorism, but these folks – Tony Dane, Citizen Outhouse, Michele of the Thousand Tax Liens – are nothing more than political terrorists, who are relentlessly unsuccessful but have loud enough voices to keep being heard. These folks threatening recalls, which almost never work and are being used against people (John Hambrick, Chris Edwards) who have not even cast a vote yet, are simply about the politics of fear and destruction – and they are not very good at it. Indeed, these are the same people who promoted Elizabeth Halseth as a great conservative, failed in numerous primaries last cycle and brought us Lt. Gov. Sue Lowden. Why should we take them seriously? Is being blindly against tax increases an ideology or an idiocy? Shouldn't they have to accomplish something, anything?

I know that everyone – myself included – wants to make 2015 into 2003. And there are undoubtedly similarities: GOP governor tries new tax and largest increase in history against vocal minority in Legislature and with no-pay businesses wanting to continue to not pay. But Michele Fiore is not Bob Beers and neither has 12 votes nor does she have the ability to accomplish anything. That doesn't mean the BLT can't be blocked or will be. But the only way this follows the same trajectory as 12 years ago is if The Failure Caucus is given sustenance and if Gov. Brian Sandoval doesn't use his political capital and immense charm. The situation in Nevada's educational system is much worse than it was in '03, too, so those who want to tear down what's left of it for attention and power should have to explain what their plan is. The only way for the terrorists to win is to not show the hollowness of their religion, call them what they are and ensure that bad behavior is punished. Thus endeth the morning rant.

What's below: Insiders look at session, Anthony's moment or demise, GOP agenda items listed and a trivia question about a potent Nevada pol.

COMING UP

Senate Minority Leader Harry Reid has eye surgery today. I don't care how tough he is; surgery on an eye has to be a bit scary. Best of luck, senator.

Filing for city offices opens this week – END OFF-YEAR MUNI ELECTIONS!

One week until the vote for speaker on the floor, and The Greatest Session Ever Begins.

A LOOK FROM THE INSIDE

If you are not a premium subscriber or not stealing log-ins and violating about 27 federal laws, you missed some great insight for a large and broad group of insiders on the upcoming session. I induced some to list who the most likely taxing Republicans might be, even though it is way too early to tell. And there were some priceless comments, including a Top 10 list for Michele of The Thousand Tax Liens and her fixation on psychotropic drugs.

On the sales tax on services, which is the most unpopular tax and not a tax on business at all, this was the best comment:

“Isn't it ironic the wealthiest business owners are the loudest critics of every business tax plan? And the loudest supporters of the sales tax on services? You know why? THEY DONT PAY IT! It is a total pass though tax on consumers. Duh. “

Here’s economist John Restrepo on the sales tax on services, which should be called the SOS, as in a desperate cry for help from the business folks.

Some agreed with Steve Sebelius, but no one thinks the nomenclature affects the two-thirds because that’s a non-issue: “In the end they will get a tax plan, it will just not look like anything currently in print.”

And I loved this: "How is M.C. Hammer broke, yet someone has money for a recall effort against Hambrick, et al? I couldn’t get someone to invest in my brilliant idea of doggie rollerblades, yet this PAC has tens of thousands of dollars? Maybe Marx was right. Capitalism is totally unfair."

The question is how can the secretary of state ignore these obvious conduit contributions. If she does, that mean any consultant can simply take a bunch of money, form a PAC, contribute to it in his or her name and hide large sums. Barbara Cegavske may be a smart ALEC, but she won’t let that happen, right?

CAROLYN’S WATERLOO OR STAVROS’ WINDMILL

I’m not surprised that soccer stadium foe claim they will qualify their petition, even at the higher 8,000-plus number. They claim to have 11,098; with a 75 percent verification rate, they would make it. But so many people who live in the unincorporated county think they live in the city, so that still might not be enough. You never know what a court will do in Nevada, but the lawsuit to reduce the number seems quixotic. Even though the city handled this abysmally, lawyers I know think the letter of the law indicates the higher number is correct, even if an argument could be made for the lower one.

Even if it doesn’t make the ballot, the issue helps Stavros Anthony in the mayor’s race. Enough to be competitive against The Family? Many insiders I talk to think it could, especially with the video of Queen Carolyn berating a voter at that town hall (it’s on my site) and if the turnout is low. But the queen’s team knows how to raise money and The Family has never lost a race. And if she loses, that could really throw a wrench into the mayoral succession plan of Ross, then Eric and then the grandkids…..

TO THE VICTOR GO….

As I told a group of progressives on Saturday and said in my Gazette-Journal column, these folks need to face facts: They lost. So many items will get hearings that have long been on the GOP’s agenda, including many labor-management issues that the Democrats’ fealty to unions has squelched in previous sessions. The addition of policy wonk Geoff Lawrence as the Ass. GOP Caucus’ brain also ensures this will happen. Labor lawyer Mark Ricciardi has a good list of items that will come up.

FLASH FACTS OF THE DAY

As a generalization, western Nevada would flood in the Spring from melted snow runoff from the Sierra Nevada mountains, and then for the rest of the year receive insufficient precipitation to sustain a significant agriculture industry. While he was still the US Representative for Nevada in Congress, Francis Newlands, on January 26, 1901, introduced the bill that would from then on be associated with his name. Newlands sponsored and authored what would become the Reclamation Act of 1902, often referred to as the Newlands Act. The Reclamation Act was passed by the US Congress and signed by President Theodore Roosevelt on June 17, 1902 (the bill was actually introduced while President McKinley was still in office. McKinley was killed on September 14, 1901.). The Act established a Reclamation Service, which was formed in July of 1902 under the US Geological Survey's Division of Hydrography, and later became the Bureau of Reclamation. The original bill was opposed by representatives in the eastern US, though were appeased somewhat as funding for the bill did not come from the National Treasury, but from the sale and use of public lands in the states that would benefit. The title of the Act read “An Act Appropriating the receipts from the sale and disposal of public lands in certain States and Territories to the construction of irrigation works for the reclamation of arid lands” .The Act also required each of the participating states to establish a department to collaborate with the Reclamation Service. Nevada created the position of State Engineer as part of the Irrigation Act during the 1903 legislative session, in accordance to the Reclamation Act. Nevada's first State Engineer was A E Chandler. One of the first duties of the new State Engineer was essentially to take an inventory of water resources and their uses (aka pre-statutory vested water rights). Among the first five projects, as recommended by Charles D. Walcott, Director of the US Geological Survey on March 7, 1903, was one for Nevada – the Newlands Project. The Newlands project helped irrigate 57,000 acres of land in Churchill, Lyon, Storey and Washoe Counties, in the Truckee River and Carson River basins and included the Derby Diversion Dam, Truckee Canals, and Carson River Diversion Dam. The Truckee-Carson Irrigation District was established in 1918 and was charged with administering the Newlands Project, which includes "the dam at Lake Tahoe, Derby Dam, the Truckee Canal, Lahontan Dam and approximately 380 miles of canals and 345 miles of drains." The construction of Hoover Dam on the Colorado River between southern Nevada and northwestern Arizona also fell under the Reclamation Act. Francis Newlands was elected in 1902 to the US Senate representing Nevada. He served in that office until his death in 1917. Many of his peers delivered Memorial Addresses in Congress praising Senator Newlands for his crowning achievement and vision in managing inland water resources in the western US.

"This country owes a debt of gratitude to Francis G Newlands that can be paid only by completing the great work to which his life was devoted. His vision of nature's devastating forces conquered and controlled, of deserts reclaimed by irrigation and swamps by drainage, and valleys defended against onrushing floods, of forests safeguarded against fires, of grass and trees made to grow over millions of acres where none grew before, of winter floods harnessed to float water-borne commerce in summer and furnish power to industry, of waterways aiding railways to meet growing transportation needs, of the Nation's greatest asset, its unused and now wasted waters, fully conserved and utilized for food production, power, and navigation, was a vision of benefactions to future generations that will guide and inspire all who hereafter may labor for its fulfillment." – National Reclamation Association, Memorial to Senator Francis Newlands, 1917.

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

Today is the birthdate of one of the most powerful Nevada politicians in history. He also lost in one of the greatest upsets in Nevada history. What two elected positions did he hold, and who did he lose to?

Friday's winner: Attorney Pete Bernhard

The question: On this date 11 years ago, two men were granted gaming licenses who set a record for Nevada. Who were they, and what was the record?

The answer: Tim Poster and Tom Breitling, youngest licensees

MOVIE TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE WEEK

My old pal Howard Stutz was first on this one: Name the actor and the movies: He played a heist leader in a remake; he kills someone in the final scene of an Oscar-winning movie; he played a porn star; he starred in a film by the creator of a cartoon TV series. The answer: Mark Wahlberg in "The Italian Job," "The Departed," "Boogie Nights" and "Ted."

Mayor Goodman,
Thank you for your reply to my last email. It means a great deal to me to know that I wasn't writing in vain, although knowing that you and your beloved pets too have suffered and continue to suffer, doesn't make me any happier.
Your description of your own neighborhood over the years just confirms my own belief that the only solution is to implement a ban on fireworks in city neighborhoods. It has been done in many other cities as I have discovered via the Internet. I can only assume that you or our city and state representatives would know how to go about putting a ban in place. I only know how to teach and play the cello.
This is an excerpt from an article I read concerning the banning of fireworks:

"Fireworks are a symbol of freedom for many, but for others they are a nuisance. The latter sentiment seems to be an increasingly dominant perspective.

A bevy of Washington communities have banned fireworks, with a considerable number around Puget Sound in recent years. There was a string of bans in the '90s when Seattle, Bellevue, Everett and Redmond were among many to nix the tradition. In 2005, cities such as Des Moines and Renton approved their own bans. Bellingham put a ban into place in 2014. One-by-one over the past couple decades, Puget Sound area communities have voted to rid their towns of the explosives.

Marysville and Brier are among the most recent cities to approve bans. This Fourth of July will be the last year residents are allowed to legally set off fireworks in either cities. Bans take effect in 2017."

I can see no other solution, Mayor Goodman. I realize nothing can be done this 4th of July, but surely by July 4th, 2017 isn't it possible we could do what some of the Washington communities are doing? Isn't the fact that we are a drought stricken state enough reason to implement a ban? Although I believe the simple fact they disturb the peace and frighten to death our pets is sufficient reason to consider the ban.

Thank you again for your email.
Respectfully,
Barbara Gurley

They have come either from our neighborhood, adjacent neighborhoods and even set off by traveling vehicles. All except the fewest ARE illegal and try though we have to get them stopped, one at a time or groups of them, new people replace previous occupants, and kids forever joyride through the streets nearby or in hearing range. Subject: Fireworks!

Happy Fourth of July! Last night, Friday, June 23rd, the fireworks started around 5:00pm. I left my house for about 2 hours and when I returned, the "booms" continued. I finally called the non emergency police number around 9:00 pm to report the fireworks. The dispatcher informed me that they had already received a call about the area I mentioned and a patrol car had been sent out. She also told me that they hate this time of the year for this very reason. She even thanked me for my efforts to try and get this nonsense stopped. I had to give my little dog drugs last night and because of his trembling and barking, I got very little sleep. Today I have to teach private music lessons. I don't have the luxury of sleeping all day like those who were shooting off the fireworks do, no doubt.

We have over a week before the actual 4th celebration. I'm already exhausted. This will continue throughout the week because I am quite sure Las Vegas doesn't have the necessary police officers to patrol these neighborhoods for idiots who can't curb their enthusiasm for using these illegal fireworks in our city neighborhoods. A ban should be implemented on ALL fireworks in neighborhoods. But because you say you cannot do that, your police force will be answering calls all week from residents who, like me, just want to live in peace. We are the ones who work and pay taxes.

I wish I could redirect these fireworks to your neighborhood so you could experience what others have to endure. Maybe after a few sleepless nights you might find the motivation to ban fireworks in all city neighborhoods!

EXTERNAL EMAIL

Please record our comments for the Reecommending Meeting on July 15 and City Council Meeting on July 17

For most of the first 18 years that we lived in Queensridge, we had a wonderful green space in the Badlands Golf Course. When we drove in the gate to Queensridge, we saw an expanse of green lawns and lush trees. We saw ponds filled with ducks and geese who used the ponds for themselves and their babies as a refuge until they flew each winter to a warmer climate, returning in the Spring. Although the golf course was always busy with golfers, we could stroll along the course's roads at any time. We live several blocks from the golf course, but it was always a source of enjoyment and restoration for us and was a symbol of the heart of Queensridge.

Since the development of Badlands began, the area has changed dramatically. The ponds have been drained and the birds have left. The grass has not been watered and has dried to brown, and the remaining dirt has converted to dust, desert shrubs, and hard dried ground. Many of the trees have been cut down to stumps. Now, when we enter the gate or walk on the road outside the golf course, we are confronted with huge signs warning in large red letters about no trespassing and no dumping with threats of prosecution..

Even if the developer was allowed to build, we have been told that he could build on the golf course land for at least 20 years, so that the disruption in the community from the construction could continue for decades. At the end of the process we would have lost our open green space, to be replaced by houses and apartments.

The only hope we have to restore any kind of normalcy is that the Open Space Ordinance remain in place. Now we are told that the City Council is considering repealing the ordinance. This will affect not just us in Queensridge, but other communities as well.

When the City Council is considering whether or not to repeal the Open Space Ordinance, please do not allow this disruption and ugliness to continue here or be inflicted on other areas of the Las Vegas community. If you are trying to improve the quality of life in Las Vegas to maintain a world class community, your planning must consider the restorative open green spaces and the emotional, cognitive, and physical health that nature provides to all of us. These green spaces should not just be limited to parks we can visit, but should be included within each development where ever possible.

Thank you for your consideration of this very serious matter.

'Is this real?': Seven Hours of Chaos, Bravery at Las Vegas Hospital After Mass Shooting

Dr. Kevin Menes had prepared for this moment, when terror came to his city and his hospital, but once it arrived he couldn't believe it was true. A radio used to alert the hospital to incoming casualties was blaring. Menes strained to understand. He heard someone say, Prepare for a mass casualty incident.

According to the famous toxicologist Paracelsus, "the dose makes the poison." In other words, every chemical can be considered a poison if you take enough of it. Some chemicals, like water and iron, are necessary for life but toxic in the right amounts. Other chemicals are so dangerous they are simply considered poisons. Many poisons have therapeutic uses, yet a few have gained favored status for committing murders and suicides. Here are some notable examples.

Belladonna or Deadly Nightshade

Westend61 / Getty Images

Belladonna (Atropa belladona) gets its name from the Italian words bella donna for "beautiful lady" because the plant was a popular cosmetic in the Middle Ages. The juice of the berries could be used as a blush (probably not a good choice for lip stain). Diluting extracts from the plant in water made eye drops to dilate the pupils, making a lady appear attracted to her suitor (an effect that occurs naturally when a person is in love).

Another name for the plant is deadly nightshade, with good reason. The plant is high in toxic chemicals solanine, hyoscine (scopolamine), and atropine. Juice from the plant or its berries was used to tip arrows with poison. Eating a single leaf or eating 10 of the berries can cause death, although there is a report of one person who ate about 25 berries and lived to tell the tale.

Legend has it, Macbeth used deadly nightshade to poison Danes invading Scotland in 1040. There's evidence that the serial killer Locusta may have used nightshade to kill the Roman emperor Claudius, under contract with Agrippina the Younger. There are few confirmed cases of accidental deaths from deadly nightshade, but there are common plants related to Belladonna that can make you sick. For example, it's possible to get solanine poisoning from potatoes.

Asp Venom

De Agostini / A. Dagli Orti / Getty Images

Snake venom is an unpleasant poison for suicide and a dangerous murder weapon because, in order to use it, it's necessary to extract the poison from a venomous snake. Probably the most famous alleged use of snake venom is Cleopatra's suicide. Modern historians are unsure whether Cleopatra committed suicide or was murdered, plus there is evidence that a toxic salve might have caused her death rather than a snake.

If Cleopatra was indeed bitten by an asp, it wouldn't have been a quick and painless death. An asp is another name for an Egyptian cobra, a snake with which Cleopatra would have been familiar. She would have known the bite of the snake is extremely painful, but not always lethal. Cobra venom contains neurotoxins and cytotoxins. The bite site becomes painful, blistered, and swollen, while the venom leads to paralysis, headache, nausea, and convulsions. Death, if it occurs, is from respiratory failure... but that's only in its later stages, once it's had time to work on the lungs and heart. However the actual event went down, it's unlikely Shakespeare got it right.

Poison Hemlock

Image by Catherine MacBride / Getty Images

Poison hemlock (Conium maculatum) is a tall flowering plant with roots resembling carrots. All parts of the plant are rich in toxic alkaloids, which can cause paralysis and death from respiratory failure. Near the end, a victim of hemlock poisoning can't move, yet remains aware of his surroundings.

The most famous case of hemlock poisoning is the death of the Greek philosopher Socrates. He was found guilty of heresy and sentenced to drink hemlock, by his own hand. According to Plato's "Phaedo," Socrates drank the poison, walked a bit, then noticed his legs felt heavy. He lay on his back, reporting a lack of sensation and chill moving upward from his feet. Eventually, the poison reached his heart and he died.

Strychnine

Medic Image / Getty Images

The poison strychnine comes from seeds of the plant Strychnos nux vomica. The chemists who first isolated the toxin also obtained quinine from the same source, which was used to treat malaria. Like the alkaloids in hemlock and belladonna, strychnine causes paralysis that kills via respiratory failure. There's no antidote for the poison.

You Don't Want to Mess With the 10 Deadliest Poisons

Whether you're writing a murder novel, trying to stay safe, or simply curious, it's worth knowing what the 10 de...

A famous historical account of strychnine poisoning is the case of Dr. Thomas Neil Cream. Starting in 1878, Cream killed at least seven women and one man — patients of his. After serving ten years in an American prison, Cream returned to London, where he poisoned more people. He was finally executed for murder in 1892.

Strychnine has been a common active ingredient in rat poison, but since there's no antidote, it has largely been replaced by safer toxins. This has been part of an ongoing effort to protect children and pets from accidental poisoning. Low doses of strychnine can be found in street drugs, where the compound acts as a mild hallucinogen. A very diluted form of the compound acts as a performance enhancer for athletes.

Arsenic

Scientifica / Getty Images

Arsenic is a metalloid element that kills by inhibiting enzyme production. It's found naturally throughout the environment, including foods. It's also used in certain common products, including pesticides and pressure-treated wood. Arsenic and its compounds were a popular poison in the Middle Ages because it was easy to obtain and the symptoms of arsenic poisoning (diarrhea, confusion, vomiting) resembled those of cholera. This made murder easy to suspect, yet difficult to prove.

Interesting Things You Probably Didn't Know About Arsenic

Arsenic is best known as a poison, but the element has many other uses, including as medicine.

The Borgia family was known to use arsenic to kill off rivals and enemies. Lucrezia Borgia, in particular, was reputed to be a skilled poisoner. While it's certain the family used poison, many of the accusations against Lucrezia appear to have been false. Famous people who have died from arsenic poisoning include Napoleon Bonaparte, George III of England, and Simon Bolivar.

Polonium

Science Picture Co / Getty Images

Polonium, like arsenic, is a chemical element. Unlike arsenic, it's highly radioactive. If inhaled or ingested, it can kill in extremely low doses. It's estimated a single gram of vaporized polonium could kill over a million people. The poison doesn't kill immediately. Rather, the victim suffers headaches, diarrhea, hair loss, and other symptoms of radiation poisoning. There is no cure, with death occurring within days or weeks.

The most famous case of polonium poisoning was the use of polonium-210 to murder spy Alexander Litvinenko, who drank the radioactive material in a cup of green tea. It took him three weeks to die. It's believed Irene Curie, Marie and Pierre Curie's daughter, likely died from cancer that developed after a vial of polonium broke in her lab.

Texas Senate Passes Bill Cracking Down On Legal Ads

The Texas Senate on Thursday passed a bipartisan bill prohibiting intentionally misleading legal services advertisements concerning health care, which backers say often prey on vulnerable Texans and can harm public health. Meanwhile, opponents warn a ban could keep consumers from discovering the dangers of certain drugs.

Questions Linger About The Future Of Cyber Sanctions

In the year since President Barack Obama unveiled a new sanctions framework to crack down on cybersecurity intrusions, the administration has yet to take action against any companies or individuals, leaving experts to grapple with tough questions about the utility, effectiveness and future of those measures.

Bush-Appointed DC Circ. Judge Vouches For Garland

D.C. Circuit Judge Brett Kavanaugh has said his appeals court colleague Merrick Garland is a “brilliant jurist” who is “supremely qualified” to serve on the nation’s highest court following his nomination last month, though the George W. Bush appointee declined to comment on how the Senate should act on his confirmation.

Fed Allows Banks To Include Muni Bonds In Liquidity Measure

The Federal Reserve said Friday that banks could use a limited amount of municipal securities in their calculations of high-quality liquid assets that can be converted into cash in a crisis, responding to criticisms from local governments and other entities.

Obama Had Authority To Nix Keystone XL Pipeline, Gov't Says

The federal government fought back against TransCanada Corp.’s lawsuit over President Barack Obama’s refusal to greenlight the Keystone XL pipeline, telling a Texas federal court Friday the president has long had the authority to decide whether cross-border pipelines and cables fit the nation’s foreign policy goals.

The 2016 Rising Stars, By Firm

Law360's Rising Stars recognizes attorneys under 40 who have demonstrated outstanding career accomplishments. This year, Quinn Emanuel led the pack with eight Rising Stars, followed by Gibson Dunn, Kirkland & Ellis and Simpson Thacher with seven Rising Stars each. Baker & Hostetler, Latham & Watkins, King & Spalding and Shearman & Sterling each boast five Rising Stars apiece.

ANALYSIS

Fla. Corruption Law Puts Target On Government Contractors

Unscrupulous government contractors may soon find themselves the targets of corruption charges thanks to a new Florida anti-public corruption bill that brings private contractors under the “public servant” definition under state law and lowers the burden of proof for state prosecutors.

Law360's Environmental Disaster Survival Guide: Preparation

Few challenges can test an attorney's mettle like having a client at the center of a full-blown environmental disaster. Doing the best possible job means not only stepping up at the moment a catastrophe occurs, but doing solid advance planning and smart follow-up work. Here, in part one of a three-part series, Law360 identifies best practices for preparing for — and hopefully staving off — an

Spiked Lifeline Compromise Shows Political Cracks In FCC

The eleventh-hour collapse at the Federal Communications Commission of a bipartisan compromise on expanding the Lifeline subsidy program was a clear illustration of the same political tensions that are prevailing nationally, and experts expect the infighting will lead to little compromise during the remainder of Chairman Tom Wheeler's leadership.

Tribal Labor Deals Could Quell NLRB Authority Push

Hard-fought labor provisions in California's tribal gambling compacts could bolster challenges to National Labor Relations Board authority over tribal casinos by underscoring the potential impact of the agency's regulation of states and labor unions, as well as on tribes themselves.

BANKING & SECURITIES

MSRB Guidance May Hide Muni Markups, SEC Watchdog Says

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's investor watchdog has urged the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board to close a potential loophole that he said could give municipal bond dealers a way out from eventually having to disclose the markups they slap onto retail fixed-income sales.

FinCEN Wants Crowdfunding Cos. Subject To Securities Law

The Financial Crimes Enforcement Network proposed rules Friday that would subject crowdfunding portals to the same standards as broker-dealers, in what it said is an attempt to curb money laundering, terrorist financing and other financial crimes and cover a gap left by recent regulations.

ENERGY & ENVIRONMENTAL

9th Circ. Backs EPA Ruling On Ariz. Haze Plan

The Ninth Circuit on Thursday tossed challenges to a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency rule rejecting parts of Arizona's plan to reduce regional haze, saying the agency properly determined a coal-fired power plant and three other industrial facilities were eligible to install additional pollution controls.

EPA Has Authority To Craft CPP, Lawmakers Tell DC Circ.

Defenders of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Clean Power Plan met Friday's deadline to file amicus briefs supporting the agency in the D.C. Circuit, including more than 200 current and former U.S. lawmakers who say that the rule is true to the language and legislative history of the Clean Air Act.

EPA Urges 6th Circ. Not To Rehear Water Rule Decision

The federal government on Friday urged the Sixth Circuit not to grant several petitions for en banc review of a panel's holding that challenges to a controversial Clean Water Act rule should be heard at the appellate court level.

Aliso Canyon Leak Prompts DOT, DOE To Launch Task Force

The U.S. departments of Energy and Transportation on Friday launched an interagency task force on natural gas storage safety in the wake of the notorious leak from Southern California Gas Co.'s Aliso Canyon storage facility that forced thousands of residents from their homes.

New Ariz. Law Requires Outdated Abortion Pill Procedure

The day after the U.S. Food and Drug Administration updated its label for the abortion pill, Mifeprex, making abortion more accessible to women, Arizona's Republican Gov. Doug Ducey approved a law requiring physicians to stick to the old label.

MEDIA & ENTERTAINMENT

Daily Fantasy Sports Future In Hands Of States, Experts Say

The U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania said Friday that federal prosecutors were not hurrying to investigate the daily fantasy sports industry, echoing statements from attorneys for DraftKings and FanDuel that the companies' focus was presently on regulation at the state level.

TRANSPORTATION & INFRASTRUCTURE

Chicago Can Keep Red-Light Camera Program, Judge Says

An Illinois judge tossed a legal challenge to Chicago's controversial red-light camera program, saying Friday that the state Legislature's approval of the program defeated a putative class action brought by drivers claiming they were wrongfully ticketed for running red lights.

INSURANCE

European Commission Easing Investment Rules On Insurers

The European Union's capital markets regulator said Friday it will ease requirements for investing in infrastructure projects starting Saturday, one of the first measures in a package of reforms unveiled last year that it hopes will encourage investment by tweaking burdensome regulations and harmonizing others across member states.

EMPLOYMENT

Law Firm Group Files Challenge To DOL's 'Persuader' Rule

An association of labor and employment law firms sued Thursday to challenge the U.S. Department of Labor's controversial "persuader" rule, saying it would illegally infringe on attorney-client relationships by requiring the reporting of confidential information.

CSX, Amtrak Say Fed Law Preempts Mass. Sick Time Regs

CSX Transportation Inc. and Amtrak asked a Massachusetts federal judge Thursday to declare them exempt from the state's new paid sick time law, arguing the federal Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act expressly bars states from foisting their own statutory sickness benefits requirements on railroads.

Landmark Paid Leave, Wage Increases Part Of NY Budget Deal

New York workers will be able to take 12 weeks of paid family leave, the longest and most comprehensive paid leave offered in the nation, under a state budget deal that has been announced by Gov. Andrew Cuomo.

The new trans-Atlantic “Privacy Shield” data transfer pact between the U.S. and the European Union would withstand the scrutiny of the EU court system, according to a report released Thursday by Hogan Lovells that the firm says is the first legal analysis of the framework.

PRODUCT LIABILITY

FDA Proposes Limit On Arsenic In Infant Rice Cereal

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration on Friday announced draft guidance for the level of inorganic arsenic allowed in infant rice cereal, seeking to reduce exposure in babies to an element that can cause lowered performance on developmental tests that measure learning.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

DHS Acquisitions Improved But Still Need Work, GAO Says

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security strengthened its acquisitions process in recent years to adhere to timelines and budgets for buying everything from software to aircraft, but several major acquisition programs remain off-track, the U.S. Government Accountability Office said Thursday.

TAX

10th Circ. Won't Rethink Upholding Colo. 'Amazon Tax' Law

The Tenth Circuit on Friday denied the Direct Marketing Association's request to reconsider a February decision affirming Colorado's tax reporting obligations for out-of-state sellers despite the business marketing group’s contention that the court had failed to acknowledge the ruling’s full impact.

NY State Passes Budget With Personal Income Tax Cuts

The newly passed New York state budget calls for middle-income tax rates to decline to historic lows from 2018 through 2025, falling from their current range of 6.65 to 6.45 percent to as low as 5.5 percent in 2025, officials said Friday.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

Disney, ABC Tell FCC Retrans Consent Market 'Not Broken'

Executives from the Walt Disney Co. and ABC affiliates have told Federal Communications Commission officials that the marketplace for negotiating retransmission rights works fine and the agency doesn’t need new regulations to fix it.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

In Congress: Iran, ISIS, Trade Secrets Protection

Currently, trade secrets lack federal civil protection for misappropriation. The Defend Trade Secrets Act will provide trade secret owners with the same access to federal court that copyright, trademark and patent owners already enjoy. This bipartisan legislation is of widespread interest to U.S. businesses fending off efforts, often driven by foreign competitors, to steal their trade secrets, say Richard Hertling and Kaitlyn McClure of Covington & Burling LLP.

The Current Battle Over Native American Land Allotment

The Indian Land Consolidation Act has recently come under attack from states, local governments and utilities that wish to condemn Native American lands — ignoring basic principles of statutory construction and tribal sovereignty and the

Viewing Recent Opioid Regulations In Context

The new U.S. Centers for Disease Control guideline and U.S. Food and Drug Administration black box warnings are the latest in a long series of efforts to address the inappropriate use of opioids. Careful analysis of medical literature, government statistics and medical claims data can suggest ways to improve policy efforts aimed at reducing abuse while preserving access for legitimate patient need, say consultants with Analysis Group Inc.

All Eyes On DC Circ. For Ruling On FCC's TCPA Order

In the consolidated appeal ACA International v. Federal Communications Commission, the D.C. Circuit will have to sort through a range of FCC determinations that were either inadequately reasoned or inconsistently applied in the Telephone Consumer Protection Act order last summer. Briefing has now concluded, and the battle lines have been drawn, say attorneys with Drinker Biddle & Reath LLP.

LEGAL INDUSTRY

5 Areas Bucking The Slowdown In Litigation

While some firms have taken a hit recently from a litigation slowdown in core practice areas and overall drop in civil filings over the last year, there are nevertheless several industries bucking that trend. Here are five areas keeping litigators as busy as ever.

Holland & Knight First-Year Associates See $160K Salaries

Holland & Knight LLP has raised salaries for first-year associates in all of its offices except in Denver, the firm confirmed Friday, boosting pay from $145,000 to $160,000 in its major markets.

Chicago May Be Fertile Ground For Law Firm Mergers

Chicago could be the land of opportunity for firms looking to expand through acquisition, according to a survey released Friday, which found that leaders of small to midsized firms in the city are, on the whole, open to a tie-up and eager to grow.

GC Cheat Sheet: The Hottest Corporate News Of The Week

In-house counsel turns whistleblower, California ups the minimum wage and BigLaw is targeted by hackers — and plaintiffs lawyers with data breaches on the mind. Those stories top the last week's corporate news you need to know about.

Patterson Belknap Saw Dip In Revenue, Partner Profit In '15

New York's Patterson Belknap Webb & Tyler LLP had a relatively stable 2015 in terms of revenue compared with other firms, seeing a slight 0.8 percent dip in gross revenue that tallied up to about $188 million, while the average partner brought in a little less profit.

Spring Brings 1,200 New Jobs To Legal Sector

The addition of new legal services jobs in the U.S. economy in February was sluggish, but March brought a glimmer of hope to the sector with 1,200 new jobs, according to a report on Friday by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Supreme Court's Internal Style Guide Goes Public

The U.S. Supreme Court's private style guide, intended as an internal document, is now available for sale online after a lawyer who practices before the court made copies of the guide, wrote a set of notes and bound it all in book form.

Hi Mayor! Two years ago (yes he kept the email!) Jon Ralston asked us about this whether you were considering returning the money he gave your campaign, and after talking with you we responded you were aware of the issue and would wait and see what the outcome of the investigation is,
Now that he has been indicted Jon wants to know whether you are planning to return the money he donated to your campaign.
Feel free to call me if you want to chat, I wanted to email you this so you had the PDF.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

This week, we're taking another look back at one of my earliest newsletters, it's from December 2015. Back then, we spent a lot of time thinking about the type of students we wanted. They needed to be bright and inquisitive with elite GPA's and strong MCAT scores. But just as importantly, we were looking for students who showed some "fire in their bellies." In other words, young people who may have faced adversity and battled through it. On top of all that, they needed to have strong ties to Nevada. Now, for a while, we were afraid of not being able to find enough outstanding students who fit the bill. But you know what, so far we've done it, and I couldn't be happier with our 120...and soon to be 180 students. Each one is uniquely talented, and brings something special to the school. When our students work in small groups, which they often do, you can see the magic happen. They're challenging their classmates, while supporting each other through the sometimes difficult grind that is medical school.

THE EARLY DAYS: IMAGINING THE UNLV SCHOOL OF MEDICINE STUDENT

UNLV School of Medicine students pose for a photo inside a classroom at the Shadow Lane Campus. Thoughtful planning about the "type" of student the school was looking for has paid off. Members of the first three classes of students are bright, come from diverse backgrounds, and are either from Nevada or have very strong ties to the area.

Newsletter From December 8th, 2015

When we submitted our accreditation documents, we had to identify the type of students we want in our program. What are their values and personal characteristics? What kind of future physician leaders do we want to graduate?

Samuel Parrish, MD, Senior Associate Dean for Student Affairs and Admissions led this effort. He has overseen similar efforts for two other medical schools -- Drexel College of Medicine and Quinnipiac School of Medicine.

Dr. Parrish and his team, composed of UNLV faculty and University of Nevada School of Medicine faculty, along with community members, shaped our student admissions process with this premise -- We want outstanding students, from diverse backgrounds and experiences, who demonstrate personal qualities of community activism, leadership, perseverance, resiliency, optimism, and dedication to exemplary patient care; and who will stay in Nevada to take care of Nevadans.

How will we find these students?

All students who want to attend medical school in the U.S. apply through the American Medical College Application System (AMCAS). When students apply through AMCAS they must choose which schools they would like to attend. Medical schools then evaluate the students who select their programs. Next, the medical schools send a secondary application to the students who meet their qualifications for an interview.

Students who want to attend the UNLV School of Medicine will go through the same process. The only exception is that we will give every Nevada student who applies and who meets our basic requirements an interview. In addition, students with strong ties to the state will receive an interview. We also will consider older students who have decided to go into medicine, and first generation college students who often prefer to be near their families.

Our scholarship program will help us attract outstanding students. Matching each student with their scholarship donor will help our students create a long and lasting bond with the incredible people of this community. We believe requiring each student to complete at least 400 hours of community service also will help them become more rooted in our community – especially when they see the impact they can make. And lastly, since our medical school is community based, it provides our students with many opportunities to build relationships with patients, physicians, health care teams, and hospital systems across Southern Nevada.

We are working hard to build more residency and fellowship programs in Las Vegas in all the needed specialties so students don't have to leave Nevada to finish their education. I personally can't wait to meet our charter class of 60 students. It's going to be a very rewarding day.

Garland's High Court Nomination Battle Likely To Drag On

U.S. Supreme Court nominee Judge Merrick B. Garland may be the most palatable nominee for the vacancy opened by Justice Antonin Scalia's death, but he still faces an uphill, slow Senate battle as Republicans stand firm on their refusal to consider any nominee until after the presidential election.

Obama Picks Garland To Fill High Court Seat

President Barack Obama on Wednesday nominated D.C. Circuit Chief Judge Merrick B. Garland to fill the U.S. Supreme Court seat left vacant by the unexpected death of Justice Antonin Scalia, plunging Garland into the middle of a bitter political battle over the vacancy.

Judge Garland Could Bring New Consensus To High Court

Should D.C. Circuit Chief Judge Merrick B. Garland manage to get through the highly contentious U.S. Supreme Court nomination process before him, the "judges' judge" would bring a calming voice and a penchant for inquisitive questioning that could build new consensus among the high court, despite his slightly left-of-center bent on some issues, several experts contend.

In His Own Words: 4 Key Garland Opinions

Chief Judge Merrick Garland has presided over some of the most contentious issues in American law during his 19 years on the D.C. Circuit, establishing a reputation more for his judicial thoroughness than a clear political philosophy, according to court observers. Here, Law360 highlights four of Judge Garland's noteworthy opinions and dissents that may shed light on his jurisprudence.

Attorneys Weigh In On Obama's Supreme Court Pick

President Barack Obama nominated D.C. Circuit Chief Judge Merrick B. Garland on Wednesday to become the next associate justice on the U.S. Supreme Court, aiming to fill the vacancy left by Justice Antonin Scalia's death. Here, attorneys tell Law360 what kind of justice they believe Judge Garland could be and the challenges he faces from Senate Republicans.

Garland Could Be Agency Ally In Energy, Enviro Rule Fights

The willingness of D.C. Circuit Chief Judge Merrick B. Garland, President Barack Obama's nominee for the U.S. Supreme Court, to defer to the judgment of federal regulators will likely aid the government in its defense of controversial energy-related regulations such as the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Clean Power Plan, experts say.

CDC's Opioid Stance Hurts Drug Cos. In Marketing Suits

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's latest push to decrease the prevalence of opioid painkillers primarily targets the prescribing habits of physicians, but opioid manufacturers will also feel its sting when plaintiffs brandish the high-profile agency's guidelines emphasizing the drugs' addictiveness to argue that their marketing was negligent or deceitful, attorneys say.

AT&T Slams Competitive Carriers As 'Hell Bent' On Regulation

AT&T said in a blog post Wednesday that newer carriers are attempting to push the Federal Communications Commission to slap “old fashioned, monopoly-era rate regulation” on a thriving market, saying it would actually have the effect of reducing real competition.

Verizon Praises FCC Set-Top Box Intent But Urges Caution

Verizon has warned the Federal Communications Commission that it must tread carefully with its set-top box proposal that could force multichannel video distributors to allow competitive devices or apps to access programming, saying it could have "unintended consequences" even if well-intentioned.

Small-ISP Exemption To Neutrality Rules Sails Through House

The U.S. House of Representatives unanimously passed a bill Wednesday exempting Internet service providers with up to 250,000 subscribers from enhanced disclosure requirements under the Federal Communications Commission's new net neutrality rules, a move championed by small businesses wary of regulatory burden.

TEXAS

Wal-Mart Keeps Liquor Seller Out Of Texas Permit Suit

A Texas federal judge on Tuesday denied a bid by Gabriel Investment Group — the only public corporation in the state allowed to hold a permit for packaged liquor sales — to intervene in Wal-Mart's suit over the constitutionality of the state's ban on public companies selling liquor, finding that it wasn't filed in time.

PENNSYLVANIA

AG Wrongdoing Investigator Bill Advances In Pa.

Pennsylvania's Senate Judiciary Committee unanimously advanced legislation Tuesday to re-establish rules enabling special prosecutors to investigate wrongdoing by an attorney general or other office personnel, in response to questions invoked by the Kathleen Kane prosecution.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

OPINION: Missed Opportunity In Supreme Court Nomination

Not a single Asian-American has ever been nominated to the U.S. Supreme Court. Given the plethora of highly qualified Asian-American candidates, President Obama had a chance to show that he and the Democratic Party view Asian-Americans as truly having a seat at the table. He also could have added to the substantive expertise of the court in two important areas — IP rights and privacy, says Lee Cheng, chief legal officer of Newegg.com Inc.

Changing Climate: What The Paris Accord Means For Russia

My participation in the Paris climate conference showed that over 99 percent of the negotiators, experts and stakeholders have a very unclear vision of what the 2 degree Celcius limit to average global temperature rise means for economic changes. For the many countries with very pragmatic policymaking, including Russia, the current incentives arising from the Paris deal are not sufficient at all, says environmental economist George Safonov, who served on Russia's delegation to the Paris climate summit.

DOL Fiduciary Rule Has Financial Service Cos. In A Flurry

Even before its likely implementation, the U.S. Department of Labor's proposed fiduciary rule is having a significant impact. As the financial services industry awaits the final language, some firms are already taking concrete steps to prepare, such as emphasizing fee-based product offerings at the expense of commission-based products or even exiting the broker-dealer space altogether, say attorneys at Norton Rose Fulbright.

Surprise! 'Soft' Insurance Fraud Is Punishable By Prison

The New Jersey high court's decision in State of New Jersey v. Robert Goodwin has received attention for the seemingly harsh penalties imposed on a convicted perpetrator of soft insurance fraud. But as severe as a prison sentence might seem, such punishment for "fraud of opportunity" is not unique to New Jersey, say Christian Cavallo and Silje Roalsvik at Golberg Segalla LLP.

The Grandfathering Clock: Zoning And Nonconforming Uses

In New York, when a zoning designation is changed from commercial to residential, existing commercial uses are considered grandfathered and may continue to operate even though no longer permitted by the new residential zoning — but in order to keep this status, property owners must keep their eye on the continuous use clock, says Frank Chaney at Rosenberg & Estis PC.

Regulating Daily Fantasy: DFS To Go Head-To-Head With DOJ?

Most of the spotlight on daily fantasy sports has focused on state attorney general action. But news reports have suggested that the U.S. Department of Justice is focusing on DFS as well. Let's look at the federal laws prosecutors could apply to the head-to-head DFS game format, says Mark Lavery of Langone Batson.

OPINION: Stop 'Vigorously Defending' Your Clients

Oddly, amazingly, inexplicably, in a business where words are never in short supply, only one word seems to work when it comes to characterizing a lawyer's commitment to clients, says Dan McGinn, a national reputation management adviser who has counseled nearly half the Fortune 100.

LEGAL INDUSTRY

Why Law Is The Least Diverse Profession

Law firms are packed with professional problem solvers, and lawyers have long been leaders in the fight against workplace discrimination and bias. So why can't the legal industry fix its own diversity problems?

BigLaw Diversity Pros Just One Piece Of Fighting Status Quo

BigLaw has started turning to diversity professionals to address the dearth of minority attorneys in their ranks — a change that general counsel welcome but say is just one step to addressing the legal industry's race problem.

What Baby Boomers Bring To BigLaw

The oldest members of the generation that came of age during the tumultuous cultural changes of the 1960s and '70s may be getting close to retirement, but baby boomers are still shaping BigLaw with their driven work ethic and passion for mentoring younger colleagues, attorneys say. Here are three things that baby boomers bring to BigLaw.

How Firms Are Upping The Fun Factor To Battle Burnout

Good morning, everyone. It was treated like one of those Steve Jobs press conferences announcing a new Apple product: The Faraday car is here! One seat? What? Cue the requisite gushing by the elected officials who pushed through the tax break package for a car that will go really fast and cost really a lot.

Don't get me wrong: I still think that because this will open up Apex and because of the details of the tax incentive package, this is worth the gamble. But does everyone really love this car? But my primary question about last night's event: Did Christian Bale emerge from the model after the music and smoke cleared?

Don't forget: "Ralston Live" is now at 7 PM in Las Vegas (still at 5:30 PM in Reno. Had a great discussion last night about the Adelson/RJ story, which you can see here. And, in this ongoing soap opera, yet another surprising development late Monday.

What's below: Reid-Obama longread, the Dem dinner, Morning Flash nuggets and a trivia question about a Denver ceremony that affected Nevada.

COMING UP

Hispanics in Politics, a mere shell of its former self, is hosting the Nevada Hispanic Legislative Caucus tomorrow morning. My favorite part of the invite is it has a picture of nine lawmakers (two of them misspelled), and then this gem: "Not pictured: "State Sen. Tick Segerblom."

Harry Reid is having a presser in Reno today about this.

PRINCE HARRY IN WINTER

I penned a long piece that I just posted about Senate Minority Leader Harry Reid as he enters his last year and his relationship with President Obama. It shows how Reid all but saved Obama's presidency in the early days, how they used each other and then how their relationship blossomed into a real friendship. It has fresh reporting and retrospective stuff. Hope you check it out.

A DINNER TO REMEMBER?

Speaking of Prince Harry, I'm told that the state Democrats expect as many as 2,000 people at Wednesday night's dinner with the three presidential candidates. That is an astonishing number. What will be even more fascinating will be to see who shows up for Hillary Clinton and Bernie Sanders – I'm sure the Fourth Estaters won't talk about who has more people there (I hear the Sanders folks are really working it hard to try to outshine Clinton.) and what that means about the Nevada caucus. Should be quite the spectacle.

A QUARTET OF MORNING FLASH NUGGETS

Nugget No. 1 – When I saw the invite for a week from today in Reno, I couldn't initially figure it out: The Caranos, the dominant Northern Nevada casino family, hosting an event for presidential hopeful John Kasich at their Eldorado casino-hotel. Huh? Then, a Reno insider reminded me: They have a property in….Columbus, OH. Now I get it.

Nugget No. 2 – No offense, but the Washoe GOP couldn't do better than Rep. Joe Heck as its Lincoln Day dinner speaker? The swing county in a swing state and no national marquee speaker? I don't mean this as a swipe at the good doctor, but this is odd.

Nugget No. 3 – Congresswoman-elect Michele Fiore was on some goofy podcast this week with some like-minded yahoos and said some goofy stuff. That's not surprising, but she is not ratcheting back at all from her utter nonsense about the Bundys, Oregon, the president ("His people are murdering people.") and psychotropic drugs causing all mass shootings. (Check my Twitter feed for more.)

Nugget No. 4 – A hundred grand for a regent race? Yep. That's what J.T. Moran has raised. The cash came from a lot of old-time Las Vegans, including Sun publisher Brian Greenspun.

FLASH FACTS OF THE DAY

Hamilton, NV was formed after rich silver discoveries were made at nearby Treasure Hill in 1867 in what was the White Pine Mining District. In early 1868, the new mining camp was originally dubbed Cave City in honor of the many caves in the surrounding hills. It was soon formally changed to Hamilton, after W H Hamilton, who, along with Henry Kelly and Ed Gobin, laid out the new town site. A Post Office was opened at Hamilton on August 10, 1868. Hamilton was chosen as the County Seat when White Pine County was established in March 1869. The first business establishment in Hamilton, as seems the Nevada tradition, was a saloon. The silver boom was on. Some accounts suggest as many as 25,000 people resided in the Hamilton area, most trying to strike it rich. The town's population probably peaked at the 10,000 to 12,000 range in the summer of 1869. Soon, Hamilton had dozens of saloons, at least one brewery, general stores, a theater, dance halls, a Miners' Union Hall, and even a skating rink. The White Pine News, started in Treasure City on December 26, 1868, was moved to Hamilton, NV for the January 15, 1870 issue. The 1870 US Census showed a population of 3,913 in Hamilton.

There were two problems with the ore in the Hamilton area – most of the valuable ore was found near the surface, and Hamilton was close to 8,000' above sea level. As mining companies realized the rich ore did not extend deep beyond the surface, the town dwindled. On June 27, 1873, fire destroyed much of the business district in Hamilton. Though some of the town was rebuilt, many left and did not return. The cold winters at 8,000' were not worth enduring, waiting for the next big find near town. By the mid-1870s, the population of Hamilton was about 500. Mining operations decreased significantly. After struggling for several years, the White Pine News published its final edition in Hamilton on December 23, 1880. The News moved to Cherry Creek, NV.

The final nail in Hamilton's coffin was another fire in town. On January 5, 1885, another fire consumed critical structures in Hamilton, including the two-story White Pine County Courthouse. White Pine County was not able to endure this loss on its own, and on February 9, 1885, Governor Jewett Adams signed Assembly Bill No. 7, an Act appropriating five thousand dollars for the immediate relief of White Pine county (they settled on half of the originally proposed $10,000). A handful of die-hard Nevada pioneers remained in Hamilton after this second major fire. The Post Office finally closed on March 14, 1931. The January 5, 1885 fire provided the opportunity to select the new, best town to be the County Seat. Several towns lobbied for the honor, but Ely, NV was chosen. On January 28, 1887, Governor Charles Stevenson signed the Act that formally made Ely the new County Seat for White Pine County.

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

The young daughter of a Nevada constitutional officer presided on this day in history over a ceremony that took place at a federal facility in Colorado. What was the ceremony, and whose daughter was it?

Monday's winner: Cowboy Tom Collins

The question: This is the anniversary of an acquisition by one casino family of an off-Strip property from another casino family that is better known for another off-Strip property. What was the purchase, and what two families were involved?

The answer: Maloofs sold the Fiesta to the Fertittas.

Specialty Court Focuses On Women Offenders Impacted by Trauma

The Las Vegas Municipal Court will celebrate the graduation of Rasheka Hinton from the Women in Need of Change (WIN) Court program at 1 p.m. on Thursday, March 28. The graduation ceremony will take place in Las Vegas Municipal Court, Department 1 at the Regional Justice Center, located at 200 Lewis Ave., Courtroom 5A.

Hinton, the 42nd WIN Court graduate, has a criminal history that includes arrests and citations spanning 30 years. During the last 18 months, she has faced her trauma and life obstacles, embraced recovery, accomplished the rigorous mandated program requirements and worked hard to build a new life for herself. Hinton is living independently and working full-time as a cook in a busy kitchen. She has reconnected with her family and built a solid foundation and support community.

Hinton has emerged as a strong, confident and admired leader dedicated to “reaching back” to provide that helping hand and encouragement to those in need. Her determination is an inspiration to the women who are following her example through the WIN Court program.

WIN Court is a trauma-responsive specialty court program that targets women offenders with a history of criminal behavior, misdemeanor and/or substance abuse related charges by targeting the root of the issue- trauma. Through WIN Court, the women learn the tools to change their way of thinking to make positive choices and create their future. All participants have 180 days of jail time suspended for 18 months, which is cleared upon successful completion of the program.

The women who participate must comply with rigorous sentencing requirements throughout the program requiring the participants to complete drug treatment and intensive counseling programs, earn a GED or pursue education/training and secure employment. The defendants must stay out of trouble and abstain from drugs and alcohol during the program. The Court celebrated its first graduate in August 2008.

WIN Court is currently is funded by Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant, SAMHSA grant and a grant from the Nevada Administrative Office of the Courts.

Las Vegas Municipal Court To Celebrate 41st WIN Court Graduation

Specialty Court Focuses On Women Offenders Impacted by Trauma

The Women in Need of Change (WIN) Court will celebrate the program's 41st graduate, Cathy Demuth, at 1 p.m. on Thursday, March 28, in Las Vegas Municipal Court, Department 1 at the Regional Justice Center, located at 200 Lewis Ave, Courtroom 5A.

Demuth, 43, has a criminal history that includes arrests and citations spanning 25 years. During the last 18 months she has faced her traumas and life obstacles, embraced recovery, accomplished the rigorous mandated program requirements and worked hard to build a new life for herself. She is living independently, working full-time and assisting several small business. She has reconnected with her family and built a solid foundation and support community.

Graduation is the celebration of the journey of women who imagined the life they want and have worked very hard to achieve, if not surpass, their initial goals. The strength and determination of these women are an inspiration to women in recovery and to the women who are following their example through the WIN Court program.

WIN Court is a trauma-responsive specialty court program in the Las Vegas Municipal Court for women offenders with a history of criminal behavior, misdemeanor and/or substance abuse related charges by targeting the root of their issues. Calif. Move From 'Tough On Crime' Marks New Era Of Reform

Just before leaving office, California Gov. Jerry Brown passed a slew of progressive criminal justice reforms — many of which signaled a turnaround from his early career, which featured tough-on-crime policies credited with ushering in mass incarceration. His about-face could be a bellwether of things to come.

Bail Or Jail? Calif. Justices May Reshape Detention Decisions

A small-time burglary has evolved into landmark litigation over California's bail policy, with the state Supreme Court poised to decide how often a court can deny bail and detain a defendant. It will also decide whether to uphold a mandate that judges consider a defendant's ability to pay, though a new law may render that determination moot.

EXTERNAL EMAIL

Good afternoon Mayor,
Attached, please find the photos of the individuals that Kenny mentioned who found their way to our property in the last 7 days. It is the same report with different faces each week. Dozens and dozens more were stopped at the entrance or, turned away by someone in the casino. We have seen a noticeable increase in these individuals aggressiveness lately that makes the problem worse. These individuals are also barricading themselves in our restrooms requiring us to use force at times along with open use of illicit drugs. We spent $1,300,000 in security last year, including $353,000 paid to a third party security company for external coverage and that still is not enough. We know this is a community problem but we are asking for your help on this. The church up the street is promoting this problem to our area with the daily feedings that are conducted. We are at a loss of resources on how to address this.

Thank you in advance. All of us at the El Cortez appreciate what you do for our property and, the betterment of downtown as a whole.

How Public Employees Could Power the Struggling Taxi Industry

BY KATHERINE BARRETT & RICHARD GREENE

As a program analyst for the city administrator's office in the District of Columbia, Alexandra Caceres works with many agencies and often travels across the congested city for meetings. Every time she does, she has to reserve one of the two vehicles owned by her agency or, if those are being used, reserve a car from the city's shared fleet. In either case, she has to schedule how long she'll need the car, pick it up, drive to her destination and face the frustrating search for an elusive parking spot.

Well, that's how she used to do it. KEEP READING>>

Subject: Fireworks!!!!!

Mayor Goodman,
In the event that you actually read my emails after all this time, I wanted to let you know that the reason I am so adamant about pursuing the issue of fireworks in neighborhoods is because they just won't go away. For the past two nights we have been subjected to the loud booms once again and here it is, July 24th. I called the police last night in desperation, but all I could do was give an approximate guess as to where they were coming from. I then sat with my little dog for TWO hours as he trembled and panted. I finally resorted to drugs - for him, not me, although perhaps that is something I should consider, since I feel completely hopeless that this problem is ever going to go away. I am starting to dread going to bed at night.

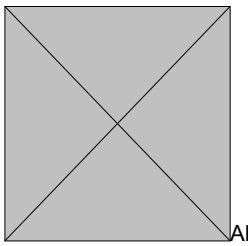
"If We Save One Child from Trauma, We've Done Our Job"



AK Representative Charisse Millett, a member of NFWL, received overwhelming support in the Alaska House of Representatives for a bill she recently sponsored, "The Alaska Safe Children's Act".

Millett's bill was passed in the House on Thursday, June 11th and now awaits the governor's signature.

Millett stated "We worked hard to incorporate policies into this bill that protect our children, while staying mindful of the financial burdens of our schools and time of our teachers."

The "Alaska Safe Children's Act" provides curriculum designed to prevent and spread awareness about child sexual assault, teen dating violence, and youth suicide prevention in schools. It also requires them to train teachers how to handle situations of child sexual abuse and trauma in a sensitive and appropriate manner.

"If we save one child from trauma, we've done our job!" - Millett

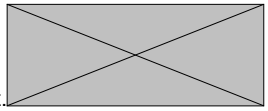
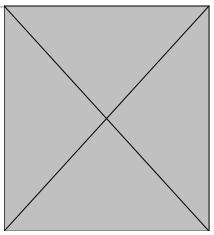
The Multi-Billion Dollar Illicit Trade Problem

Every year, states could be losing as much as $10 billion in tax revenue due to the illicit trade of cigarettes, and it seems little is being done to stop it.

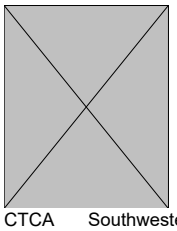


For many years, the disparate cigarette prices in bordering states have led individuals to cross state lines to buy cheaper cigarettes. Today, several criminal enterprises, including known terrorists, use this illicit trade to fund their organizations.

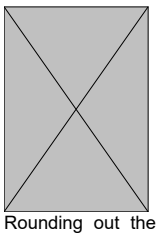
"Cigarette smuggling is becoming the new currency of organized gangs, creating a new culture of crime and robbing state and local governments of billions of dollars in tax



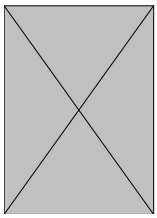
Nicole Longo, DO, a board certified internist at CTCA Eastern Regional Medical Center in Philadelphia and Director of OncoPrez®, a program that offers young female cancer patients clinical options for preserving fertility for the future. She says that early discussions between a patient and her physician can help to identify possible avenues for fertility preservation.



CTCA Southwestern Medical Director of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery Rola Eid, DO, has made advanced breast reconstruction a life passion. Witnessing her own mother's experience with breast reconstruction, Dr. Eid is passionate about her desire to educate women about their options before they undergo drastic breast surgery.



Rounding out the discussion about medical advancements in cancer treatment will be CTCA Director of Naturopathic Medicine Katherine Anderson, ND, who will offer insight into the latest natural therapies that help minimize side effects of cancer treatment and improve quality of life for all women.



Providing the foundation of the discussion during the CTCA panel will be Annie Stephenson Hostetler, an NWFL board member, Chair-Elect of the CTCA National Board of Directors and daughter of CTCA founder, Richard J Stephenson. Her comments will provide perspective of the CTCA commitment to women's health through an unyielding focus on the Mother Standard® of care (how you would like to see your own mother or any loved one treated), which forms the core of the company's approach to cancer care.

Local and State Programs to Combat Human Trafficking to be Discussed at ATEST Plenary Session

Runaways at Risk: Youth Homelessness and revenues," said Rich Marianos, a retired veteran of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms & Explosives (ATF).

The state of New York clearly depicts the magnitude of this problem: nearly 60 percent of the cigarettes sold there are illegal.

Smuggling cigarettes is enticing to criminals because it is a low-risk/high-reward operation that can lead to huge profits. The majority of states have low penalties for illicit trade, which makes it a more attractive income source than drug smuggling or other nefarious activities with stricter penalties.

This problem can also increase youth access to cigarettes. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), minors get tobacco products from sources other than retail 82 percent of the time.

States can help by passing legislation that combats illicit trade. States should enact stricter penalties for those caught smuggling cigarettes, as well as provide greater resources and personnel for law enforcement agencies to make cigarette smuggling arrests and prosecution a priority. Some states, such as Virginia, which has several laws regarding illicit trade, and Rhode Island, have recently passed laws that make meaningful progress in fighting these "organized" criminal enterprises.

"We need to increase charges, penalties and fines, and we need to increase enforcement, as well as funding for enforcement," said Greg Osmon, director of policy and advocacy at RAI Services Company. "That's the only way to really go after illicit trade."

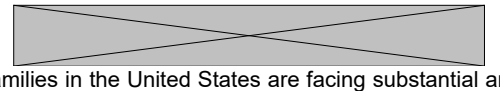
Policymakers Propose Diverse Solutions to Retirement Savings Challenges



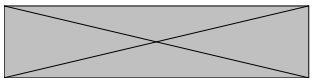
Families in the United States are facing substantial and growing challenges in trying to build their retirement savings. The nation's private sector retirement system is in a significant period of transition as the availability of defined benefit pension plans declines, and individual savings through 401(k) plans and individual retirement accounts (IRAs) becomes more common. The U.S. workforce relies heavily on employer sponsored plans for retirement savings, yet nearly half of U.S. firms—and 70 percent of small businesses—do not offer a plan of any type. And a significant number of Americans who do have access to retirement plans are not saving enough.

The social costs and policy implications are enormous, especially for women. According to the latest Social Security Administration data, in 2010 a 65-year-old woman was expected to live, on average, an additional 20.2 years, compared with 17.6 years for men. That means that the average woman born in 1945 will spend a quarter of her life living off of her savings and Social Security benefits. Unfortunately, women draw smaller Social Security benefits than men because they are

Human Trafficking-Sept. 12, 8:30am-10:30am

Homeless youth, struggling to meet basic needs such as food and shelter, are among the most vulnerable to exploitation and trafficking for labor and sex. According to one New York City homeless youth service provider, approximately one in four youth they serve has been a victim of sex trafficking or has engaged in survival sex. Homeless youth are also trafficked into labor, such as in the magazine sales crews that received media attention over the last year.

In this plenary session, you'll hear first from panelists who experienced homelessness in their teens. Their stories of resilience will inspire leadership among audience members to strengthen policies and programs that support runaway and homeless youth. You'll learn how these young men and women overcame difficult circumstances, what contributed most to their survival, and where the gaps in policies and practices are that made their journeys out of homelessness even more challenging.



A second panel, moderated by Melysa Sperber of the Alliance to End Slavery and Trafficking (ATEST), will feature service providers and policy advocates who will help you turn inspiration into action to prevent runaway and homeless youth from becoming prey for human traffickers. Learn about local and state programs that are working to keep youth off the streets, and hear what you can do to support federal policies that prevent runaway and homeless youth in your communities, including the estimated 40 percent of homeless youth who identify as LGBT and who predominantly cite family rejection as the reason for their homelessness.

Nominate an Elected Woman of Excellence

We all have that one woman who made a difference in our lives. If you know an elected woman who has gone above and beyond to make a difference, nominate her to be a "Woman of Excellence"

The Elected Women of Excellence Award was created in 2013 to identify and honor the accomplishments of women who have worked tirelessly, often breaking down barriers & overcoming more likely to have worked part time and earned less; in 2014, the average woman could expect to draw $13,867 annually from Social Security compared with $18,039 for the average man.

Working part-time also can reduce an employee's opportunity to participate in employer-sponsored retirement plans, a key factor that makes women more likely than men to live in poverty in old age.

According to AARP, 10.7 percent of women 65 and older were living in poverty in 2011 versus 6.2 percent for men.

In response to the lack of retirement savings, policymakers at all levels of government have proposed a growing number and variety of solutions. For example, Illinois is implementing a statewide retirement savings program in which employers with 25 or more employees will be required to automatically transfer a set amount from their employees' pay to a Roth IRA, unless a worker decides not to participate in the program. Adopting a different tack, the state of Washington created a public website to serve as an online marketplace for retirement plans that are designed for small employers. Other initiatives are being considered in California, Connecticut, Oregon, and Virginia, and several other states have set up task forces to study the issue.

The Pew Charitable Trusts has begun to research the implications of these issues for employees, businesses, and taxpayers. Like the National Foundation for Women Legislators, we believe that good data can inform good policy.

obstacles that once seemed insurmountable, to serve their communities.

Leadership Development

Why Culture Matters More Than Goals

by Lisa McLeod

What's the culture of your organization? Is it an environment where things get done on time, every time? Or are deadlines more flexible? Do you believe in having fun, or is it more serious? Every organization has a culture, so does every family. Culture is the, usually, unspoken beliefs about how things work around here.

Culture is often what enables or prevents an organization from achieving goals. For example, if an organization sets a goal to increase on time deliveries, but the culture tolerates excuses, it's unlikely that the team will achieve the goal. The company can provide incentives, and it may drive a short-term spike, but in the end, the culture will ultimately prevail.

Why does this happen?

It's a case of implicit versus explicit. Most leaders are explicit about goals, they write them down, share them, and measure against them. But when it comes to culture, it's more implicit. We assume people should just "know" how to behave. I consistently observe that success is directly connected to a leader's ability to be explicit about their culture.

Here are three ways you can fast track your team, be they your coworkers or your kids, to a culture of success.

1. Name & claim your own true and noble purpose.

2. Establish clear, concise values.

3. Focus on behavior first, outcomes second.

Token Issuers and Purchasers, Beware: The IRS May Tax Each Time Tokens are Used

Many blockchain companies are using a largely unregulated means of raising funds, commonly known as an initial coin offering (ICO).[1] An ICO consists of the issuance of a newly generated cryptocurrency (generally referred to as a token) that runs on blockchain technology, in exchange for fiat currency (such as U.S. dollars) or other cryptocurrencies like bitcoin or ethereum. Broadly, tokens can either be classified as "utility tokens," which provide users with access to the blockchain platform developed by the issuer or products or services provided by the issuer, or "security tokens," which represent certain rights with respect to an entity, either as equity or debt.[2] This GT Alert discusses the potential tax implications of the so-called utility tokens. Estate Planning Under the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act

On Dec. 22, 2017, the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (the Act) was signed into law. It is the most sweeping federal tax legislation in decades and significantly changes the landscape of individual, corporate, partnership, international, and trust and estate taxation. In general, the changes made by the Act took effect as of Jan. 1, 2018, with most of the provisions affecting individual taxpayers being scheduled to sunset at the end of 2025. The implications of the Act are far-reaching. Residents of states that impose a state income tax and/or a state estate tax will face greater planning challenges in order to mitigate their tax burden. Tax Cuts and Jobs Act Disallows Deductions for Many Payments Due to Violation of Civil and Criminal Law

A provision in the new tax law greatly expands the scope of the disallowance of deductions for fines and penalties paid to government agencies. The new law disallows a tax deduction for any payment made to a government entity where the payment was made in relation to a violation of law or the investigation of a violation. Furthermore, it will disallow a deduction for payments made to third parties at the direction of a government agency. This deduction disallowance will make it costlier for a company to investigate and settle claims of violation of laws and regulations brought by federal, state, or local agencies or a foreign government. It will potentially touch a wide array of controversies that involve claims or actions alleging the violation of laws, including securities, employment, environmental, Foreign Corrupt Practice Act, white collar, whistleblower, healthcare, insurance, gaming, government contracts, or any other regulated industry. Under a literal reading of the statute, it could also apply to qui tam actions brought by private parties under a false claims (whistleblower) or private attorney general act. Any proposed settlement or consent order should be analyzed to determine whether it can be structured to limit the application of this new tax law. [READ MORE]

D.C. Circuit Partially Vacates FCC s 2015 Telephone Consumer Protection Act Order

The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit recently issued a long-awaited decision on an appeal challenging certain aspects of a July 2015 Federal Communications Commission Order that clarified and expanded the reach of the Telephone Consumer Protection Act (TCPA) (47 U.S.C. § 227) and the FCC's rules governing autodialed, prerecorded or artificial voice calls or SMS text messages, commonly known as robocalls (47 C.F.R. § 64.1200). As explained below, the court struck down the FCC's definition of automatic dialing equipment subject to the TCPA and the FCC's restrictions on calling wireless numbers that have been reassigned to new subscribers. In addition, the court affirmed the FCC's decision that a party may revoke consent to receive robocalls through any reasonable means and the scope of the FCC's exemption from the prior consent requirement for calls by healthcare providers to wireless numbers when several conditions are met. Las Vegas Municipal Court To Celebrate Double WIN Court Graduation June 27

Specialty Court Focuses On Women Offenders Impacted By Trauma

The Women in Need of Change (WIN) Court will celebrate the graduation of two amazing women who have successfully completed the Las Vegas Municipal Court Women in Need of Change Court program. The double WIN Court graduation ceremony will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday, June 27, in Las Vegas Municipal Court, Department 1 at the Regional Justice Center, located at 200 Lewis Ave, Courtroom 5A. Mayor Carolyn G. Goodman and Ward 5 Councilman Cedric Crear are expected to participate.

The 43rd WIN Court graduate, Kelli Scott, 55, has a criminal history that includes arrests and citations spanning 36 years. She has overcome the traumas resulting from years of life on the street. She worked hard on healing her relationships with her children and family and has built a solid foundation of recovery. Scott is living independently and working full time in the hospitality industry. She emerges as a strong, confident leader committed to helping others move forward. Scott's dedication, insight and leadership have been a role model for those who have been touched by her.

The 44th WIN Court graduate, Johannah Legrand, 33, tackled every challenge WIN Court set, facing her trauma and life obstacles as she accomplished the rigorous mandated program requirements. She worked hard to build a new life and future for herself and her children. Legrand is living independently, working full time in the hospitality industry and is committed to her recovery. She has emerged as a courageous, self-assured woman offering a helping hand and encouragement to others who are growing in recovery.

Graduation is the celebration of the journey of women who imagined the life they want and have worked very hard to achieve, if not surpass, their initial goals. The strength and determination of these women are an inspiration to women in recovery and to the women who are following in their footsteps through the WIN Court program.

WIN Court is a trauma-responsive, specialty court program in the Las Vegas Municipal Court that targets female offenders with a history of criminal behavior, prostitution and/or substance abuse-related charges by targeting the root of the issue — trauma. Through WIN Court, the women learn the tools to change their way of thinking to make positive choices and create their future. All participants have 180 days of jail time suspended for 18 months, which is cleared upon successful completion of the program.

The women who participate must comply with rigorous sentencing requirements throughout the program requiring the participants to complete drug treatment and intensive counseling programs, earn a GED or pursue education/training and secure employment. The defendants must stay out of trouble and abstain from drugs and alcohol during the program. The Court celebrated its first graduate in August 2008.

WIN Court currently is funded by an Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant and a grant from the Nevada Administrative Office of the Courts.

U.S. Drug Prices: Why Are They So High?

Presented jointly with Reuters

Event occurred on September 26, 2018.

Why are prescription drugs so expensive in the U.S., and what can be done to make them more affordable? Panelists at the recent Forum on drug pricing, presented jointly with Reuters as part of the Dr. Lawrence H. and Roberta Cohn Forums, weighed in.

Brief video clips

The market for brand-name drugs is inefficient and ineffective, says Aaron Kesselheim (Associate Professor of Medicine, Harvard Medical School/Brigham and Women's Hospital, and Director of the Program On Regulation, Therapeutics, And Law).

A small number of pricey brand-name drugs are responsible for the lion's share of prescription spending, explains Richard Frank (Professor of Health Economics in the Department of Health Care Policy, Harvard Medical School).

When a new drug comes on the market, the drug maker typically gets to name its price, no matter how high or how beneficial. Steven Pearson (President of the Institute for Clinical and Economic Review) outlines a better way to make a drug's price reflect its real value.

Prescription co-pay coupons seem like a great deal for consumers but they may actually prop up drug prices, explains Leemore Dafny (Professor of Business Administration, Harvard Business School).

Leemore Dafny (Harvard Business School), Steven Pearson (Institute for Clinical and Economic Review), Richard Frank (Harvard Medical School), and Aaron Kesselheim (Harvard Medical School) share their thoughts on the biggest challenges and opportunities in the future of drug pricing.

Five reasons drugs are more expensive in the U.S.

The market is broken: "There's a fundamental disconnect between the physicians that are prescribing the drug and the patients that are then taking and paying for the drug," said Aaron Kesselheim. Meanwhile, patients may not be aware of the full cost of their prescriptions. "Sheltering consumers from the actual cost of these medications is part of what is driving the growth in prices," said Leemore Dafny.

There's not enough competition: "The only kind of competition that substantially and consistently lowers drug prices in the U.S. is competition from interchangeable generic drugs," said Kesselheim. But progress toward improving access to interchangeable drugs has been "very sluggish," said Richard Frank.

Negotiation is harder than it looks: "When you hear about Medicare negotiation, it does actually sound easy on the surface, but once you get even one layer down, it gets really tricky," said Steven Pearson, pointing out that a national formulary that excludes some drugs would be unacceptable to many Americans.

The U.S. isn't Europe: "Europe does it differently," said Pearson. "They aggregate the buying power; they evaluate the clinical and cost effectiveness; and they negotiate." And when they can't agree on a price, said Pearson, "They are willing, in some cases, to say 'no.'"

Shenanigans: Drug-maker "shenanigans" also contribute to high prices by subverting processes intended to get cheaper drugs onto the market. For example, some companies have refused to provide samples of their products to manufacturers seeking to copy them, despite the intent of the law. "The pharmaceutical industry continues to resist legislation that would explicitly require the samples to be provided," said Dafny.

Amazing my one-liner response justified this lengthy litany of his perspectives.
Two things (actually 3) since he's thinking himself king and thus is most judgmental:

1. "acknowledgement" should be acknowledgment
2. Hasn't he studied enough history to realize we (the historical "we") are all immigrants and probably most were church-mouse poor at one point?
3. who made him king?
4. Should we answer or not?

Mayor Goodman,
Thank you for your acknowledgement. Please read my summary of "Adios America" below.
Also, because some people are more influenced by feelings than facts, I thought you might be interested in my summary of this NYT book review, "Against Empathy: The Case for Rational Compassion" by Paul Bloom:
"Empathy, he argues, is a poor moral guide.... favouring the one over the many... empathy is untampered by reason, emanating from the murky bayou of the gut. He prefers a kind of rational compassion - a mixture of caring and detached cost-benefit analysis. ... To those who say empathy is essential to morality, he would reply that morality has many sources. Many 'wrongs' - like littering or cheating on your taxes - have no distinct victims to empathise with. Nor does it appear that the most empathetic people behave the most ethically. There have been hundreds of studies... the results are 'meh'. ... empathy is generally a bad tool to use for allocating resources. ... is part of the reason why governments and individuals care more about a little girl stuck in a well than about events that will affect millions. Consider parenting... almost all parents have a terrible time tolerating the discomfort of their children. Yet it's often essential (going to the dentist, doing homework, spending a night away from home). ...rationality in political domains often does seem to be in short supply."

"Adios, America!" by Ann Coulter. Excerpts below:
1. For forty years, the people have tried to tell politicians they want less immigration, but the politicians won't listen. Every single elite group in America is aligned against the public - the media, ethnic activists, big campaign donors, Wall Street, multimillionaire farmers, and liberal "churches." They all want mass immigration from the Third World to continue. Both political parties connive to grant illegal aliens citizenship and bring in millions more legally, and the media hide the evidence. ... How immigration is changing our country is a lot more important than most of the "news" we hear about endlessly. The media will pound away at Chris Christie's 'Bridge gate', apocryphal fraternity rapes, the Augusta National Golf Club's membership policies, 'white privilege... But getting the truth about immigration is nearly impossible. The media tell us: ... Immigrants are doing the jobs Americans just won't do: Americans are perfectly happy to do all manner of jobs - they just won't do them for $7.00 an hour. Unions used to care about that, but now they just want political power.... Amnesty will be Fantastic for the Economy: Unless we're talking about the Mexican economy, this is patently ridiculous. Adding another 30 million poor, unskilled, non-taxpaying, welfare-receiving people to America is good only for government workers and employers who refuse to mechanize their operations or pay Americans one dollar more. ... The problems stemming from unchecked immigration are all over the news. You'll just never be told they are problems of immigration - children living in poverty, childhood obesity, teen pregnancy, out-of-wedlock births, abysmal high school dropout rates, income inequality, 'homegrown' terrorists, massive Medicare frauds, internet crime, identity theft, prison overcrowding, the vast number of uninsured used to justify Obamacare, sex trafficking, the epidemic of child rape, the destruction of our national parks, drunk driving casualties, drug-resistant tuberculosis, measles and other viral outbreaks, bankrupt government pension, low reading and math scores and shorter 'Americans'. ... why is it a crisis that illegal aliens are 'living in the shadows'?... It's supposed to be uncomfortable to break the law. ... How did all those illegal aliens get into the shadows in the first place? They weren't kidnapped and dragged across the border... But 'living in the shadows' is evidently better than living in Guadalajara, otherwise, there's an easy solution. Democrats aren't big on amnestying other lawbreakers. they don't hysterically demand amnesty for accounting cheats or polluters - not even for "the children" of accounting cheats and polluters. Enron executives were hard workers. They loved their families and wanted the best for them, just I'm sure MS-13 gang members love their families.... When the bathtub is overflowing, the very first thing you do is: TURN OFF THE WATER. ... obviously, any amnesty functions as a magnet for more illegal aliens. Nothing shows the bad faith of amnesty advocates with more blinding clarity than their steadfast refusal to seal the border. Ordinary people see this and know they're being lied to. ... China built a thirteen-thousand mile wall several centuries before Christ, and it's still working. ... For whom is a 'world without borders' an ideal? People who don't much care for America, I gather. ... Congress has repeatedly voted to build a border fence. But somehow, the fence never gets built - and Congress does nothing. ... amnesty supporters tried a surprise argument: To stop illegals pouring across the border, congress had to pass amnesty. They were hoping to stun us into silence with the stupidity of their argument. ... The 1986 Simpson-Mazzoli Act was supposed to end illegal immigration forever: Give us amnesty one time, then: Never again. As with all laws that combine the bitter with the sweet, such as tax hikes and spending cuts, we got one and not the other. The amnesty came, but the border security never did. Illegal immigration sextupled. There have been a half dozen more amnesties since then... . "The moral thing to do" is usually defined as "following the law." ... To paraphrase what President Bush used to say about terrorists: The anti-amnesty side has to be perfect every time; the pro-amnesty side only has to win once. Then the country is finished. 2. ... shouldn't politicians be more concerned with what citizens think of them than what foreigners do? ... Wouldn't any sane immigration policy be based on the principle that we want to bring in only immigrants who will benefit the people already here? ... Try calling another country's embassy and asking to immigrate there. Consulate: What do you want? You: Well, I can't read or write, I have no skills, and I've got nine kids. Oh and by the way. If I can't make it in your country, would you mind cutting my family a check once a month? ... Our "family reunification" policies mean that being related to a recent immigrant from Pakistan trumps being a surgeon from Denmark. Our government does such a terrific job at choosing who gets to immigrate to America that 52 percent of legal immigrant households with children are on government assistance. In all, nearly 60 percent of immigrants - legal and illegal - are on government assistance, compared with 39 percent of native households. Why would any country voluntarily bring in people who have to be supported by the taxpayer? ... The immigrants get a taxpayer subsidy to work for the rich, and the rich get a break on the maid. This cozy deal is funded by the long-suffering middle class. The anti-American crowd used to dash off to fight with Communist insurgencies in Third World jungles. But the fun of being self-righteous was sometimes cut short when they ended up in prison.... Rather than hating America from abroad, today's radicals can hate it right here at home by bringing the Third World to America! ... Being openly hostile to America has become a part of ethnic pride. US Rep Luis Gutierrez calls on his own country (technically the USA) to "stop the deportation of our people . ... Gutierrez told Newsweek that he has "only one loyalty, and that's to the immigrant community."

Whose taxes will be raised to make up the shortfall? Not the people who don't pay any taxes at all. Employers don't care. They want the cheap labor NOW.... We're seeing exactly what Vladimir Lenin is supposed to have said about capitalists: 'They will sell us the rope with which to hang them.' ... Whey shouldn't employers be on the hook when their cheap labor becomes a public charge or commits a crime? ... An immigration law premised on the idea that America owes the rest of the world would be bad enough. But Third World immigration + massive welfare state + political correctness = The end of America. 4. America is not the natural state of the world. The natural state of the world is Darfur. The British Empire spread Anglo-Saxon culture around the globe - Protestant morals, individualism, and the rule of law. Most British colonies rejected those values. Only the ones populated by actual British people -
America, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand - managed to hold on to them and, as a result, prospered. The empire's most successful experiment was the United States. Anyone who hesitates for a moment to recognize that some groups have it over other groups in producing free and prosperous nations has been brainwashed beyond reclamation.
5. America has already taken in more than one quarter of Mexico's entire population. ... Is that diverse enough yet? Why is it better that the ethnic population of our country be changed? ... Immigration of the past half century has been a homicide made to look like a suicide. ...a natural process? ... It's more like Americans are trying to stop an Army Corp of Engineers project that will flood the valley where they live in order to build a hydroelectric plant that will help one powerful corporation.
6. ... Until 1970, American immigrants did better than the natives - as any sane immigration policy would require. They made more money, bought more houses, and were more educated. By contrast, the post-1970 immigrants are far more likely to be unemployed and live in poverty that the native Americans. More that a third of the post-Kennedy act immigrants don't even have a high school diploma. ... In some bizarre notion of turn-about-is-fair-play, it is assumed that backward societies have the right to relocate to the countries of their former colonizers. I thought they hated those guys (the colonizers)? ... In just a few decades, Minnesota has gone from being approximately, 99 percent German, Dutch, Finnish, Danish, and Polish to 20 percent African immigrant, including at least one hundred thousand Somalis. And that's not counting the Somalis who have recently left the country to fight with al Queda and ISIS. One hundred thousand is just an estimate. We don't know precisely how many Somalis the federal government has brought in as "refugees" because the government won't tell us. ... Kate Towle, the parent leader of a high school group called "Students Together as Allies for Racial Trust" explained that diversity skills "have to be developed like math, history." Maybe it would be better for students to be learning math and history, rather than the important skill of getting along with Somalis. It doesn't seem to be working anyway. There are still violent ethnic brawls that send students to the hospital. What did we do to Somalis? ... absolutely nothing. But now these immigrants, who arrived yesterday, will get affirmative action over white Americans. ... Luckily, every Somali in Minnesota who has a job works for an ethnic grievance outfit - for example, the Somali Justice Advocacy Center, the Somali Resources Aid Associates, the African Development Center, and the Confederation of Somali Community in Minnesota. (And those are just some of the jobs being created by immigrants!). ... half of Somalis in Minnesota unemployed and 80 percent living at or below the poverty level... Recent mass murders committed by legal immigrants: The seven people murdered by Chechen immigrants Dzhokhar and Tamerlan Tsarnaev, who planted a bomb at the Boston Marathon, the four people fatally shot in a Carson City IHOP by... the Mexican-born Eduardo Sencion, the thirteen soldiers killed at Fort Hood by Major Nidal Malik Hasan, son of Palestinian immigrants, the thirteen people murdered by Vietnamese immigrant Jiverly Wong, at an American Civic Association in Binghamton, New York, the thirty-two people murdered at Virginia Tech by Seung-Hui Cho, a South Korean immigrant.... no one notices the immigrant crime wave because the media hide the evidence.

8. When did Americans get together and decide we want 30 percent of all immigrants to be from a single country and that country should be Mexico? If we're going to take almost all our immigrants from a single country, why not Denmark? There appears to have been only on Danish prisoner in New York State in decades - and, again, that was a Muslim. ...nearly 90 percent (of criminal aliens imprisoned in the states in 2009) were from one of eight countries: Mexico, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Cuba, Jamaica, El Salvador, Honduras, and Guatemala. ... What other country on earth would be so stupid? We have studies showing Hispanics are underrepresented in Hollywood, at top colleges, in the federal government, and in the national media... You know where else Hispanics are underrepresented? In the US military. You'd never know it... but Hispanics are half as likely to enlist in the military as either whites or blacks. ... Hispanic males in the US are more than three times as likely to spend time in prison in their lifetimes than white males. ... The vast majority of all drugs in America - heroin, cocaine, marijuana, and increasingly, methamphetamine - are brought in from Mexico. Most of the heroin sold in the US is grown south of the border, and Mexican cartels transport nearly all of it. ... More than 40,000 Americans were killed from all illegal drug use in 2010, surpassing car accidents and shootings as a cause of death. ... Today, China is once again battling drug smuggling because like America, it also has a poor, corrupt nation with a massive humanitarian crisis on its border; Not Mexico, but North Korea. Guess what China did? It built a fence! Despite stern warnings from the New York Times, China put a thirteen-foot barbed wire fence on its border, patrolled by armed guards. And you know what, it's working! ... Is an American citizen more likely to be murdered by a Muslim terrorist or by a Mexican? According to CNN, 29 Americans have been killed in Islamic terrorist attacks in the US since 9/11. I don't know why they excluded 9/11, so by my count, it's 3,029. In fact, let's round it up to 4,000 to cover the last several decades. According to the GAO's extremely conservative figures, Mexicans alone - forget other immigrants - have murdered a minimum of 23,000 Americans in the last few decades. ... If this were happening in Israel, forget a fence - Netanyahu would be bombing Mexico. ... President Eisenhower put a general in charge of the INS, who proceeded to round up and deport illegals in an operation dubbed "Operation Wetback." HBO's Bill Maher would be saying of our southern neighbors: "Americans have 349 Nobel Prizes; Latin Americans have 16. That seems like kind of a big advantage for Team America." ... Far more Americans are murdered by Mexicans, per capita, than Israelis are murdered by Palestinians. 11. The three young girls kidnapped and held as sex slaves for more than a decade in a boarded-up house in Cleveland had been held by Ariel Castro. ... But then it turned out Castro wasn't the only Hispanic raping young girls - on his block. ... While investigating the Castro case, detectives happened upon Acevedo... he had raped and killed two of his neighbors...

Chandra Levy's killer turned out not to be Democratic Congressman Gary Condit, but Ingmar Guandique - an illegal alien from El Salvador, given temporary amnesty by President Bush. (Does that guy have any brothers? I'd love to see another one like him in the White House!). The one Central Park rapist that even liberals admit was guilty was Hispanic Matias Reyes. After the other attackers had finished with the victim, Reyes came across the joggers beaten and bloody body, and raped her himself.

12. ... environmentalists used to care about gridlock, overcrowding, loss of parkland, and exhaustion of natural resources. Not anymore. Today's environmentalists turn a blind eye as 25 million people tramp through delicate ecosystems, set fire to national parks, kill livestock, dump tons of soiled diapers and Pepsi bottles in the desert, and deface ancient Native American sites. Political correctness demands that no one notice immigrants' toll on the environment. ... Of the 77 human-caused fires on federal or tribal land in Arizona between 2006 and 2010 investigated by the GAO, a cause could be determined in 60 cases. Fully half of those were caused by illegal aliens. ...One of the reasons the GAO was able to review only 77 fires was that the BLM and the Forest Service couldn't spare any agents for investigations. They were too busy protecting 'firefighters and their equipment from illegal aliens.' Apparently, when illegals see border patrol agents, they try to distract them by throwing lighted matches in the brush to start fires. Not only do illegal immigrants intentionally set wildfires, but they violently attack firefighters trying to extinguish the blazes. Firies are allowed to rage, because fire crews are forced to wait for law enforcement protection. ... The Forest Service had once gamely suggested trying to identify 'the group most likely to start fires,' but once the evidence was in, they buried it. To blame illegal aliens would be playing the 'blame the perpetrator' game. ... Because of new border restrictions after 9/11 - I guess it was possible to tighten the borders! - our dear friends in Mexico moved their drug cartel operations directly into America's parks. ... 'These guys shoot people'... Armed illegal aliens were in control of our national parks, so government officials leapt to action by shutting down the parks. A majority of Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument was closed to US citizens for more than a decade because it was too dangerous.

... For a glimpse into America's future, consider how Mexicans treat their own environment. In Mexico's most famous national park, a ten-thousand-year-old evergreen forest designated by presidential decree as a biosphere reserve, illegal loggers chop down about seventy mature tress a day... While environmentalists from around the world send millions of dollars to Mexico preserve the forest... For decades, Mexican refuse ended up on San Diego's world-famous beaches by way of the Tijuana River. ... One solution would have been for Mexicans to stop throwing their garbage in the river. ... Instead, US taxpayers funded a sewage treatment plant on the border at a cost of $239.4 million. Mexico chipped in $17 million. ... Where are the environmentalists? For 50 years, they've been carrying on about overpopulation; promoting family planning, birth control... The Sierra Club began sounding the alarm over the country's expanding population in 1965 - the very year Teddy Kennedy's immigration act passed - and in 1978, adopted a resolution expressly asking Congress to 'conduct a thorough examination of US immigration laws.' For a while, the Club taked about almost nothing else. "It is obvious" the Club said two years later, "that the numbers of immigrants the US accepts affects our population size and growth rate," even more than 'the number of children per family.

Over the next three decades, America took in tens of millions of legal immigrants and illegal aliens alike. But suddenly, about ten years ago, the Sierra Cub realized to its embarrassment that importing multiple millions of polluting, fire-setting, littering immigrants is actually fantastic for the environment! The advantages of overpopulation dawned on the Sierra Club right after it received a $100 million donation from hedge fund billionaire David Gelbaum with the express stipulation that - as he told the LA Times - 'if they ever came out anti-immigration, they would never get a dollar from me.' It would be as if someone offered the Catholic Church $100 million to be pro-abortion. But the Sierra Club said: Sure! Did you bring the check? Obviously, there's no reason to listen to them on anything.

... Not only did the Sierra Club never again say another word against immigration, but, in 2004, it went the extra mile, denouncing three actuals environmentalists running for the Club's board, by claiming they were racists who opposed mass immigration. The three 'white supremacists' were Dick Lamm, the three-time Democratic governor of Colorado; Frank Morris, former head of the Black Congressional Caucus Foundation; and Cornell professor David Pimentel, who created the first ecology course at the university... America's premiere hate group, the Southern Poverty Law Center, jumped into the fray, with multimillionaire con man and SPLC head Morris Dees running for the Sierra Club board simply to smear the three real environmentalist candidates... But, evidently, what poor Southerners need most is a massive influx of foreign poor people competing for their jobs. ... In 2012, Sierra Club executive director Michael Brune announced that the Club officially supported mass immigration - amnesty, no borders, more legal immigration, the whole nine yards.

13. Normally, (Carlos) slim is the kind of businessman the (NY) Times - along with every other sentient human being - would find repugnant. Frequently listed as the richest man in the world, Slim acquired his fortune through a corrupt inside deal giving him a monopoly on telecommunications services in Mexico. But in order to make money from his monopoly, Slim needs lots of Mexicans living in the US, sending money to their relatives back in Oaxaca. Otherwise, Mexicans couldn't pay him - and they wouldn't have much need for phone service, either, other than to call in ransom demands. Back in 2004, before the Times became Slim's pimp - a Times article stated: "Clearly... the nation's southern border is under siege." But that was before Carlos Slim saved the Times from bankruptcy. Ten years later, with a border crisis even worse that in 2004, and Latin America pouring across the border, the Times indignantly demanded the Obama "go big" on immigration and give "millions of immigrants permission to stay". ...

Republicans are terrified of saying anything about immigration for fear of being called 'racist.' ... The fact that most immigrants are Hispanic provides excellent cover for the elite's monumental self-interest. Here's a tip for the GOP: Don't talk about the illegal aliens. Talk about Carlos Slim, Talk about rich Americans finding a solution to 'the servant problem.' Talk about one-hit wonder Mark Zuckerberg underpaying his computer programmers while 32 percent of American graduates in STEM fields can't get job and the rest haven't seen their salaries rise for more than a decade. Talk about how Bill Clinton couldn't find someone to be his attorney general because of the prevalence of illegal alien employees in households of the '1 percent'. Determined to appoint a woman attorney general, Clinton kept producing women with illegal alien nannies (Zoe Baird, Kimba Wood). ... The elites just can't grasp that most Americans raise their own kids, make their own beds, cook their own food, and drive their own cars. ... America will be Brazil, with a well-pampered, itty-bitty upper class, amid an ocean of poor people. ... It's a sweet deal the elites have: They get to have cheap nannies and lawn boys in the whitest towns in America - and feel morally superior at the same time!
14. The vast majority of all legal immigrants - two thirds- get in on "family reunification" policies each year. In other words, America has no say about the single largest category of immigrants... Entire villages from Pakistan are dumped on the country, based not on their expertise in nuclear engineering, but because everyone in the village is related to the first guy who got in. If they're not, in the strict sense, related, they'll lie. In 2008, the State Department suspended the family reunification part of the African refugee program because DNA testing showed that only 20 percent of 'family members' were actually related. We'll still take as many refugees from Africa, but they won't have to lie about being related anymore. ... The special agricultural amnesty of 1986 is a good example of how even the most reasonable-sounding immigration law will inevitably be turned into a pipeline for criminals, welfare cases, and terrorists. ... illegal alien farmworkers who could prove they had done seasonal farmwork for a total of ninety days between May 1, 1985 and May 1, 1986, would be granted temporary legal status. what could go wrong? In the first three years of the program, 888,637 agricultural amnesty applications were identified as fraudulent - but only 60,637 of those were denied. Overwhelmed with amnesty applications under just this one provision, the INS found it to be a big time-saver to simply ignore fraud. ... Mohammed Salameh, another terrorist convicted in the 1993 World Trade Center bombing, was also in the US because of Schumer's special agricultural worker amnesty. The unskilled 19-year-old first came to the US on a tourist visa because, as the US consulate later explained, someone in the office "took a chance" on Mohammed. Mohammed not only had never worked on a farm, but he was not even in the country until 1988, two years after the special amnesty became law, though it was explicitly limited to those who had worked on farms in the US in the year before May 1, 1986. By the most basic definition of the law, Mohammed was not eligible, but he was allowed to stay in the US and obtain a work visa - while the INS processed his petition. Moving with the lightning speed of a government agency, the INS rejected his petition for amnesty as a farm worker three years later. Then, Mohammed applied for a general amnesty, claiming he had been living continuously in the US from 1980 to 1986. Actually, he was a teenager in Jordan then, but again, Mohammed was allowed to stay while the INS considered his request. As it considering, Mohammed bombed the World Trade Center.
How about all those brainy, high-tech H-!B immigrants that Senator Orrin Hatch keeps telling us about? ... the cheap-labor advocacy group Partnership for a New American Economy excitedly tweeted that two - yes two - of the five LindedIn founders were "born in Europe"!... Here's my counter tweet: 98.7% fo the founders of important Silicon Valley companies were born in America! 99 percent are white men! ... Professor Norman Matloff: 'The vast majority of H-1B's, including those hired from US universities, are ordinary people doing ordinary work, not the best and the brightest. On the contrary, the average quality of the H-1Bs is lower that theat of the Americans. ... The main advantage of foreign labor over native workers, Matloff explains, is aht H-1B workers are indentured servants: They can't quit without risking deportation. so American employers get to pay less for standard computer programming work. ... They want cheap people. Mass-immigration advocates push ethnic stereotypes about high-IQ immigrants, but then go crazy whenever anyone suggests we actually bring in high-IQ immigrants. ... The average Indian IQ is staggeringly low: 82. That's about the same as the average IQ in Afghanistan - 84; Panama - 84; Dominican Republic - 82; Paraguay - 84; Yemen - 85; and Tonga - 86. We take more immigrants from India than from Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Sweden, Switzerland, Spain, and the Czech Republic put together. Why are we discriminating...? The answer is: Because those immigrants would tend to fill the kinds of jobs rich people have.
15. The only thing that stands between America and oblivion is a total immigration moratorium. ... It's evident that the government can't be trusted to use three brain cells in admitting immigrants, so its discretion has to be completely revoked. No matter how clearly laws are written, government bureaucrats connive to confer citizenship on people that a majority of Americans would not want to let in as tourists, much less as our fellow citizens. ... No other fix will work. Congress could just insist that immigrants pay taxes, learn English, not collect welfare, and have good moral character, except the problem is: It already has. All those laws were swept away by INS officials, judges, and Democratic administrations. Doing it again won't produce a different result. ... Even if we could trust the government on immigration - and we can't - there are the legions of immigration lawyers, lobbyists, nonprofits, and general miscreants whose single-minded mission is to turn America into the Third World hellhole of liberal fantasies. ... The billion-dollar immigration industry has turned every single aspect of immigration law into an engine of fraud. The family reunifications are frauds, the 'farmworkers' are frauds, the high-tech visas are frauds - and the asylum and refugee cases are monumental frauds. ... the only result of our asylum policies is that we get good liars. Taxpayers subsidize sleazy immigration activists who coach immigrants to lie to immigration officials. Document mills produce phony passports, school records, and medical reports. ... immigration judges approve 92 percent of all "credible fear" asylum applications.

16. ... if Romney had won 71 percent of the Hispanic vote in 2012, instead of 27 percent, he still would have lost. On the other hand, had he won just 4 percent more of the white vote, he would have won.
17. America's suicidal immigration policies are the single biggest threat facing the nation. What happens with immigration will determine whether America continues to exist or becomes a Third World republic...

Mayor Goodman,
I was disappointed to watch you on your KCLV show Friday evening supporting illegal aliens. Worse yet was the inclusion of two guests, both of who were also advocates of illegal aliens. Wouldn't it have been fair to host an equal amount of speakers in opposition? Is the care and feeding of illegal aliens a part of the city charter? I doubt it. We need the illegal immigrants to return to their native countries. Your positions lure more of them here and encourage them to stay. Why don't you start looking out for US citizens first? Don't you realize that the reason people from third world countries sneak into the US is ultimately because they can't stand being around other third world people. Plenty of skilled people from developed countries are waiting patiently for admission to the US. Is it fair to reward those whose very first act into this county is illegal? You can disguise the problem by saying they are fleeing high crime rates, violence, rotten economy... but this deception hides the real reason. Why would you want to turn us into a third world country? If you feel so concerned about them, there is an easy solution: move to a third world country to help them where they are.

Please read:

The Immigration Solution, by MacDonald, Hansen & Malanga

While the cheapness of the immigrants' labor may benefit a very few industries and provide some upper and le-class families with cut-rate gardeners and nannies, it adds very little to our national standard of living. On the other side of the ledger, the costs these immigrants impose on US taxpayers for health care, schooling, welfare, and (all too often) incarceration far outweigh the benefits they offer. In California, the National Academy of Sciences found immigrant families cost each native-born household an additional $1,200 in taxes per year. Although a net loss for the US, such workers are an unalloyed boon for Mexico. Their ability to find work north of the border is an essential safety valve for Mexico's failed economy and stubbornly unreformed political culture, and the remittances these workers send home are indispensable to Mexico, constituting its second largest source of hard currency. No wonder the Mexican government – especially through its consuls in the US – vigorously fosters the illegal migration of its nationals into its northern neighbor. … But those earlier huddled masses of immigrants yearning to breathe free, however tired and poor they may have looked, were in fact on average more skilled than the native-born population of a century ago. In addition, the less-developed economy of that era also had a vastly greater need for immigrants without skills than does today's knowledge economy. More important, the US immigration system of that period was a machine for selecting the most enterprising and energetic migrants. With no welfare system whatever, those who came were those who thought they could make use of the opportunity and freedom America offered by their own efforts. Grateful for the chance, these newcomers were only too glad to assimilate to their new land as best they could, and their children did so wholeheartedly. Not so today. The first child born in America to an immigrant entitles his or her family to child-only welfare payments – a hefty-looking sum to a recent migrants from a peasant village. … Deprived of work, illegals would return home, just as 60 percent of immigrants from the first great migration eventually left these shores when they couldn't make it here. ...our new policy should select newcomers not because they are someone's brother or adult child or elderly parents, or because they successfully sneaked into the country some years ago, but because they have some special skill... that will enrich our nation. … Thousands arrive illegally from Mexico into California each year... They come in such numbers because a tacit alliance of Right and Left has created an open-borders policy, aimed at keeping wage labor cheap and social problems ever fresh, so that the ministrations of Chicano studies professors, La Raza activists, and all the other self-appointed defenders of group causes will never be unneeded. … nearly one quarter of California's inmates are aliens from Mexico. The pro-labor left found that the industrious new arrivals whom it championed eroded the wages of its own domestic low wage constituencies - the Labor Department attributes 50 percent of real-wage declines to the influx of cheap immigrant labor. … when I was ten, in 1963, all suburbanites mowed their own lawns – many with push mowers. Now almost everyone hires the job out. Nannies for toddlers and grannies, unheard of then, are now ubiquitous... Rural schools used to begin in mid-September to ensure that we natives could pick grapes to earn our school clothes and shoes. Today not a single student in California would do such hot, dirty work, now considered demeaning. … So we allow illegal aliens to obtain California driver's licenses – the foundation for all other means of legal identification – and to pay reduced in-state tuition at the University of California, thereby providing several thousand dollars in discounts not available to American citizens from out of state. Whether you break the law to reach California or immigrate legally, it makes little difference in how you drive, send your kids to college, or draw on the public services of the state. … I often suggest to teachers who tell aliens that our culture is racist, exploitative, and sexist that they should live in Mexico themselves to fathom why millions are dying to obtain what they so casually dismiss.
… America does not have a vast labor shortage that requires waves of low wage immigrants to alleviate; in fact, unemployment among native-born unskilled workers in high – consistently about double the nations' overall unemployment rate. … an unusual coalition of business groups, unions, civil rights activists, and church leaders thwarted the call for restrictions with passage of the inaptly names 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act, which legalized some 2.7 million unauthorized aliens already here, supposedly in exchange for tougher penalties and controls against employers who hired illegals. The law proved no deterrent, however, because supporters, in subsequent legislation and court cases argued on civil rights grounds, weakened the employer sanctions. Meanwhile more illegals flooded here in the hope of future amnesties from Congress, while the newly legalized sneaked their wives and children into the country rather than have them wait for family-preference visas. The flow of illegals into the country rose to between 300,000 and 500,000 per year in the 1990's, so that a decade after the legislation that had supposedly solved the undocumented alien problem by reclassifying them as legal, the number of illegals living in the US was back up to about 5 million. … In many American industries, waves of low-wage workers have also retarded investments that might lead to modernization and efficiency. Farming, which employs a million immigrant laborers in California alone, is the prime case in point. Faced with a labor shortage in the early 1960's, when President Kennedy ended a 22-year-old guest-worker program that allowed 45,000 Mexican farm hands to cross over the border and harvest 2.2 million tons of California tomatoes for processed foods, farmers complained but swiftly automated, adopting a mechanical tomato-picking technology created more than a decade earlier. Today, just 5,000 better-paid workers – one-ninth the original workforce – harvest 12 million tons of tomatoes using the machines. The savings prompted by low-wage migrants may even be minimal in crops not easily mechanized. … If the benefits of the current generation of migrants are small, the costs are large and growing because of America's vast range of social programs and the wide advocacy network that strives to hook low-earning legal and illegal immigrants into these programs. A 1998 Nationals Academy of Sciences study found that more than 30 percent of California's foreign-born were on Medicaid... compared with 14 percent of native –born households. The foreign-born were more than twice as likely as the native-born to be on welfare, and their children were nearly five times as likely to be in means-tested government lunch programs. Native-born households pay for much of this, the study found, because they earn more and pay higher taxes – and are more likely to comply with tax laws. Recent immigrants, by comparison, have much lower levels of income and tax compliance.

... This call for 'human rights' is a clever one, for it hides its radical status in a rhetorical safe harbor. What, exactly, are the 'human rights' that the US is denying illegal aliens? They have unfettered access to free medical care, free education, welfare for their children, free representation in court when they commit crimes, every due process protection during criminal prosecution that the Constitution guarantees citizens and legal immigrants, the shelter of labor laws, and the miracles of modern industrial society like clean water, the control of infectious diseases (including the ones they bring with them), and plumbing. The only putative 'right' they lack - and that, of course, is the 'human right' to which they and their ambassadors refer - is the right to legal status regardless of illegal entry. ....

No one will take the assurance that 'this time we mean business' seriously. If the executive branch is not willing to enforce the current law against violators, a new set of laws will not suddenly strengthen its resolve... border defenses have been fortified over the years, but the drill has been: if you can get past the border patrol, you are home free. The most important action the government could take to end illegal immigration would be to penalize employers that unlawfully hire illegal aliens... After 9/11, the department of Homeland Security deported fifteen hundred illegal Pakistanis. An additional fifteen thousand then left voluntarily, reports Jessica Vaughan of the Center for Immigration Studies. There is no reason to think this enforcement-through-attrition strategy won't work as well for Hispanic illegals. ...

It would be useful for open-borders optimists to spend some time in the Los Angeles Unified School District, which is 73 percent Hispanic, and where just 40 percent of Hispanic students graduate. (Nationwide, 53 percent of Hispanics graduate from high school...) Of those Hispanic students who do graduate, just 22 percent have completed the course work necessary for admission to a four-year state college - which means that of all Hispanic students who enter in ninth grade, fewer than 15 percent will graduate ready for college. Immigrant advocates have fiercely opposed in court a long-deferred California high school exit exam, which would require students to answer just over 50 percent of questions testing eight-grade-level math and ninth-grade-level English. The California Research Bureau predicts that if the exam becomes a reality, Hispanic graduation rates would drop well below 30 percent. ... Schools spend huge sums trying to improve the Hispanic graduation rate, even hiring 'outreach consultants' for dropout prevention. One Santa Ana consultant's approach is predictably multicultural. "We need to teach teachers that students need to be proud of where they are coming from," she told me. But, of course, Hispanic school failure derives not from ethnic neglect - the Sana

Ana schools glorify the Hispanic heritage to a fault...
...a high level of immigration translates to increased levels of crime. Between the foreign-born generation and their American children, the incarceration rate of Mexican American jumps more than eightfold...
Pro-amnesty forces promote that illegal immigrants "risk everything for the dream of freedom"... However lousy the Mexican economy, there are few, if any, political freedoms enjoyed by Americans that Mexico denies. It is the Yankee dollar, not untasted freedom, that brings the vast majority of illegals here.

...in spring 2006 American witnessed millions of illegal aliens who not only were unapologetic about their illegal status but were demanding that their hosts accommodate their own political grievances, from providing driver's licenses to full amnesty. The largest demonstrations - held on May Day, with thousands of protesters waving Mexican flags and bearing placards depicting the Communist insurrectionist Che Guevara - only confirmed to most Americans that illegal immigration was out of control and beginning to become politicized along the lines of Latin American radicalism. I chronicled in Mexifornia the anomaly of angry protesters waving he flag of the country they vehemently did not wish to return to , but now the evening news beamed these images to millions. In short, the radical socialism of Latin America, seething in the angry millions who flocked to support Venezuela's Hugo Chavez, Bolivia's Evo Morales, and Mexico's Andres Lopez Obrador, had now seemingly been imported into our own largest cities. ...

Crippled America

We are the only nation in the world whose immigration system places the needs of other nations ahead of our own. … Too many people have forgotten the Mariel boatlift. … The Mexican government has published pamphlets explaining how to illegally emigrate to the US. … It's a great way for those governments to get rid of their worst people without paying any price.... Operation Wetback... was successful. It was a joint effort between the INS and the Mexican government. Special immigration teams were created to quickly process and deport illegal immigrants. One of the reasons it worked is that people who were caught were given to Mexican government agents, who moved them into central Mexico, where they could find jobs. ...In the first year, more than one million people were sent back. ...Why should we absorb the expense of keeping criminals in prisons? Let their countries of origin deal with the problems they sent us. If they refuse to take them back, we can stop issuing visas to those countries, preventing their citizens from legally visiting the US. I also would triple the number of immigration officers we currently employ until the wall is built. … Currently there are about 5,000 officers attempting to enforce the existing immigration laws against the more than 11 million illegal aliens. Compare that to the... 35,000 officers in the New York Police Department. Since 9/11 we have tripled the size of the border patrol but haven't substantially increased the number of ICE officers – the officers who enforce immigration laws. … We have to cut off federal grants to sanctury cities... We need to have real penalties for people who overstay their visas. … Most important is ending or curtailing so-called birthright citizenship, or anchor babies. … It is estimated that about 300,000 of these children are born here annually. That's 300,000 children who are entitled to all the rights and privileges granted to American citizens because their mothers entered this country illegally... There are businesses that specialize in making this happen! They call it 'birth tourism'…. And those people take advantage of the system and come here illegally should never enjoy the benefits of being a resident – or citizen – of this nation. So, I am against any path to citizenship for undocumented workers or anyone else who is in this country illegally. They should – and need to – go home and get in line. And you know who agrees with me? The Mexicans, the Chinese, and all the people from other countries who want to be here legally and can't get a visa or fit into a quota... We can be generous and do all of this humanely. But the security and prosperity of American citizens have to come first. .. (Chapter 3)

I believe in putting the needs of American citizens first, always.... There's an old phrase that, sadly, you rarely hear anymore, "Made in America". We will start saying this again. (Chap. 10)

This Month In Washington: Rent Relief, Employment for DREAMers, and Medicare for All

Friend,

April has been a productive month in Washington. In particular, I have pushed for major policy changes, including introducing legislation that would finally guarantee affordable, comprehensive health care to every American; lift the ban on DREAMers working or participating in paid internships in Congress; and make rental housing more affordable for working households.

We have to remember that no matter the challenges our country may face, there is still so much energy, activism and optimism, too. Our nation's strength has never been found in the walls we build between us. It's in our diversity and our unity – and that is our power.

Let's continue to fight for equity and justice for all Americans.

Thanks,
Kamala

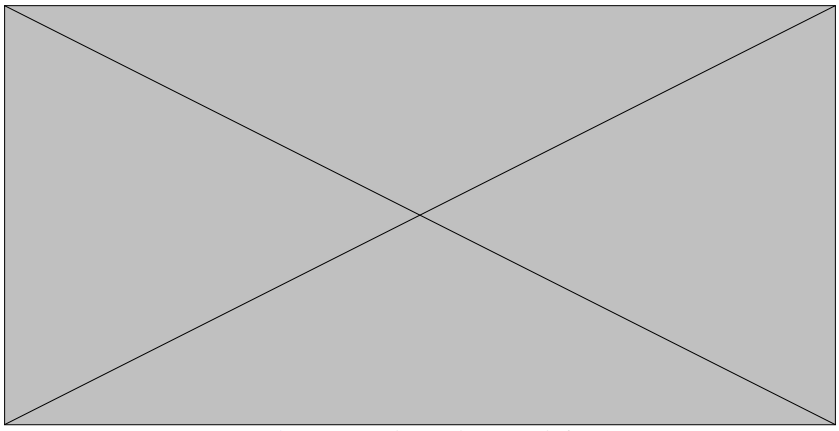
United States Senator

Rent Relief Act:



Watch Sen. Harris discuss the Rent Relief Act.

As tax season came to a close, many Americans were left feeling as though the current tax system seems to help more people at the top than at the bottom of the income scale. For the last generation, most Americans have not seen their earnings rise, but their bills are going up every month. With the rising cost of health care, childcare, and housing, more and more families struggle to make ends meet.

That is why Senator Harris reintroduced the Rent Relief Act, legislation to help make rental housing more affordable for middle- and low-income households. The legislation creates a new, refundable tax credit for households whose housing costs exceed 30% of their income, including rent and utilities. Unlike existing tax credits, Americans who qualify would receive the benefits every month.

Housing is a human right. Every family deserves a safe place to call home. That's why I've reintroduced the Rent Relief Act.

-Senator Kamala D. Harris

American Dream Employment Act:

Earlier this month, Senator Harris introduced the American Dream Employment Act, legislation to rescind the current prohibition on Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) recipients working or participating in paid internships in Congress.

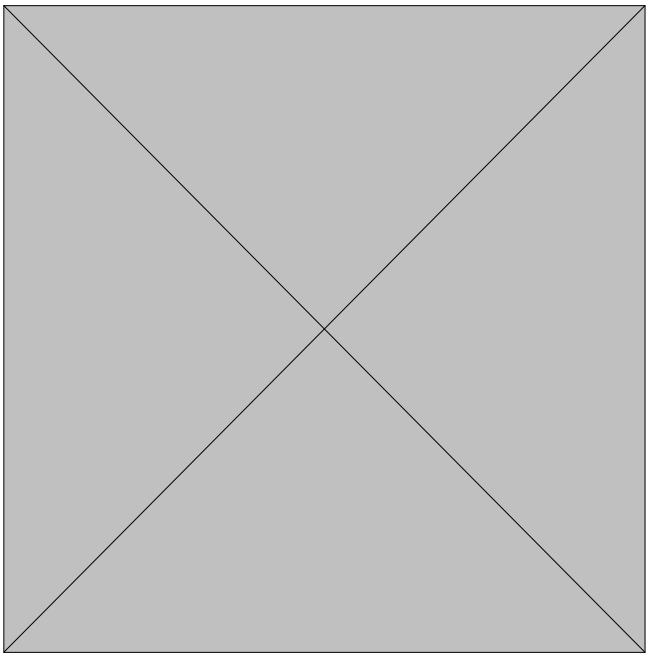
The 'DREAMers Welcome Here' sign outside Sen. Harris' office.

Our nation's DREAMers are some of our best and brightest, and it's time they had the opportunity to get a job or paid internship on Capitol Hill.

-Senator Kamala D. Harris

Medicare for All Act:

Senator Harris joined her colleagues in introducing the Medicare for All Act of 2019 to guarantee health care at far lower cost to working families and the nation as a whole. This bill would ensure Americans could go to the doctor and get the care they need, when they need it, without going into debt. It would significantly lower the price of prescription drugs by empowering the federal government to negotiate with pharmaceutical corporations. Furthermore, it would expand coverage to include home and community based long-term care services, ensuring people with disabilities can receive the care they need to stay in their homes and remain part of their communities.



Watch Sen. Harris discuss why she supports Medicare for All.

Health care should be a right for everyone in our country, not a privilege for the few. I'm proud to once again cosponsor the Medicare for All Act to make sure every American has affordable, comprehensive health care.

Subject: Fireworks!

Happy Fourth of July! Last night, Friday, June 23rd, the fireworks started around 5:00pm. I left my house for about 2 hours and when I returned, the "booms" continued. I finally called the non emergency police number around 9:00 pm to report the fireworks. The dispatcher informed me that they had already received a call about the area I mentioned and a patrol car had been sent out. She also told me that they hate this time of the year for this very reason. She even thanked me for my efforts to try and get this nonsense stopped. I had to give my little dog drugs last night and because of his trembling and barking, I got very little sleep. Today I have to teach private music lessons. I don't have the luxury of sleeping all day like those who were shooting off the fireworks do, no doubt.
We have over a week before the actual 4th celebration. I'm already exhausted. This will continue throughout the week because I am quite sure Las Vegas doesn't have the necessary police officers to patrol these neighborhoods for idiots who can't curb their enthusiasm for using these illegal fireworks in our city neighborhoods. A ban should be implemented on ALL fireworks in neighborhoods. But because you say you cannot do that, your police force will be answering calls all week from residents who, like me, just want to live in peace. We are the ones who work and pay taxes.
I wish I could redirect these fireworks to your neighborhood so you could experience what others have to endure. Maybe after a few sleepless nights you might find the motivation to ban fireworks in all city neighborhoods!
Respectfully,
Barbara Gurley

Investigating Microplastic Pollution in Nevada’s Waterways

Microplastics are plastic pieces ranging in size from 5mm to microscopic particles, in other words, the size of a pencil’s eraser or smaller, and they've been found everywhere from the air we breathe to the deep ocean.

Because microplastics are durable, insoluble, and potentially toxic, they could pose threat to natural ecosystems and human health. To determine the impact of microplastic pollution, researchers must first understand just how much tiny plastic is out there and where it’s coming from.

DRI’s Monica Arienzo, Zoe Harrold, Meghan Collins, Xuelian Bai, and University of Nevada, Reno undergraduate Julia Davidson are exploring these questions in two bodies of freshwater in Nevada: Lake Tahoe and the Las Vegas Wash.

Funding for this project came from the DRI Foundation’s Innovation Research Program (IRP), which is designed to support DRI faculty and staff as they pursue their very best ideas.

Alison Murray selected to co-lead NASA's Network for Ocean Worlds

DRI microbial oceanographer and Antarctic researcher Alison Murray, Ph.D., has been selected to co-lead a new NASA initiative to guide the search for life in ocean worlds beyond Earth. Murray is best known for her work discovering the existence of microbial life at −13 °C within the ice-sealed Lake Vida in Antarctica.

The Network for Ocean Worlds (NOW) will foster research to identify ice-covered ocean worlds beyond Earth, characterize those oceans, investigate their habitability, search for life, and ultimately understand any life that is found.

Murray will co-lead the network with Chris German at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution (WHOI) and Alyssa Rhoden at the Southwest Research Institute (SwRI).

To treat a tumor, doctors deliver chemotherapeutic agents and other drugs through the bloodstream so that they may travel to and treat the cancerous cells. The tissue in solid tumors, however, is deformed, with twisted blood vessels and increased cell variability. This means that drugs traveling through the vessels may not be able to reach all the affected cells, making the treatment ineffective.

With IRP funding, Rishi Parashar, Ph.D. (right), and Nicole Sund, Ph.D. (left), are using their expertise in hydrological modeling to better understand the movement of anti-cancer drugs through cancerous tumors. Collaborating with a molecular cancer virologist, Subhash Verma, Ph.D., at University of Nevada, Reno's School of Medicine, Parashar and Sund hope that the mathematical models they create will allow them to determine the effective concentration of drugs for treatment of solid tumors.

Funding for this project came from the DRI Foundation's Innovation Research Program (IRP), which is designed to support DRI faculty and staff as they pursue their very best ideas.

Justices Won't Hear Gay Conversion Therapy Ban Challenge

The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday rejected a challenge to New Jersey's ban on so-called gay conversion therapy based on claims that the law directly conflicts with the high court's own precedent, declining to consider whether the therapy is protected under the First Amendment.

Obama's Supreme Court Nominee Shortlist Still In The Works

President Barack Obama has yet to finalize his shortlist of nominees for the U.S. Supreme Court vacancy left open by Justice Antonin Scalia's death, leaving the potential for more candidates to come under review, the White House said Monday.

Full 6th Circ. Asked To Review EPA Water Rule Decision

A variety of industry groups asked the full Sixth Circuit on Monday to review a panel's ruling that circuit courts, not federal district courts, are the proper venue to hear challenges to a controversial U.S. Environmental Protection Agency rule clarifying the federal government's jurisdiction under the Clean Water Act.

Justices Reject GOP Donor's ACA Tax Challenge

The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday turned away the appeal of a Texan doctor and prominent Republican donor whose suit seeking to invalidate the ACA had been dismissed by the Fifth Circuit after finding it was barred by an act banning lawsuits that attempt to restrain the collection of a tax.

High Court Won't Hear EPA Chesapeake Pollution Plan Appeal

The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday declined to grant the American Farm Bureau Federation's bid to strike down U.S. Environmental Protection Agency pollution restrictions for the Chesapeake Bay watershed, which critics had slammed as a federal power grab.

Privacy Shield Text Won't Spur Sweeping Data Transfer Fixes

The full text of the trans-Atlantic "Privacy Shield" data transfer pact unveiled Monday reveals a robust framework that will force multinationals to reassess how they handle transferred data, but the new obligations are unlikely to prompt companies to make sweeping changes or deter them from signing up for the mechanism, attorneys say.

Global Regulators Turn Wary Eye On Fintech

Global regulators indicated over the weekend that they will turn their attention to the potential risks that emerging financial technology poses to the broader financial system, signaling the growing importance of the new market entrants and regulators' desire to catch up without getting in the way of innovation.

9th Circ. Reinstates FWS Polar Bear Habitat Designation

The Ninth Circuit has reversed an Alaska district court's judgment vacating parts of the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service's designation of critical habitat in Alaska for the polar bear, a defeat for energy groups that fought to void the government's decision.

FWS Denied Bid To Relist Prairie Chicken As Threatened

A Texas federal judge on Monday found that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service hadn't proven its argument that stripping the lesser prairie chicken of its threatened species listing had caused irreparable harm and declined to amend his judgment that delisted the bird.

FRA Should Step Up Penalties For Hazmat Violations, IG Says

The nation's rail safety regulator is doling out tepid civil fines for serious safety violations committed by companies shipping crude oil and other hazardous materials by rail when it should be referring at least some of those incidents for criminal prosecution, a government watchdog said Friday.

Pa. DEP Chief Asserts Mandate To Protect Chesapeake Bay

The secretary of Pennsylvania's Department of Environmental Protection on Monday justified the state's efforts to preserve the Chesapeake Bay as part of a fundamental duty to protect local waterways, on the same day the U.S. Supreme Court declined to review a ruling upholding Environmental Protection Agency pollution restrictions for the watershed.

House Backs Efficiency Exemption For LED Lighting Tech

The U.S. House of Representatives unanimously passed several energy-related bills Monday, including measures to exempt certain lighting technologies from U.S. Department of Energy efficiency standards, promote worker training for energy jobs and improve the DOE's nuclear reactor research and development efforts.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Compliance Clues In DOJ Antitrust Official's Remarks

Once can glean from a recent address by Deputy Assistant Attorney General Brent Snyder that the Antitrust Division intends to continue the trend of increasing enforcement for antitrust violations — by corporations and individuals. What may be new is the interest and pursuit of senior executives and officers at firms who have a more distant connection to the underlying offense, say Carlos Rainer and Jim Powers of Norton Rose Fulbright US LLP.

High Court And Congress Taking On PTAB Trials

The U.S. Supreme Court is reviewing two fundamental questions regarding Patent Trial and Appeal Board trials while three bills that would eliminate the broadest reasonable interpretation standard for claim construction are pending in Congress. At the heart of both the Cuozzo writ of certiorari and the legislative proposals is the question of whether PTAB trials are substitutes for district court invalidity contests or enhanced inter partes re-examinations, says Richard Torczon of Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati PC.

TPP Sanitary Measures Open Up Agricultural Exports

Businesses that trade in agricultural products will find plenty of reasons to support the sanitary and phytosanitary provisions of the Trans-Pacific Partnership Agreement, which go beyond the World Trade Organization rules and reflect a vigorous effort to address protectionist SPS-based import measures, say attorneys at Sidley Austin LLP.

Direct Marketing V. Brohl And Advent Of New Nexus Rules

The recent Tenth Circuit decision in Direct Marketing Association v. Brohl finding Colorado's use tax reporting regime constitutional reaffirms that nexus issues are going to continue to dominate the national spotlight. States may now become even more aggressive regarding sales and use tax collection obligations, say Kelley Miller and Jonathan Maddison of Reed Smith LLP.

Mnuchin For Treasury Leaves Wall St. Reform In Question

President-elect Donald Trump's selection of Steven Mnuchin to lead the U.S. Department of the Treasury cleared up many tax and other policy questions hovering over the incoming administration, yet it shed only a little light on the direction of financial regulatory reform, including the ultimate fate of the Dodd-Frank Act.

Regulator Warns Weakening Bank Rules Could Lead To Crisis

The top U.S. national bank supervisor on Wednesday warned bankers and the incoming Trump administration that significantly weakening the capital and risk-management rules put in place since the 2008 financial crisis could leave the financial system vulnerable to a similar disaster in the future.

EPA Outlines Plan To Improve US Drinking Water Safety

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on Wednesday unveiled a plan to help improve the quality of drinking water in the United States by protecting drinking water sources and tightening oversight of regulatory frameworks.

DOT Pick Bolsters Trump's Infrastructure Commitment

President-elect Donald Trump's choice of Elaine L. Chao to lead the U.S. Department of Transportation is generating widespread praise, foretelling a smooth confirmation process and sending a strong signal that Trump plans to make good on his campaign promise to advance a sweeping infrastructure investment plan within his first 100 days in office.

4 Takeaways From The High Court's Double Jeopardy Ruling

In the first full opinion of the term, the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously shut down one passageway in the labyrinth of double jeopardy law, but the ruling left the door open for other twists and turns. While the ruling deals with a narrow subset of cases involving both an inconsistent jury verdict and a procedural error, attorneys and legal scholars see four points to consider.

UK's Spying Bill Complicates Fate Of Data Transfer Deals

A controversial British surveillance bill that requires telecoms to retain records like user browser history for a full year cleared its final hurdle Tuesday, teeing up an almost certain court battle over the breadth of the act's data retention mandate and throwing another wrench into efforts by the U.K. to hammer out international data transfer deals independent of the European Union.

VoIP Access Fees Face Tough Road Ahead At New FCC

A Federal Communications Commission move that allowed local carriers to collect access fees for sending calls "over the top" of internet service provider equipment, which was rejected by the D.C. Circuit earlier this month, faces dim prospects of renewal under a GOP-led commission, experts say.

BANKING & SECURITIES

Goldman Sachs Alum Gets Trump Nod To Run Treasury

President-elect Donald Trump formally unveiled his plans Wednesday to nominate his campaign finance director and former Goldman Sachs executive Steven Mnuchin as the U.S. treasury secretary, with an eye toward pro-growth policies that Mnuchin promised would give no “absolute tax cut” to the wealthy.

ENERGY & ENVIRONMENTAL

EPA Won't Relax Vehicle Emission Standards for 2022-25

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said Wednesday that it won’t reduce standards on greenhouse gas emissions for cars and light trucks for the years 2022 to 2025, dealing a blow to manufacturers who said the standards are too tough to meet.

European Commission Floats Climate Policy Overhaul

The European Commission on Wednesday unveiled a sweeping set of climate and energy proposals aimed at cutting carbon dioxide emissions by 40 percent by 2030 and implementing regulatory and market changes for investor certainty and consumer fairness.

States Fight EPA Cross-State Air Pollution Rule Revamp

Five states are challenging the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency’s recent incorporation of 2008 national ozone standards into the agency's cross-state air pollution rule, which would require several upwind U.S. states to reduce nitrogen oxide emissions from power plants.

Paper Pegs Most 'Scalia-like' Of Trump's High Court Picks

While President-elect Donald Trump is busy announcing picks for marquee positions in his administration, a group of legal scholars has culled from his short list of 21 possible U.S. Supreme Court additions a jurist that is the closest in practice to the late Justice Antonin Scalia.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

How Trump's Administration Will Affect Communications

It is well established that in January President-elect Trump will seek to alter or replace many of President Obama's regulations and executive orders. However, Trump is unlikely to significantly alter Obama's executive orders relating to the communications sector, says Shawn H. Chang of Wiley Rein LLP.

Conflicting Agency Guidance On Confidentiality Policies

In recent months, agencies not traditionally involved in the labor and employment realm have issued guidance impacting future iterations of employee handbook and code of conduct policies. Along with the guidance comes substantially higher consequences for failure to comply, including potential criminal prosecution, say Celina Joachim and Ryan Vann of Baker & McKenzie LLP.

Phase-Down Of HFCs Depends On Trump Administration

Negotiated, signed and ratified during the Reagan administration, the Montreal Protocol on Substances that Deplete the Ozone Layer is widely viewed as the world’s most successful environmental agreement. However, with the recent election in the United States, it is an open question whether the incoming administration will be inclined to ratify the Kigali Amendment to the agreement and implement it domestically, says James Losey of Thompson Hine LLP.

At bottom—says Barton is "following up with the school supervisor immediately." Though I find "school supervisor" a curious choice of words—so there really IS no principal or dean? Is that possible? But I do believe they'll get in touch as the email came from you…

Good Morning, Dr. Barton and Ms. Wooden:

Not sure who else to direct this to… Mayor Goodman just received a call from a sister (Shatoya Clement) of a 16 year old who attends Canyon Springs high School— Lanise Allen. Miss Clement said her sister is "threatening to kill herself" due to bullying incidents at the school that are not being addressed "because there is no dean or principal at the school." While this seems unlikely to us, the family definitely has the sense that nothing is being done to help this girl (though we are told the police did come when a brownie given to her was laced with drugs) and that "gangs of up to 30 students" have been permitted to board her bus to harass her.

Our primary concern in reporting to you is that the student is threatening to kill herself, so if appropriate officials could please intervene? The sister, Miss Clement, may be reached at 7[redacted]. Thank you.

Making the Rounds with Dr. Barbara Atkinson:

On the Advancement of Women in Medicine

In 2017, when the Association of American Medical Colleges reported that the number of women enrolled in medical schools exceeded the number of men for the first time, it turned out that the UNLV School of Medicine had followed the pattern with 31 women and 29 men in its inaugural class. Even as our second class gets underway — it's evenly split between men and women, 30-30 " - Dr. Barbara Atkinson

Boyd Briefs: April 9, 2015

From Dean Dan

I want to congratulate Professors Fatma Marouf and Michael Kagan, and their collaborator Rebecca Gill (UNLV Political Science) for their selection as recipients of a UNLV Faculty Opportunity Award. The award will be used to fund empirical work for an article about gender interactions in immigration appeals. This award both supports this fascinating and important research project, and affirms the high quality of their scholarship more generally. I'm also delighted to see our faculty's work recognized by the University -- and all the better that it's work undertaken in collaboration with the Political Science department.

The recipients were announced this week by the Offices of the President and the Vice President for Research and Economic Development. The awards, which were created in 2012, are designed to support faculty research with potential for continued external funding and to provide financial support needed to complete significant scholarly/creative works. This year a total of 20 proposals will be funded totaling approximately $500,000.

Congratulations again, Fatma and Mike!

Also, I want to invite you to attend an event this evening. The UNLV Department of History and the Saltman Center for Conflict Resolution are co-hosting Dr. Sean Foley for a University Forum Lecture tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Barrick Museum Auditorium. Dr. Foley, an associate professor at Middle Tennessee State University specializing in Islamic and Middle East history, will speak on the topic of "To Forgive but Not Forget: Saudi Arabia and Middle East in the Age of ISIS."

The event is free and open to the public. For more information, please click here.

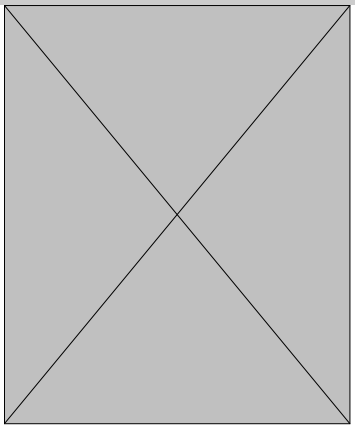
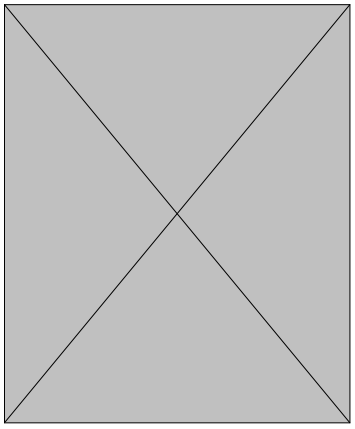
FACULTY SPOTLIGHT: David Wall



Formerly a litigator, public defender, district attorney, and trial judge, Professor David Wall, who recently joined JAMS as a mediator and arbitrator, is an adjunct who brings a wealth of experience into our classrooms. As a litigator, Wall worked at -- and was a partner in -- prominent Nevada law firms. As a public defender, Wall was a member of the Capital Murder Defense team. As a district attorney, Wall prosecuted primarily homicide and other high-profile cases. And as a trial judge he consistently received the highest ratings, and was even named one of the "500 Leading Judges in America." He was such a respected and popular judge that when Wall resigned from the bench in 2010, one blogger pondered whether there was some way that the public could force Judge Wall to complete the full six-year term to which he had been re-elected. With the Thirteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution one formidable barrier to such legal efforts, this blogger posited "we hogtie Wall to the bench and force him to continue to make rational, informed decisions for the next 3.5 years." Enthusiasm for the manifold contributions of a public servant is as telling as it is rare.

Professor Wall also has the rare distinction of earning Hollywood's gaze. Wall was one of the two lead prosecutors in the first trial related to the death of casino boss Ted Binion in 1998. The Binion story includes murder, buried treasure, drugs, a staged suicide, organized crime, and other dramatic effects. Accordingly, the list of Hollywood portrayals of this story -- and, therefore, also of the prosecution team -- grows.

Although his notoriety is amusing, it is Professor Wall's distinguished service as a lion of the Nevada Bar that is paramount. UNLV is fortunate to have him as a faculty colleague.



STUDENT SPOTLIGHT: Gil Kahn

Gil Kahn has got it going on. It isn't just a snappy opening line.

In his second year at Boyd, Gil has amassed a formidable record of accomplishment. He has received CALI awards for earning the top grade in several courses. He is a member of Society of Advocates, participating last month in the National Labor & Employment Law Moot Court Competition in New York City with partner Stephanie Getler; and recently was named Lead Articles Editor for the Nevada Law Journal. Gil is an extern for United States District Court Judge James Mahan and a Research Fellow for Professor Sara Gordon (along with classmate Dawn Nielsen), reviewing and recommending changes to Alaska statutes governing the treatment of Alaskans with mental illness.

But if you ask Gil in what he takes the most pride, he likely will speak of his heritage. After completing his undergraduate degree at UNLV, Gil decided to work at a local non-profit organization, the Jewish Federation of Las Vegas, serving as director of the Hillel Jewish Student Center. Gil recounts leading a group of 40 students on an educational trip through Israel, staying in a youth hostel; taking them to Yad Vashem, Israel's national Holocaust museum; and sharing stories from his grandmother, who was forced into a concentration camp as a young girl. It was a poignant experience for Gil. "For the first time, I began to understand that the streams that carry us through our lives begin from the smallest of ripples. My ripple was a 14-year-old Romanian girl in a concentration camp decades ago, and it has expanded into the stream that brought me to that cramped hostel, trying to educate and inspire a room of college students. Today, it has carried me to the next segment of my life -- the pursuit of a legal education and career."

ALUMNI SPOTLIGHT: Linda Marie Norcross '04

Linda Marie Norcross '04 is a shareholder with the Las Vegas office of Howard & Howard Attorneys PLLC, as well as the firm's Trademark Practice Group Leader. Linda's practice focuses on protection and enforcement of intellectual property rights, with primary emphasis on trademarks. She advises clients on all facets of trademark prosecution and enforcement (both foreign and domestic) including: trademark selection; clearance; proper trademark use; registration and renewals; and related transactions. Additionally, Linda assists the firm's Corporate Group with the due diligence process for mergers and acquisitions.

A UNLV undergraduate, Linda attended Boyd's part-time evening program, as a single parent, while working full-time in the MGM Grand Executive Legal Department. Linda is particularly grateful and acknowledges that she would not have been able to attend law school at all were it not for Boyd's part-time program. During her first three years at Boyd, Linda was elected class representative for the Student Bar Association, ultimately serving as vice president in her final year. Linda enjoys any opportunity to return to Boyd to volunteer her time, whether to guest lecture in Professor LaFrance's IP classes, or share her perspective on career development through Boyd's Career Services Department.

Linda serves as an associate mentor within her firm, as well as coordinates marketing efforts for the Las Vegas office. Recently, Linda was a featured speaker at UNLV's Lee Business School and volunteered as a business plan judge in both the Dominic Anthony Marrocco Southern Nevada Business Plan and D.W. Reynolds Governor's Cup collegiate business plan competitions.

Linda has been honored as one of the "Mountain States Super Lawyers" in 2013 and 2014, Desert Companion's "Top Lawyers 2014", and Nevada Business Magazine's "Legal Elite Top 100 Lawyers" 2009-2013, as well as named a 2009 "Best Up & Coming Attorney."

Linda is married to Matt, a local musician and stagehand. They are the proud parents of Shelby Larae (24), Jameson Presley (9), and Beckham Bradford (2). When not chasing around the littlest Norcrosses, Linda and Matt love to attend live music events and travel with the family.

4 Questions Environmental Attorneys Have About NEPA

Projects ranging from roads to oil wells can live, die or languish according to how they fare in analyses required by the National Environmental Policy Act, and attorneys say that even after decades of litigation under the 1970 statute, important questions — like what role climate change should play in NEPA reviews, how much scrutiny the process should entail and whether it should be streamlined — still linger. This is the fifth in a seven-part series on important open questions in environmental law. Read more »

Women Take Weight Criticism to Heart, May Add Pounds

Renison University College researchers have found that college-age women who receive supportive messages from family and friends generally do a better job of managing their weight, and may even lose weight. Those whose loved ones are more critical struggle to maintain a healthy weight, and many put on additional pounds. "When we feel bad about our bodies, we often turn to loved ones -- families, friends, and romantic partners -- for support and advice," said lead author Christine Logel. "How they respond can have a bigger effect than we might think."

Judge ruled ZERO contact with child; because Mom smoked pot!

A Bias and Lazy Clark County Family Court Judge

Click Here to view minutes of the case: Shaie-Anthony Lindsey-Souza, Plaintiff vs. Kaui Quipolta, Defendant Case: D-14-495082-C

Plaintiff is now an LVMPD officer

The Fifth Amendment guarantees our right against self-incrimination. Yet, family court judges are routinely violating this right by ordering civil litigants to undergo drug testing. In some cases, litigants agree to take these tests out of fear that the Court will deny custody and/or visitation with their child should the litigant refuse to take a drug test. Yet, it is well known that civil courts cannot order a litigant to undergo a drug test, and should not make any inference from the fact that a litigant may not want to submit to one. Drug testing is reserved for criminal cases, not civil cases.

Plaintiff: Attorney David Mann

Plaintiff father is a felon for distribution of methamphetamines narcotics and did time in state prison. Plaintiff lives with father. Plaintiff has photos of his 18 year old girlfriend on his Facebook page with drugs. Plaintiff and defendant both used marijuana. Allegation made that plaintiff was a trafficker for narcotics, that is his source of income.

Plaintiff is now a Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Officer.

Defendant: Attorney Molly Rosenblum

Defendant mother was never convicted of prostitution, the case was dismissed. Defendant has a marijuana card from the State of California. Marijuana is now legal for recreational and medical use.

Mother is no longer a nude dancer. Mother has two other biological children that she takes care of without an issue. Mother has zero visitation with her child before the court and was ordered to pay child support.

Bias Judge Mathew Harter: A Family Court Judge uses Judicial Influence to keep his son from being ARRESTED! Veterans In Politics stated that according to an incident report written by an officer of the Police Department that Judge Harter's son had possession of stolen property inside Judge Harter's home including a hand gun, ammunition, drugs, and also Judge Harter's son was involved in the burglary of a Police Officer's home. The conclusion is that several teens who were friends of Judge Harter's teen son were arrested and convicted, yet Judge Harter used his influence to prevent his teenage son from ever being arrested, tried, and convicted; and ultimately whisked his son away to live with his reputed drug addicted mother.

Motion for an Order to Show Cause Order of Contempt

Defendant: Judge ordered another drug test
Mom has a marijuana card

Plaintiff: Attorney David Mann said he would be brief because the Judge is very busy. That's an understatement: Clark County Family Court Judge Mathew Harter only spends two days per week at the Court House.

Mathew Harter
JUDICIAL ELECTED OFFICIALS State of Nevada, 2016

Regular pay: $181,377.07
Total Benefits: $54,413.76
Total pay and benefits: $235,790.83

When Judge Harter is questioned on his lack of appearance at the Court House and why his courtroom door is constantly locked. He says that he is working from home!

Where is Judge Mathew Harter?

Thomas Abt: Bleeding Out: The Devastating Consequences of Urban Violence, September 10, 2019

The 21st Century Cities Initiative and the Urban Health Institute welcome Thomas Abt for a discussion of his new book Bleeding Out: The Devastating Consequences of Urban Violence – and a Bold New Plan for Peace in the Streets. Urban violence is one of the most divisive and allegedly intractable issues of our time. But as Harvard scholar Thomas Abt shows in Bleeding Out, we actually possess all the tools necessary to stem violence in our cities. RSVP here.

Coupling the latest social science with firsthand experience as a crime-fighter, Abt proposes a relentless focus on violence itself — not drugs, gangs, or guns. Because violence is "sticky," clustering among small groups of people and places, it can be predicted and prevented using a series of smart-on-crime strategies that do not require new laws or big budgets. Bringing these strategies together, Abt offers a concrete, cost-effective plan to reduce homicides by over 50 percent in eight years, saving more than 12,000 lives nationally.

DAYS UNTIL THE FIRST SPECIAL SESSION BEGINS: 107

Good morning, everyone. Dealing with weather and hazardous travel made worse by my driving skills or lack thereof, so sorry for tardiness. Snowbound this weekend, so watched three Oscar-nominated movies: "Green Book," "The Favourite" and "Bohemian Rhapsody." My take: All three have Oscar-worthy performances, but none are Oscar-worthy. Not sure which of the eight are. (I need to see "Roma" again because I saw it over three sittings and want to assess after seeing all the way through at one time.) FYI, Queen was a fantastic group.

What's below: Premium wrap, press developments, Morning Flash nuggets and a trivia question about a Nevada city useful in WWII.

COMING UP
Something non-gun-related in Carson!

PREMIUM WRAP
If you want to know how valuable having smart insiders dish to me every week is, check out some of what they said:

►Uh oh: Business interests of every stripe, including gaming, beginning to coalesce in preparation of " anti-business" agenda, believed to be introduced over the coming weeks. Increasing concern about the Governor's seeming lack of interest in GOED. Organized labor inching closer to taking up some of the business issues, in opposition to potential majority legislation. This will get interesting.

►Sigh: We have evolved into Washington lite, just flex your muscles and show your power; forget about policy or consequence.

►Good question: The Cannabis Compliance Meeting was interesting. Was Brin Gibson expressing his own opinions or telegraphing his boss when he suggested a massive bureaucracy, including POST-certified police officers, for this new Board? His second guessing of the enforcement work Taxation has done so far must have left those folks feeling really nice. (Their handling of applications is another matter.) Gibson and others want the marijuana regulators to do more too police the black market- as if we haven't already spent enough on the war on drugs. The irony is the empire they want to build could drive up the cost of legal marijuana so much they do more to create the black market than the drug cartels.

And this on background checks:

1. In a larger sense, the hearing was an exhibition of the problems the Republican Party has in the coming years (and for that matter, the North). If you looked around the hearing room- those are the voters that Keikheffer, Gansert, Hammond etc have to answer to. Think about that- those people are the controlling faction of the Republican Party! There's a truther, Mack Miller, Mosley, Antinoro- the list goes on with these whackos. Raggio could keep them at bay, but now they're out in front and dictating how republican legislators must vote- on a bill that isn't very egregious when viewed through an objective lens. Soon we won't have any moderate republicans up there having to vote with the far right to keep their job, there will just be far right republicans throwing punches up yelling that the sky is falling on every bill.

2. If there was no NRA, no fear mongering campaigns, no “slippery slope” propaganda, does anyone really think that people of average intelligence really would care that much about a bill that closes a loophole? Background checks are already law, and have been for twenty years in the entire country. The overwhelming majority of sales go through licensed dealers not covered in the bill. So how strongly must you believe the propaganda to show up and about that the Second Amendment is in jeopardy?

3. The GOP better find some other strategy than “the process is unfair” if they want to have any success this session. It was a pitiful display of the whiney kid who didn’t get to hit. And it doesn’t play well for their odds at relevance the rest of the session. Kelvin has very little patience for that stuff.

4. It’s not hard to envision Pickard losing his seat over his vote. The issue won overwhelmingly in his district. But the GOP must be relying on a lawsuit keeping their hopes alive in 2020, claiming its unenforceable and flawed and that is why they voted no. A way to straddle both sides of the debate and hope to hold on. We can take bets on how well that strategy plays.

PRESS ETHICS?

It may surprise you – or not – that the Nevada Press Association has no code of ethics. I raised this issue as a member (for now) in a strongly worded (oh yes) letter to the members and board. So at the meeting on Friday, they decided to get the SPJ Code of Ethics and circulate it to members and maybe – maybe! – adopt it. (I raised the issue in the context of the RJ’s obvious flouting of ethics, so we will see what happens.)

A COUPLE OF MORNING FLASH NUGGETS

Nugget No. 2 -- We Matter.

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

A city in Nevada that played a role in WWII had one of its buildings added to the National Register of Historic Places on this day in history? What city and what building?

Friday’s winner: Cowboy Tom Collins

The question On this day in history, a man who would become an iconic figure in the Republican Party came to Las Vegas and was paid a fee of $30,000. Who and what for?

The answer: Ronald Reagan, two-week gig

MOVIE TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Lots of guesses, no one got one with four movies, so: Name the actress and the movies: She plays a mother who loses a child; she plays a daughter estranged from her father; she plays an athlete’s love interest; and she plays an iconic girlfriend. The answer: Amy Adams in “Arrival,” “Trouble with the Curve,” “The Fighter” and “Justice League.”

Subject: Fremont St problem
Paul from Santa Monica Fremont St Ex. Not nice..jpg

Good day to you Mayor Goodman, wish you well,

I have lived in downtown Las Vegas for 7 years. My letter pertains to a person at the Fremont Experience who I, security, police and many others feel he must be removed and some how charged criminally for his so call freedom of speech sign. Pic included.

Security informed me that plenty of people especially parents, have complained about this schmuck, stating they are suggesting to everyone to contact you and city council and there is supposed to be a date set in the near future to address this and other problems.

This person is not part of the lottery spot system. 98% of the performers are decent people making tourist laugh and happy along with those that are respectfully entertaining children bringing joy to the kids and the parents downtown experience. During the day he is straight; by night I have seen him so stoned he could hardly sit against a wall while he thinks its a big joke getting people riled up, exchanging F yous' with them. Many times I have seen near physical confrontations by guys, fathers, mothers who would like to pound him into the concrete but can't knowing they could be arrested.

This is not a freedom of speech issue. This is an obnoxious, intimidating, threatening, premeditated knowingly intent to instigate confrontation, violence, and especially corrupting the health and welfare of children, neglect and abuse of children which this easily can be interpreted as causing harm to children as a misdemeanor, viz. multiple 100s of times daily pertaining to children.

As summer quickly approaches with the 1,000s of tourists downtown daily this can only lead to someone seriously beating up this knuckle-head only to find themselves arrested, again affecting the children.

Speaking recently to him, he claims its a joke meant to be funny. His name is Paul saying he is from Santa Monica, no one pays him to do this and said he doesn't work. I am certain you can find a way to remove and ban him from Fremont St. Judging by the stoner trash that hangs out with him at night; who knows he might even be using this as a cover for meeting people and selling drugs. Excuse the length of my notice and thank you for your service. Pic included.

P.S. When and where is the next meeting with city counsel addressing these problems.

God bless,

Ken Mallen

FACT SHEET: Obama Administration Marks Progress in Substance Use Disorder Prevention, Treatment, Recovery, and Research

President Obama made health care reform a reality for America. He also recognized that substance use disorders are a critical public health issue. Today at the White House, Administration officials and other leaders from across the country highlighted the progress that has been made over the past eight years in substance use disorder prevention, treatment, recovery, and research.

In particular, the President has made clear that addressing the prescription opioid and heroin epidemic is a priority for his Administration and has called for $1.1 billion in new funding for States to expand access to treatment. This week Congress is considering legislation to act on the President's request and provide $1 billion in new funding to combat the opioid epidemic.

The Administration's balanced public health and public safety approach to drug policy is built on the scientific research demonstrating that substance use disorder is a chronic disease of the brain that can be successfully prevented and treated, and from which people can recover. The Administration has directed Federal agencies to expand community-based efforts to prevent drug use before it begins, empower healthcare workers to intervene early at the first signs of a substance use disorder, expand access to treatment for those who need it, support the millions of Americans in recovery, and pursue targeted approaches to drug enforcement.

A full report on how Administration actions taken over the past eight years have expanded resources and protections for people with substance use disorders is available HERE.

Highlights include:

- The Affordable Care Act created the largest expansion of mental health and substance use disorder coverage in a generation. It is estimated that the ACA expanded mental health and substance use disorder benefits and parity protections to more than 60 million people.
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) issued its Guideline for Prescribing Opioids for Chronic Pain – the Agency's first-ever recommendations for primary care clinicians on prescribing opioids. Subsequently, more than 60 medical schools, nearly 200 nursing schools and more than 50 pharmacy schools committed to prescriber training.
- The Surgeon General's first-ever Report on Alcohol, Drugs, and Health addressed alcohol, illicit drugs, and prescription drug misuse, with chapters dedicated to neurobiology, prevention, treatment, recovery, health systems integration and recommendations for the future. It provided an in-depth look at the science of substance use disorders and addiction, called for a cultural shift in the way Americans talk about the issue, and recommended additional actions to prevent and treat these conditions, and promote recovery.
- SAMHSA finalized a rule in July 2016 that allows practitioners who have had a waiver to prescribe buprenorphine for up to 100 patients for a year or more, to now obtain a waiver to treat up to 275 patients. As of October 2016, 2,400 practitioners have applied for and been granted waivers to prescribe at the increased limit—improving access to buprenorphine, which is prescribed along with psychosocial supports as part of MAT.

DOJ Snubs ASCAP, BMI On Partial Music Rights Licensing

The U.S. Department of Justice has decided that the antitrust consent decrees governing ASCAP and BMI currently require the music rights giants to license full works instead of partial interests in compositions, and the agency wants to hold the organizations to that rule, ASCAP said Thursday.

Judge Blocks Miss. Law Protecting Gay Marriage Objectors

A Mississippi federal judge on Thursday preliminarily blocked a state law providing protection to those who say their religious beliefs are violated by same-sex marriage, declaring that the law violates the Fourteenth Amendment's equal protection clause by protecting some religious beliefs to the detriment of others.

Fox News Debate Rules In Line With Election Law, FEC Says

The Federal Election Commission in a split vote found that Fox News Network LLC did not violate federal campaign laws when it loosened the qualification criteria in the days leading up to a Republican debate, according to commission files publicly released on Thursday.

Minn. Pays $1M For Rogue DMV Worker's Data Snooping

Minnesota state officials will pay $1 million to end a proposed federal class action claiming a former employee of Mille Lacs County’s family services department illegally accessed 269 individuals’ driver’s license information for her own personal use, a Friday filing said.

Chicago Bumps Minimum Wage To $10.50 Per Hour

Chicago has announced that 270,000 workers received a pay boost on Friday when the city's minimum wage increased to $10.50 an hour, marking the second step in a campaign to raise the municipality's lowest wages to $13 an hour by 2019.

Busy June Shows Dodd-Frank's Benefits And Costs

June’s final week gave Dodd-Frank Act supporters a chance to crow as big banks survived the sudden shock of the British vote to leave the European Union and GE Capital exited enhanced supervision, but financial experts worry that the law is causing harm as well.

3 Reasons Brexit Won't Halt EU Market Abuse Rules

While the British vote to exit the European Union continues to sow uncertainty in financial markets and elsewhere, experts say firms can still count on one thing — that the U.K. will hold on to new EU regulations on insider trading and market abuse, set to take effect on Sunday, even if it follows through on opting out of the EU itself.

Telecommunications Policy Recap For 1st Half Of 2016

The Federal Communications Commission has spent much of this year positioning for final regulatory moves during the Obama administration, but the first six months also saw a major overhaul of the Lifeline low-income phone subsidy program and launch of the incentive auction. Here are the top developments in telecom policy so far this year.

5 Public-Private Transportation Projects To Watch

The growing pressure on government to shore up aging highways and modernize mass transit is opening up more opportunities for private industry to step in and help get some of the nation's crucial transportation infrastructure projects financed, built and delivered. Here, Law360 highlights five transportation projects using the public-private partnership model that attorneys are watching closely.

BANKING & SECURITIES

IG Says SEC Should Improve Related Case Coordination

The inspector general for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission on Thursday issued a call for closer coordination among agency enforcement staff, after a New York federal judge criticized the SEC for bungling overlapping cases and suggested that a "self-examination" would be appropriate.

EU Financial Advisory Body Rebuts Basel Risk Measures

Global regulators should use the leverage ratio as the primary means of measuring a bank's capital strength, not risk-weighted assets, Europe's top financial regulation research and advisory body said Friday.

Regulators Tell EU To Catch Up With US On Swaps Rules

The European Union's top three financial regulators have urged the European Commission to catch up with the U.S. and Japan by implementing swaps rules that have been delayed, expressing "strong concerns" the holdup in Europe was causing global uncertainty.

China Links Enviro Compliance With Ability To Issue Stock

China's securities watchdog used its bite Friday to force companies to comply with environmental regulations, saying firms with violations wouldn't be allowed to issue stock.

New UK Bank, Trader Standards Tackle Conflicts, Price-Fixing

NY AG Endorses FCC's Broadband Provider Privacy Plan

The New York Attorney General's office on Thursday backed the Federal Communications Commission's plan to set privacy rules for broadband service providers, saying that they are gateways to the internet that consumers can't avoid.

Time Warner Says Scrap Set-Top Box Plan, Go With Apps

Time Warner Inc. has told the Federal Communications Commission that the conglomerate still has concerns about the agency's plan to unlock set-top boxes, but that an industry-backed apps-based approach is a promising alternative if it ensures competition and consumer choice.

Broadcasters Slam FCC Plan To Keep Ownership Rules

The Federal Communications Commission's proposal to keep intact media ownership rules ignores the realities of a market that has shifted dramatically, the National Association of Broadcasters told the FCC, saying that the agency has failed to show evidence for holding onto the rules, according to a filing on Thursday.

Singapore Proposes Legalizing Third-Party Dispute Funding

Citing a need to stay competitive with international legal hubs like London, Paris and Geneva, Singapore on Thursday proposed abolishing its longstanding ban on third-party funding for lawsuits and arbitration proceedings.

UK Law Firm Prepares Legal Challenge To Brexit Process

A U.K. law firm has begun legal action to make sure Britain does not start the procedure for withdrawal from the EU without a vote in Parliament, marking the first significant challenge to the referendum vote.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

On Abortion High Court Defers To Evidence, Not Legislatures

While marking an important victory for abortion rights, the U.S. Supreme Court's fact-intensive analysis in Whole Woman's Health v. Hellerstedt means that the scope of the Roe right may still be open to attack, say Jessica Martinez and Jeremy Ershow at Jenner & Block LLP.

In Congress: Gun Control, Zika, FAA

After a brief reprieve from partisan battles over the Independence Day recess, the House and Senate return to Capitol Hill to face the same unresolved issues they grappled with in June. One "must pass" order of business during the next two weeks is an extension of current Federal Aviation Administration authorization, say Richard Hertling and Kaitlyn McClure of Covington & Burling LLP.

LA Paid Sick Leave Law: Another Bitter Pill To Swallow

Los Angeles' newly enacted sick leave ordinance essentially doubles the minimum amount of paid sick leave employers must provide to their employees. Given the complicated nature of the city ordinance's overlap with California state law, compliance challenges facing employers are significant, says Laura Worsinger at Dykema Gossett PLLC.

FTC's New Maximum Civil Penalty And What It Means

For anyone who views Federal Trade Commission civil penalties as a cost of doing business, the cost just went up dramatically. The impact of this change will be most acute in enforcement against Hart-Scott-Rodino Act violations and other continuing violations, says James Fishkin of Dechert LLP.

BLM Fracking Decision Is Narrow, But With A Vast Impact

Assuming the Wyoming federal court's decision in Wyoming v. Department of Interior is upheld on appeal, it is arguably a narrower holding than many have suggested. It rests on the fact that Congress spoke with unusual clarity and specificity in the Energy Policy Act of 2005, when it substantially curtailed federal authority to regulate hydraulic fracturing, say attorneys at Pillsbury Winthrop Shaw Pittman LLP.

LEGAL INDUSTRY

4 Bad Habits Firm Leaders Need To Break Now

The key to being a good law firm leader is simple, experts say: Treat your attorneys how you would like to be treated. It's a straightforward concept, but one too often lost in the high-pressure legal world. Here are a few bad habits leaders can pick up when they lose sight of the golden rule, and some tips on how to fix them.

How To Train The Next Generation Of Litigators

BigLaw firms are rethinking how they train young litigators as run-of-the-mill trial work is phased out and high-stakes, high-rate work — largely performed by experienced veterans — is phased in. Here, attorneys share two key approaches their firms use to turn young lawyers into trial all-stars.

Norton Rose, Kilpatrick, 3 Other Firms Raise Associate Pay

Norton Rose Fulbright and three other firms said Friday they will match the new salary benchmark set by Cravath Swaine & Moore LLP for first-year associates in certain U.S. markets, a day after Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton LLP said it would adopt the new $180,000 standard.

Dewey Ex-Chair Ordered To Pay Back $400K Loan

A New York state judge on Friday ordered former Dewey & LeBoeuf LLP chairman Steven H. Davis to pay Citibank nearly $400,000 for a capital contribution loan he took out to help fund the now-shuttered firm before financial fraud charges were lobbed against him and other executives.

Legal Giants Hungry For Overseas Boutiques

Three major international law firms announced Thursday that they plan to break into new markets by gobbling up smaller firms in London, Sweden and Vietnam, a trend experts say indicates a growing hunger in the legal industry for pint-sized cross-border mergers.

Uber Cases Could Spur New Employee Classification

Uber recently inked a $100 million settlement with drivers in two states who claimed they were miscategorized as independent contractors in cases that experts say highlight how the on-demand economy has outgrown the current binary classification system and may prompt lawmakers to devise a new hybrid category.

EPA Region 9 Spearheads Climate Fight, Outgoing Chief Says

Whether it's bolstering renewable energy in California, managing rising sea levels on remote Pacific Islands or helping enforce truck emissions regulations, the U.S. EPA's Region 9 is on the cutting edge of the federal government's efforts to rein in climate change, fight pollution and hold violators to account, the zone's outgoing head Jared Blumenfeld told Law360 in an exclusive interview.

Obama's Moves To Eliminate Shell Companies Easy To Evade

The Obama administration on Friday unveiled measures it says will help stop the use of anonymous shell companies in tax evasion, money laundering and other schemes, but advocates for increased financial transparency say that the administration may have baked in easy ways to evade detection by law enforcement.

The 5 Uber-Taxicab Turf Wars To Watch

A string of fresh lawsuits, court rulings and regulations laying out new mandates for ride-hailing providers such as Uber and Lyft has escalated the turf war with taxicab companies, experts say, increasing the pressure on lawmakers to balance policy and competition concerns. Here, Law360 examines a few of the most high-profile battles.

In Congress: Energy, Opioids, Puerto Rico

Members of Congress return to Capitol Hill this week after a short break and settle in for three weeks of legislative business before the Memorial Day recess. The Senate is still working to find a path forward on the Energy and Water Appropriations measure for fiscal year 2017, while the House will take up several measures to address opioid abuse, say Richard Hertling and Kaitlyn McClure of Covington & Burling LLP.

Crowdfunding May Be Game Changer For Restaurant Industry

For an aspiring restaurant owner, there is nothing better than having hundreds of local investors who become your best customers, which could become a reality on May 16 under Title III of the Jumpstart Our Business Startups Act, says Jordan Bernstein at Michelman & Robinson LLP.

Ohio Tax Litigation Reflects Evolving Nexus Landscape

The Ohio Supreme Court recently heard oral arguments in three cases that could test the constitutionality of the Ohio commercial activity tax and its "bright-line presence" standard for nexus. Because several states have adopted similar standards, the outcome of these cases may have far-reaching consequences, say Jeffrey Friedman and Chris Mehrmann of Sutherland Asbill & Brennan LLP.

Prevailing Wage: The Possible Fourth 'P' In P3s

As public-private partnerships proliferate, a recurring issue is whether prevailing wages must be paid to the labor force engaged in the project. Recent cases in New York and D.C. appellate courts have illuminated this area and highlighted the recognition of entrepreneurial risk in the calculus, says James Terry at Zetlin & De Chiara LLP.

President Should Act on Transparency for Government Contractors

 The 2016 campaign is just beginning, but it's clear that hundreds of millions in secret dollars will be spent over the next 18 months — posing a major threat to our democracy. A new Brennan Center paper outlines how President Obama could translate his words against dark money into action, by issuing an executive order mandating disclosure of federal contractors' political spending. "Whether pay-to-play activity is rampant in federal contracting today is unclear because so much federal election spending remains secret," wrote authors Daniel Weiner, Lawrence Norden, and Brent Ferguson. Transparency supporters are holding rallies today and advocates will deliver a petition to the president next week.

NYPD Inspector General to Tackle Surveillance

 The New York City Police Department's Inspector General issued his first annual report Tuesday summarizing efforts over the last year and laying out issues for future scrutiny, including NYPD surveillance of Muslims and use of excessive force. "This report marks a milestone for the NYPD and a step forward for all New Yorkers," said Faiza Patel. The Brennan Center first advocated for an independent inspector general in a 2012 report. The office was established by the City Council in 2013.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Regulating Daily Fantasy: DFS Is Like Rocky — On The Ropes

In the big fight scene in "Rocky," the young Rocky Balboa seemed to be fighting more just to survive, rather than to win. Like Rocky, daily fantasy sports operators continue to battle on, taking a beating that would floor any lesser competitor. DraftKings and FanDuel are actually winning many of their legal battles — but they do seem to be losing the war, says Nelson Rose, a professor of gaming law at Whittier Law School.

Justices Struggling In McDonnell Public Corruption Case

The U.S. Supreme Court's ruling next month in U.S. v. McDonnell may define the scope of appropriate behavior for public officials in a dramatic new way. Oral arguments revealed a wide and deeply important gulf that the court will attempt to bridge in order to ensure honest conduct by our elected officials while recognizing the need and precedent for advocacy by those officials on behalf of their constituents, say attorneys with Williams Mullen PC.

The Arbitration Ban And Consumer Class Action Readiness

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau recently proposed wide-sweeping rules deterring mandatory, individual arbitration in favor of class actions across a variety of consumer finance transactions. Defendant financial services firms will likely incur a costly and time-consuming litigation process unless the industry applies at least some of the "lessons learned" from the residential mortgage-backed securities crisis, say consultants with EisnerAmper LLP.

Fed. Circ. Rule Changes: Beware Of Costly Pitfalls

Last month, numerous amendments to the Federal Circuit's local rules went into effect. Although the Federal Circuit's summary suggests that many amendments are only "clarifying" the old rules, the changes were extensive, and familiarity with the revisions is critical for all appeals going forward, say attorneys with Jones Day.

In The ACA Age, Employee Handbooks Can Help — Or Hurt

Even the most diligent employers, when drafting, reviewing and updating health and welfare benefits documents, overlook the employee handbook. The handbook can be a great tool to highlight compliance with the Employee Retirement Income Security Act and the Affordable Care Act, but can also draw attention to noncompliance, says Patricia Moran at Mintz Levin Cohn Ferris Glovsky and Popeo PC.

LEGAL INDUSTRY

The 10 Best Law Firms For Black Attorneys

While black attorneys represent only 2.9 percent of lawyers at more than 300 law firms surveyed by Law360, some firms are industry leaders in hiring and promoting African-Americans. Here, we look at what those firms are doing to foster racial diversity.

The 10 Best Law Firms For Hispanic Attorneys

Hispanics are the United States' largest minority, comprising 17.4 percent of the nation's population. But in the legal industry, they make up only 3.43 percent of practicing professionals. Here, Law360 looks at the top 10 law firms for Hispanic attorneys and what they are doing to help Hispanic lawyers establish careers as partners and firm leaders.

The 10 Best Law Firms For Asian-American Attorneys

Asian-American attorneys are the best represented minority group at the more than 300 firms surveyed by Law360, comprising 6.5 percent of all attorneys. But they still struggle to gain a foothold. Here, we look at the top 10 law firms for Asian-American attorneys, and what they are doing to retain these individuals and enhance their careers.

The High Cost Of BigLaw's Lack Of Diversity

As the U.S. and the corporate community become increasingly diverse, the law firms that don’t make efforts to address their diversity shortcomings will fall behind the competition, experts say. Here, Law360 takes a look at the consequences of inaction, some looming and some already affecting BigLaw’s bottom lines.

Minority-Owned Firms Give BigLaw A Run For Its Money

Minority-owned firms not only provide a more welcoming environment for ex-BigLaw attorneys unhappy with the lack of diversity at large law firms but also give their attorneys opportunities to attract clients frustrated with the legal industry's race problem, experts and lawyers say.

How To Settle A Case Mid-Trial

Negotiation and compromise probably don't seem appealing in the heat of trial, but settling a case before jurors reach a verdict may very well be the smartest move for both sides. Here, top trial attorneys and a veteran trial judge tell Law360 how to best stop arguing and start negotiating.

Norton Rose Follows Rivals In Bumping Associate Salaries

Norton Rose Fulbright has jumped on the associate raise bandwagon in the fight to attract and retain top talent, the firm confirmed Monday.

Drinker Biddle Eviscerates Ex-Atty’s $30M Firing Suit

A California judge Monday permanently axed most claims from a former Drinker Biddle & Reath LLP associate’s $30 million suit alleging the firm wrongly fired her for opposing an attorney job candidate and then blocked her other job prospects, slashing 14 of 16 claims without leave to amend.

AGs Break New Ground With Emoluments Suit Against Trump

States have routinely sought to defend their place in the federal system and to protect themselves and their residents from unfair competitive practices — but never before from a president whose allegedly unconstitutional business ties might impact those interests. D.C. and Maryland don't have much precedent on which to rely in their emoluments case, say former Massachusetts Attorney General Martha Coakley and Aaron Lang of Foley Hoag LLP. Read more »

FERC At 40: How It Became An Enforcement Agency

Following the Western energy crisis of 2000-2001, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission transformed itself into a robust enforcement agency. In the coming years, FERC has an opportunity to ensure that its important efforts to deter conduct in violation of federal law do not overregulate or unnecessarily increase market participants' costs, say David Applebaum and Todd Brecher of Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld LLP. Trump Budget Proposal Leaves Tribes On Their Own

Despite acknowledging what's important to the health and welfare of tribal nations, President Donald Trump's proposed $303 million cut from tribal funding essentially tells tribes that treaty and trust responsibilities do not matter to him. Tribes will need to turn to the courts and Congress for justice, says Lawrence Roberts of Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton LLP. Read more »

CLO Market Forges Path To Risk-Retention Compliance

When the U.S. risk-retention rules became effective for collateralized loan obligation transactions last December, market participants began a new period of adjustment. With the first few months of work behind us, approaches to compliance are becoming more standardized and best practices are beginning to emerge, says Deborah Festa of Milbank Tweed Hadley & McCloy LLP. Fix Market Distortions By Putting A Price On Carbon

Secretary of Energy Rick Perry has criticized "market-distorting effects of federal subsidies that boost one form of energy at the expense of others." While renewable energy does receive subsidies, the failure to account for the social costs of carbon emissions from fossil fuels is a market distortion that remains unaddressed, say Kenneth Grant and Charles Augustine of Compass Lexecon. DOJ Would Strongly Enforce More Russia Sanctions

The deft bundling of the Russia and Iran sanctions, backed by broad support in the Senate and Speaker Paul Ryan's support in the House, will almost certainly lead to the president signing the bill into law — or risk his veto of a national security bill being quickly overridden. Assuming it becomes law, will enforcement be a priority for the Justice Department? The answer is a strong yes, says Harry Dixon of Taylor English Duma LLP. Read more »

Nevada Small Business Person of the Year:

Dr. Eva D. Littman

Before Dr. Littman founded Red Rock Fertility in Las Vegas, the Las Vegas community had to travel to California and elsewhere to get the appropriate care. When she opened the center, she wanted to make sure that the Las Vegas community as well as the international community, had access to not only personalized physician care, but also the highest standard of fertility care that could be offered.

Despite landslide vote in Senate, Assembly Republicans raise questions about pharma transparency bill

A second committee hearing over proposed transparency mandates for manufacturers of diabetes drugs broke down largely on party lines, with Republican Assembly members expressing a healthy dose of skepticism about a bill that passed the Senate. SB265, sponsored by Democratic Sen. Yvanna Cancela, aims to lower the cost of certain essential diabetes drugs, such as insulin, by mandating that the companies that manufacture them report certain information to the state.

Las Vegas Municipal Court Celebrates 31st WIN Court Graduation Feb. 16

Specialty Court Focuses On Female Offenders Impacted By Trauma

The Las Vegas Municipal Court will celebrate the graduation of an amazing woman who has successfully completed the Women in Need of Change (WIN) Court program at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 16. The WIN Court graduation ceremony will be held in Department 1 of Las Vegas Municipal Court at the Regional Justice Center, located at 200 Lewis Ave., Courtroom 5A. Judge Cynthia Leung will preside; Mayor Pro Tem Steve Ross, members of the Las Vegas City Council, judges and other elected officials are expected to attend. The graduate is willing to do interviews and have her image and name used by news media.

WIN Court's 31st graduate, Terri Williams, 41, has a criminal history that includes arrests and citations spanning 12 years prior to entering WIN Court. During the past 18 months, Williams has embraced recovery, overcome a lifetime of trauma and its obstacles to accomplish her goals, move forward and actually live her dreams. Williams is working full time as a line cook in a local restaurant and hopes to return to college in the near future. Williams also has reconnected with her children.

This graduation is the celebration of the journey of a woman who imagined the life she wanted and has worked very hard to achieve, if not surpass, her initial goals. Williams is respected as a strong leader and mentor to others who struggle to find their way through recovery. She has been instrumental in helping others to succeed in the WIN Court program.

WIN Court is a trauma-responsive specialty court program in the Las Vegas Municipal Court that targets female offenders with a history of criminal behavior, prostitution and substance abuse-related charges by targeting trauma as the root of their issues. Through WIN Court, the women learn the tools to change their way of thinking to make positive choices and create their future. All participants have 180 days of jail time suspended for 18 months, which is cleared upon successful completion of the program.

The women who participate must comply with rigorous sentencing requirements throughout the program, requiring the participants to complete drug treatment and counseling programs, earn a GED or pursue education/training, secure employment and live independently. The defendants must stay out of trouble and abstain from drugs and alcohol during the 18-month program. The Court celebrated its first graduate in August 2008.

WIN Court currently is funded by an Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant and a grant from the Nevada Administrative Office of the Courts.

Las Vegas Municipal Court Celebrates 31st WIN Court Graduation Feb. 16

Specialty Court Focuses On Female Offenders Impacted By Trauma

The Las Vegas Municipal Court will celebrate the graduation of an amazing woman who has successfully completed the Women in Need of Change (WIN) Court program at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 16. The WIN Court graduation ceremony will be held in Department 1 of Las Vegas Municipal Court at the Regional Justice Center, located at 200 Lewis Ave., Courtroom 5A. Judge Cynthia Leung will preside; Mayor Pro Tem Steve Ross, members of the Las Vegas City Council, judges and other elected officials are expected to attend. The graduate is willing to do interviews and have her image and name used by news media.

WIN Court's 31st graduate, Terri Williams, 41, has a criminal history that includes arrests and citations spanning 12 years prior to entering WIN Court. During the past 18 months, Williams has embraced recovery, overcome a lifetime of trauma and its obstacles to accomplish her goals, move forward and actually live her dreams. Williams is working full time as a line cook in a local restaurant and hopes to return to college in the near future. Williams also has reconnected with her children.

This graduation is the celebration of the journey of a woman who imagined the life she wanted and has worked very hard to achieve, if not surpass, her initial goals. Williams is respected as a strong leader and mentor to others who struggle to find their way through recovery. She has been instrumental in helping others to succeed in the WIN Court program.

WIN Court is a trauma-responsive specialty court program in the Las Vegas Municipal Court that targets female offenders with a history of criminal behavior, prostitution and substance abuse-related charges by targeting trauma as the root of their issues. Through WIN Court, the women learn the tools to change their way of thinking to make positive choices and create their future. All participants have 180 days of jail time suspended for 18 months, which is cleared upon successful completion of the program.

The women who participate must comply with rigorous sentencing requirements throughout the program, requiring the participants to complete drug treatment and counseling programs, earn a GED or pursue education/training, secure employment and live independently. The defendants must stay out of trouble and abstain from drugs and alcohol during the 18-month program. The Court celebrated its first graduate in August 2008.

WIN Court currently is funded by an Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant and a grant from the Nevada Administrative Office of the Courts.

Subject: Tomorrow's Webinar: How to support immigrants and oppose anti-immigrant bigotry

Dear Carolyn,

It has become clear that anti-immigrant bigotry will play a major role in the 2016 campaign.

A few examples—Donald Trump on Mexican immigrants: “They're bringing drugs. They're bringing crime. They're rapists.” Trump on Muslims: “When the World Trade Center came tumbling down…thousands of Muslims were cheering.” A written statement by the Trump campaign: “Donald J. Trump is calling for a total and complete shutdown of Muslims entering the United States.” Trump in a televised interview: “I think Islam hates us."

Many other candidates across the country are saying similar things. What should progressives say in response? When they hear such bigotry, what are Americans thinking? How can progressives persuade our fellow citizens to reject discrimination and hate?

MAKING THE ROUNDS WITH FOUNDING DEAN BARBARA ATKINSON

Issue 179 – Jan 22nd, 2019

If a child has a recurring or persistent disease caused by an infectious agent such as those caused by bacteria, viruses, fungi and parasites, a pediatric infectious diseases specialist has the training to understand the unique signs and symptoms of even the most complex infectious diseases in children. At the UNLV School of Medicine and our clinical arm, UNLV Medicine, we are honored to have Dr. David Di John in this very important role. Prior to his arrival in Southern Nevada in 2014, he taught clinical pediatrics for 18 years at New York University Medical center, served as director of pediatric infectious diseases at New York's Flushing Hospital Medical Center and directed a pediatric AIDS clinic in New York City. I'm sure you'll enjoy learning more about this man, whose vast experience and calm demeanor provide an extra measure of comfort to the people he treats.

Dr. David Di John: Passionate About Serving the Underserved

Born and raised in New York City, Dr. David Di John is now one of the leading physicians in Nevada when it comes to treating children with infectious diseases including HIV

The son of a physician who worked at a VA medical center in New York City, David Di John listened carefully to what his father told him about his work, about how through the practice of medicine he was able to help the men and women who, often at great personal sacrifice, had served their country.

While Di John was immersed in the sciences at New York's Stuyvesant High School -- the school specializing in science, mathematics and technology has been seen as a symbol of excellence in public education for more than a century -- his father's observations gave a sense of direction to the idealistic young man who wanted to become a contributor, a builder, a genuine worker on behalf of humanity.

"With the help of my father and teachers, I could see how the sciences, how medicine afforded an opportunity to better people's lives," said Di John, who's now been a physician for 37 years.

He did his undergraduate work in pre-med at Columbia, the Ivy League school in Manhattan where former President Barack Obama also earned a bachelor's degree. It was at Columbia that Di John's commitment to public service became pronounced. He headed a community service council that worked with students from humble backgrounds.

"We went into their households to work with them," Dr. Di John said. "We got to know their families. What I tried to do with kids is show them what was possible in a great city, what could have an impact on them educationally. We would bring them around campus, took them to important places like museums that they had never been to. One time we took them to the Brooklyn Navy Yard where they boarded a submarine and were able to speak with the crew. They might have been from Harlem but they had never even been to Brooklyn or Queens, never ventured out of their own neighborhoods. I wanted to expand their horizons."

That community work with young people, coupled with the fact that he enjoyed his pediatric rotations the most while at the George Washington School of Medicine in the nation's capital, pushed him to specialize in pediatrics. During medical school, he had the opportunity to go overseas, to the west African nation of Gambia, to learn about tropical medicine. He saw patients with malaria and leprosy, and rural hospitals that were so crowded that children had to lie on blankets on the floor. Once he worked with a lethargic boy who had been left to die. "I was able to diagnose him with meningococcal meningitis and started treatment but I had to leave before I found out whether he lived or not," Dr. Di John recalled. "The inadequacy of care was obvious."

> "You would see heartbreaking things -- a child who once was speaking and walking would become unable to talk or walk and be in a wheelchair or completely bedridden before they died."

The work with infectious diseases while in medical school propelled Di John to pursue a fellowship in pediatric infectious diseases through the University of Maryland. In addition to learning how to treat immune deficiency diseases, he was trained to diagnose and administer appropriate treatment to youngsters who have viral, bacterial or fungal infections.

He also was trained to work with diseases that were complicated or atypical, including: illnesses that are of unclear cause, have prolonged fever, or are recurrent; respiratory infections; bone and joint infections; tuberculosis; acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS); hepatitis, and meningitis.

During his fellowship, Di John thought seriously about working in international medicine, possibly working for the World Health Organization. At one point, while working with indigenous Indians in Venezuela, he was part of an effort to develop a malaria vaccine.

As it turned out, particularly with the explosion of the AIDS epidemic in the 1980s and 1990s, there was plenty for a new pediatric infectious diseases specialist to do in the United States.

He returned to his hometown of New York City, becoming highly regarded not only as a clinician but as an academic for nearly 20 years. His research, often dealing with HIV, the virus that can lead to AIDS, was published in numerous peer-reviewed journals, including Pediatric Infectious Disease Journal, Journal of Pediatrics, and Clinical Pediatrics.

In the early days of the AIDS epidemic, Di John said there were many instances of mother-to-child transmission of HIV, which led to children dying young. “You would see heartbreaking things -- a child who once was speaking and walking would become unable to talk or walk and be in a wheelchair or completely bedridden before they died.”

Seeing that loss of milestones in a child, Di John said, took a toll on him and his team. “It was a very difficult thing to see, when you couldn’t really treat them,” he said.”There wasn’t much to offer those patients back then.”

Fortunately, Di John said, with the passage of time “there has been explosion of new drugs” to deal with HIV/AIDS. “Some years ago, I treated a girl in New York who had been infected at birth with HIV, who later had a baby of her own who was not infected. While now much more common, that was quite remarkable when I first saw it.”

In 2014, in pursuit of a new opportunity -- “there was talk then of the opening of a new medical school in Las Vegas” -- Di John moved to Nevada, becoming the section chief of pediatric Infectious diseases with the University of Nevada Reno School of Medicine. In 2017 he took the same position with the new UNLV School of Medicine and later that year, when the need arose for new leadership, he became the program director for the UNLV Medicine Maternal Child Wellness Program, which is charged with caring for HIV infected and exposed infants, children and adolescents in southern Nevada.

“We’ve come a long way in treating pediatric infectious diseases,” said Dr. Di John, who enjoys teaching pediatric residents. “I’m excited to see what the future will bring to help even more children.”

SUPREME COURT REVIEW

The Cases That Got The Justices Talking

The justices' level of engagement at oral argument can provide a crucial window into their thinking on an issue, but interpreting what that might mean for how they'll rule is an elusive art. Here, Law360 looks at the sessions in which each justice engaged the most. Read more »

The Most Talkative Justice Of The High Court Term

Since the death of Justice Antonin Scalia last year, a new U.S. Supreme Court justice has emerged as the most talkative at oral arguments — and the titleholder should come as no surprise to court watchers. Read more »

The 10 Funniest Moments Of The Supreme Court Term

Neal Katyal seemingly tried to educate Justice Samuel Alito about a well-known Latin phrase, Justice Sonia Sotomayor prayed aloud that she wouldn't be assigned a mind-numbing opinion, and Justice Elena Kagan needled a lawyer who confused her with another justice. Here, Law360 wraps up the top moments of legal levity from the latest high court term. Read more »

Trump Energy Order Creates Tough Choices For Agencies

President Donald Trump ordered his administration Tuesday to review and possibly rescind several Obama-era energy rules and policies, some of which are already embroiled in litigation, but exactly how Trump's agencies will go about carrying out the anticipated rollback remains unclear.

Senate Set For Gorsuch Showdown Next Week

U.S. Senate leaders have vowed a showdown over the nomination of Tenth Circuit Judge Neil Gorsuch next week, promising a fight on Tuesday over President Donald Trump's choice to fill the late Justice Antonin Scalia's seat on the U.S. Supreme Court.

House Votes To Repeal FCC Privacy Rules

Congress has now voted to repeal Federal Communication Commission broadband privacy rules after a House vote Tuesday sent the controversial provision to President Donald Trump’s desk.

Speaker Ryan Hints At Continued Action On Health Reform

Efforts to repeal the Affordable Care Act have not been taken out to pasture yet, Republican House Speaker Paul Ryan said on Tuesday, hinting that his caucus might bring forward new reform proposals in the future, days after he pulled a planned floor vote over defections within the Republican Party.

Senate Democrats Want Answers On Bharara's Firing

Senate Democrats Elizabeth Warren, Richard Blumenthal and Jeff Merkley on Tuesday demanded answers from Attorney General Jeff Sessions about why Preet Bharara was fired from his position as U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York, especially given reports that he was investigating HHS Secretary Tom Price’s stock trades.

Trump Signs Order Targeting Obama's Climate Legacy

President Donald Trump signed a sweeping executive order on Tuesday that directed the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to start rolling back the Clean Power Plan, lifted the Obama administration's moratorium on coal leasing on federal lands and told the Department of the Interior to consider rescinding its rule regulating hydraulic fracturing on public and tribal lands.

Analysis

Future Rollbacks May Not Be As Easy As Blacklisting Repeal

President Donald Trump's repeal of the contentious Fair Pay and Safe Workplaces rule is welcome news for federal contractors, but despite the president's promises to repeal burdensome regulations, it remains uncertain when or if he will be able to roll back more rules affecting contractors.

Greenberg Traurig Lures Enviro Pro From Holland & Hart

Greenberg Traurig LLP said Monday it has bolstered its government and environmental practices by picking up an experienced environmental policy lawyer and former U.S. Department of the Interior special assistant to the solicitor from Holland & Hart LLP.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

'Blacklisting' Rule Rejection May Begin Pro-Employer Trend

On Monday, President Donald Trump signed a congressional resolution blocking implementation of President Obama’s Fair Pay and Safe Workplaces executive order. This may be an initial step toward dismantling many employment-related requirements that the Obama administration placed on federal contractors, and may indicate the Trump administration’s overall direction on employment issues, say Brett Coburn and Anna Saraie of Alston & Bird LLP.

Judge Gorsuch's Dubious Commitment To Legal Textualism

In practice, being an “originalist” or a “textualist” is a lot like being “gluten-free” except when it comes to pasta and bagels. Most “textualists” are happy to apply these concepts rigorously when it will produce the result they want — but they’ll relax or ignore them if it produces a politically inconvenient outcome. Judge Neil Gorsuch seems to fit this profile, says Max Kennerly of Kennerly Loutey LLC.

What New Bulk Substance Rules Mean For The Drug Industry

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has recently included six bulk drug substances on the 503A bulks list, which allows drug compounders to bypass certain regulations for some drugs. Though progress is welcome, some pharmacists are expressing frustration over how long it is taking the FDA to finalize its guidance, says Keith Hasson of Hasson Law Group.

Good evening Trustees and Board members,
Please see the attached board packet and supporting documents for next Thursday's joint board meeting.

We have 2 hours for this meeting to allow additional discussion time for important agenda items. Please take the time to review ahead of time and attend in person if at all possible. We are meeting at the Monorail boardroom at 3:00 PM (location on board packet and updated calendar appointment) and will have a holiday social gathering immediately afterwards at Gordon Biersch at 5:00 PM.

Please let me know if you will not be attending or will be calling in (for printing and planning purposes) and if there are any questions ahead of time. I look forward to a good discussion on these important and exciting agenda items and seeing everyone next week,

Lauren

ADDENDUM TO THE BYLAWS OF
Green Chips d/b/a ImpactNV Forming The
ImpactNV Social Equity Impact Fund

WHEREAS, Green Chips d/b/a ImpactNV is a Nevada 501(c)(3) non-profit catalyst organization (ImpactNV), founded in 2008, that is dedicated to building community through collaborative partnerships for a more sustainable future, and;

WHEREAS, ImpactNV has been a leader in promoting innovative partnerships among businesses, government and non-profits, and

WHEREAS, ImpactNV works to focus the region's resources on the issues and challenges facing our community, and;

WHEREAS, ImpactNV has been chosen by Caesars Entertainment Group to launch a social equity impact Fund in partnership with Impact NV to address three areas of focus for future work; housing insecurity, human trafficking, and immigrant integration ("Focus Areas"), and;

WHEREAS, ImpactNV is hereby forming an operating division d/b/a ImpactNV Social Equity Fund, which shall have authority to enter into legal contracts and form relationships that bind ImpactNV, make all Investment decisions related to the Focus Areas, receive donations, manage capital, hire managers and execute on the plan presented to the ImpactNV Board (Exhibit A); and

WHEREAS, the investments made in the Focus Areas are intended to benefit the region, but may also have lasting effect through the investment in and creation of best practices in the Focus Areas, benefitting Society broadly;

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY UNANIMOUSLY RESOLVED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF ImpactNV, that its Bylaws are hereby amended to create a Division of ImpactNV, as authorized by section _____of the Bylaws, called ImpactNV Social Equity Impact Fund ("SEIF" or the "Fund"). The operations of the Fund, its authority, and all investments made in the Focus Areas shall be governed by the rules set forth below, and by the Articles of Incorporation of Impact NV.

ARTICLE 1. SEIF OFFICES

The principal office of the Fund shall be located at its principal place of business or such other place as the SEIF Board of Directors ("SEIF Board") may designate. The Fund may have such other offices, either within or without the State of Nevada, as the SEIF Board may designate or as the business of the Fund may require from time to time. Certain Fund operations as determined by the SEIF Board may be outsourced to organizations outside Nevada.

ARTICLE 2. SEIF AS A DIVISION of ImpactNV

2.1 Authority to Operate

All right title and interest of SEIF to operate as a social impact Fund (i.e., 501c (3) status, Federal EIN, state Business License, insurance, state and federal legal status), shall be derived from ImpactNV (d/b/a ImpactNV Social Equity Fund) . The SEIF Board of Directors shall have the authority to create legal entities (i.e., LLC's) on behalf of InvestNV to hold assets, or create additional committees, the manner of election or appointment of each, and the qualifications and rights of each must be established by amendment to these Bylaws.

2.2 Qualifications for SEIF Board

In order to qualify as a SEIF Board of Director, he or she shall be elected or appointed by the ImpactNV Board based on the criteria set forth in Article 3 below. Directors may have such other qualifications as the ImpactNV Board may prescribe by amendment to these Bylaws.

2.3 Voting Rights

Each SEIF Board member is entitled to vote with respect to the subject matter of an issue submitted to the members and shall be entitled to one vote upon each such issue.

2.4 SEIF Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the members shall be held the _____ day of _____ in each year at _____ __.m. for the purpose of electing Directors and transacting such other business as may properly come before the meeting. If the day fixed for the annual meeting is a legal holiday at the place of the meeting, the meeting shall be held on the next succeeding business day. If the annual meeting is not held on the date designated therefor, the Board shall cause the meeting to be held as soon thereafter as may be convenient.

2.5 SEIF Special Meetings

The President, the Board, or not less than three of the members entitled to vote at such meeting, may call special meetings of the members for any purpose.

2.6 SEIF Place of Meetings

All meetings of members shall be held at the principal office of the corporation or at such other place within or without the State of Nevada designated by the President, the Board, by the members entitled to call a meeting of members, or by a waiver of notice signed by all members entitled to vote at the meeting.

2.7 SEIF Notice of Meetings

The President, the Secretary or the Board shall cause to be delivered to each member entitled to notice of or to vote at the meeting, either personally, by mail, by facsimile transmission or by electronic transmission, not less than seven nor more than fifty days before the meeting, written notice stating the place, date and time of the meeting and, in the case of a special meeting, the purpose or purposes for which the meeting is called. At any time, upon the written request of not less than three of the members entitled to vote at the meeting, it shall be the duty of the Secretary to give notice of a special meeting of members to be held at such date, time and place as the Secretary may fix, not less than seven nor more than thirty-five days after receipt of such written request, and if the Secretary shall neglect or refuse to issue such notice, the person or persons making the request may do so and may fix the date, time and place for such meeting. If such notice is mailed, it shall be deemed delivered when deposited in the official government mail properly addressed to the member at his or her address as it appears on the records of the corporation with postage thereon prepaid. Notices by electronic transmission must be delivered in accordance with these Bylaws.

2.8 Waiver of Notice

Whenever any notice is required to be given to any member under the provisions of these Bylaws, the Articles of Incorporation or applicable Nevada law, a waiver thereof in writing, signed by the person or persons entitled to such notice, whether before or after the time stated therein, shall be deemed equivalent to the giving of such notice.

2.9 Quorum

Three of the members of the SEIF Board entitled to vote, represented in person or by proxy, shall constitute a quorum at a meeting of the Board. If less than a quorum of the members entitled to vote is represented at a meeting, a majority of the members so represented may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

2.10 Manner of Acting

The vote of a majority of the votes entitled to be cast by the members represented in person or by proxy at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be necessary for the adoption of any matter voted upon by the members, unless a greater proportion is required by applicable Nevada law, the Articles of Incorporation or these Bylaws.

2.11 Proxies

A member may vote by proxy executed in writing by the member or by his or her attorney-in-fact. Such proxy shall be filed with the Secretary of the corporation before or at the time of the meeting. A proxy shall become invalid eleven months after the date of its execution unless otherwise provided in the proxy. A proxy with respect to a specific meeting shall entitle the holder thereof to vote at any reconvened meeting following adjournment of such meeting but shall not be valid after the final adjournment thereof.

2.12 Action by Members Without a Meeting

Any action which could be taken at a meeting of the members may be taken without a meeting if a written consent setting forth the action so taken is signed by all members entitled to vote with respect to the subject matter thereof. Such written consents may be signed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original and all of which, taken together, shall constitute one and the same document. Any such written consent shall be inserted in the minute book as if it were the minutes of a meeting of the members.

2.13 Meetings by Telephone

Members of the SEIF Board may participate in a meeting of members by means of a conference telephone or similar communications equipment by means of which all persons participating in the meeting can hear each other at the same time. Participation by such means shall constitute presence in person at a meeting.

2.14 Electronic Transmission

The Corporation may deliver to a member notices, demands, consents or waivers by electronic transmission, if such member has consented to receive such electronically transmitted communications. The consent must designate the message format accessible to the member and the address, location or system to which the notices or other document may be electronically transmitted. Notice provided in an electronic transmission is effective when it: (a) is electronically transmitted to an address, location, or system designated by the recipient for that purpose, and is made pursuant to the consent provided by the recipient; or (b) has been posted on an electronic network and a separate record of the posting has been delivered to the recipient together with comprehensible instructions regarding how to obtain access to the posting on the electronic network.

ARTICLE 3. SEIF BOARD OF DIRECTORS

3.1 General Powers

The affairs of the Fund shall be managed by a SEIF Board of Directors.

3.2 Number

The SEIF Board shall consist of five Directors. The number of Directors may be changed from time to time by amendment to these Bylaws, provided that no decrease in the number shall have the effect of shortening the term of any incumbent Director.

3.3 Qualifications

Four Directors shall be appointed by the members of the ImpactNV Board of Directors and the other director shall be the President of ImpactNV. SEIF director's shall have subject matter expertise in the Focus Areas, and or investment/social equity impact fund acumen. Directors may have such other qualifications as the Board may prescribe by amendment to these Bylaws. Should the SEIF board expand to a number greater than five, ImpactNV shall always have the right to appoint a majority of the SEIF Board.

3.4 Election of Directors

3.4.1 Initial Directors

The initial Directors shall be Lauren Boitel, President ImpactNV, _____, _____, _____, and _____.

3.4.2 Successor Directors

Successor Directors shall be elected each year at the annual meeting of members.

The election of Directors may be conducted by mail in such manner as the Board of Directors shall determine.

3.5 Term of Office

Unless a Director dies, resigns or is removed, he or she shall hold office until the next annual meeting of the Board or until his or her successor is elected, whichever is later.

3.6 Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Board shall be held without notice immediately following and at the same place as the annual meeting of members for the purposes of electing officers and transacting such business as may properly come before the meeting.

3.7 Regular Meetings

By resolution, the Board may specify the date, time and place for the holding of regular meetings without other notice than such resolution.

3.8 Special Meetings

Special meetings of the Board or any committee designated and appointed by the Board may be called by or at the written request of the President or any two Directors, or, in the case of a committee meeting, by the chairman of the committee. The person or persons authorized to call special meetings may fix any place either within or without the State of Nevada as the place for holding any special Board or committee meeting called by them.

3.9 Meetings by Telephone

Members of the Board or any committee designated by the Board may participate in a meeting of such Board or committee by means of a conference telephone or similar communications equipment by means of which all persons participating in the meeting can hear each other at the same time. Participation by such means shall constitute presence in person at a meeting.

3.10 Place of Meetings

All meetings shall be held at the principal office of the corporation or at such other place within or without the State of Nevada designated by the Board, by any persons entitled to call a meeting or by a waiver of notice signed by all Directors.

3.11 Notice of Special Meetings

Notice of special Board or committee meetings shall be given to a Director in writing or by personal communication with the Director not less than ten days before the meeting. Notices in writing may be delivered or mailed to the Director at his or her address shown on the records of the corporation or given by facsimile or electronic transmission. Neither the business to be transacted at, nor the purpose of any special meeting need be specified in the notice of such meeting. If notice is delivered by mail, the notice shall be deemed effective when deposited in the official government mail properly addressed with postage thereon prepaid. Notices by electronic transmission must be delivered in accordance with Section 3.22 of these Bylaws.

3.12 Waiver of Notice

3.12.1 In Writing

Whenever any notice is required to be given to any Director under the provisions of these Bylaws, the Articles of Incorporation or applicable Nevada law, a waiver thereof in writing, signed by the person or persons entitled to such notice, whether before or after the time stated therein, shall be deemed equivalent to the giving of such notice. Neither the business to be transacted at, nor the purpose of, any regular or special meeting of the Board need be specified in the waiver of notice of such meeting.

3.12.2 By Attendance

The attendance of a Director at a meeting shall constitute a waiver of notice of such meeting, except where a Director attends a meeting for the express purpose of objecting to the transaction of any business because the meeting is not lawfully called or convened.

3.13 Quorum

Three of the number of Directors in office shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business at any Board meeting. If a quorum is not present at a meeting, a majority of the Directors present may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

3.14 Manner of Acting

The act of the majority of the Directors present at a meeting at which there is a quorum shall be the act of the Board, unless the vote of a greater number is required by these Bylaws, the Articles of Incorporation or applicable Nevada law.

3.15 Presumption of Assent

A Director of the corporation present at a Board meeting at which action on any corporate matter is taken shall be presumed to have assented to the action taken unless his or her dissent or abstention is entered in the minutes of the meeting, or unless such Director files a written dissent or abstention to such action with the person acting as secretary of the meeting before the adjournment thereof, or forwards such dissent or abstention by registered mail to the Secretary of the corporation immediately after the adjournment of the meeting. Such right to dissent or abstain shall not apply to a Director who voted in favor of such action.

3.16 Action by Board Without a Meeting

Any action which could be taken at a meeting of the Board may be taken without a meeting if a written consent setting forth the action so taken is signed by each of the Directors. Such written consents may be signed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original and all of which, taken together, shall constitute one and the same document. Any such written consent shall be inserted in the minute book as if it were the minutes of a Board meeting.

3.17 Resignation

Any Director may resign at any time by delivering written notice to the President or the Secretary at the registered office of the corporation, or by giving oral or written notice at any meeting of the Directors. Any such resignation shall take effect at the time specified therein, or if the time is not specified, upon delivery thereof and, unless otherwise specified therein, the acceptance of such resignation shall not be necessary to make it effective.

3.18 Removal

At a meeting of members called expressly for that purpose, one or more Directors (including the entire Board) may be removed from office, with or without cause, by two-thirds of the votes cast by members then entitled to vote on the election of Directors represented in person or by proxy at a meeting of members at which a quorum is present.

3.19 Vacancies

A vacancy in the position of Director may be filled by the affirmative vote of a majority of the remaining Directors though less than a quorum of the Board. A Director who fills a vacancy shall serve for the unexpired term of his or her predecessor in office.

3.20 SEIF Board Functions

3.20.1 Investment Committee and Finance Committees

The SEIF Board, by resolution adopted by a majority of the Directors in office, may designate and appoint one or more standing or temporary committees, each of which shall consist of two or more SEIF Directors. The Fund shall initially establish two committees:

- The Finance Committee shall consist of three SEIF Board members whose responsibility shall be the oversight of financial, and performance reporting to Impact NV and any partners or donors to the Fund, Fund accounting, banking and loan relationships, Fund budgeting and finance duties. If managers or vendors are hired to assist in the Fund management or accounting, the Finance Committee shall have authority to hire and fire and hold said vendors accountable.

- The Investment Committee shall consist of no less than three Members of the SEIF Board and shall be responsible for adopting appropriate investment guidelines, grant procedures, portfolio valuation guidelines, and loan requirements for the Fund. The Investment Committee shall be responsible for authorizing, evaluating and making investments, loans and grants. It shall be responsible for setting valuations on assets, establishing investment, loan and grant criteria, and for deploying Fund assets consistent with the Focus Areas.

Such committees shall have authority to exercise the authority described above as granted by the SEIF Directors in the management of the Fund, subject to such limitations as may be prescribed by the SEIF Board; except that no committee shall have the authority to: (a) amend, alter or repeal these Bylaws; (b) elect, appoint or remove any member of any other committee or any Director or officer of the corporation; (c) amend the ImpactNV Articles of Incorporation; (d) adopt a plan of merger or consolidation with another corporation; (e) authorize the sale, lease or exchange of all or substantially all of the property and assets of the corporation not in the ordinary course of business; (f) authorize the voluntary dissolution of the corporation or revoke proceedings therefor; (g) adopt a plan for the distribution of the assets of the corporation; or (h) amend, alter or repeal any resolution of the ImpactNV Board which by its terms provides that it shall not be amended, altered or repealed by a committee. The designation and appointment of any such committee and the delegation thereto of authority shall not operate to relieve the ImpactNV Board or any individual Director of any responsibility imposed upon it, him or her by law.

3.20.2 Quorum; Manner of Acting

A majority of the number of Directors composing any committee shall constitute a quorum, and the act of a majority of the members of a committee present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the committee.

3.20.3 Resignation

Any member of any committee may resign at any time by delivering written notice thereof to the President, the Secretary or the chairperson of such committee, or by giving oral or written notice at any meeting of such committee. Any such resignation shall take effect at the time specified therein, or if the time is not specified, upon delivery thereof and, unless otherwise specified therein, the acceptance of such resignation shall not be necessary to make it effective.

3.20.4 Removal of Committee Member

The Board, by resolution adopted by a majority of the Directors in office, may remove from office any member of any committee elected or appointed by it.

3.21 Compensation

The Directors shall receive no compensation for their service as Directors but may receive reimbursement for expenditures incurred on behalf of the corporation. The President shall be compensated and all staff of SEIF as directed by a Majority of the SEIF Board.

3.22 Electronic Transmission

The Corporation may deliver to a Director notices, demands, consents or waivers by electronic transmission, if such Director has consented to receive such electronically transmitted communications. The consent must designate the message format accessible to the Director and the address, location or system to which the notices or other document may be electronically transmitted. Notice provided in an electronic transmission is effective when it: (a) is electronically transmitted to an address, location, or system designated by the recipient for that purpose, and is made pursuant to the consent provided by the recipient; or (b) has been posted on an electronic network and a separate record of the posting has been delivered to the recipient together with comprehensible instructions regarding how to obtain access to the posting on the electronic network.

3.23 Board Observers

A non-voting/non-fiduciary Observer appointed by Caesars Entertainment shall be permitted to attend all SEIF Board meetings, receive all SEIF Board Materials, and participate in SEIF Board meetings. Executive Session may be called by the voting members of the SEIF Board to exclude Observers as appropriate to discuss matters of conflict, or Confidential matters at the discretion of the SEIF Board in the exercise of their Fiduciary duties to the Company.

ARTICLE 4. OFFICERS

4.1 Number and Qualifications

The officers of the corporation shall be a President, a Secretary and a Treasurer, each of whom shall be elected by the Board. Other officers and assistant officers may be elected or appointed by the Board, such officers and assistant officers to hold office for such period, have such authority and perform such duties as are provided in these Bylaws or as may be provided by resolution of the Board. Any officer may be assigned by the Board any additional title that the Board deems appropriate. Any two or more offices may be held by the same person, except the offices of President and Secretary. The Fund may outsource the CFO or Fund Management roles to outside third parties who shall be accountable to the President, Treasurer and ultimately the Board.

4.2 Election and Term of Office

The officers of the corporation shall be elected each year by the Board at the annual meeting of the Board. Unless an officer dies, resigns, or is removed from office, he or she shall hold office until the next annual meeting of the Board or until his or her successor is elected.

4.3 Resignation

Any officer may resign at any time by delivering written notice to the President, a Vice President, the Secretary or the Board, or by giving oral or written notice at any meeting of the Board. Any such resignation shall take effect at the time specified therein, or if the time is not specified, upon delivery thereof and, unless otherwise specified therein, the acceptance of such resignation shall not be necessary to make it effective.

4.4 Removal

Any officer or agent elected or appointed by the Board may be removed from office by the Board whenever in its judgment the best interests of the corporation would be served thereby, but such removal shall be without prejudice to the contract rights, if any, of the person so removed.

4.5 Vacancies

A vacancy in any office created by the death, resignation, removal, disqualification, creation of a new office or any other cause may be filled by the Board for the unexpired portion of the term or for a new term established by the Board.

4.6 President

The President shall be the chief executive officer of the corporation, and, subject to the Board's control, shall supervise and control all of the assets, business and affairs of the corporation. Compensation for the President shall be established by the Finance Committee and approved by the full Board. The President shall preside over meetings of the members and the Board. The President may sign deeds, mortgages, bonds, contracts, or other instruments, except when the signing and execution thereof have been expressly delegated by the Board or by these Bylaws to some other officer or agent of the corporation or are required by law to be otherwise signed or executed by some other officer or in some other manner. In general, the President shall perform all duties incident to the office of President and such other duties as are assigned to him or her by the Board from time to time.

4.7 Vice Presidents

In the event of the death of the President or his or her inability to act, the Vice President (or if there is more than one Vice President, the Vice President who was designated by the Board as the successor to the President, or if no Vice President is so designated, the Vice President whose name first appears in the Board resolution electing officers) shall perform the duties of the President, except as may be limited by resolution of the Board, with all the powers of and subject to all the restrictions upon the President. Vice Presidents shall have, to the extent authorized by the President or the Board, the same powers as the President to sign deeds, mortgages, bonds, contracts or other instruments. Vice Presidents shall perform such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to them by the President or the Board.

4.8 Secretary

The Secretary shall: (a) keep the minutes of meetings of the members and the Board, and minutes which may be maintained by committees of the Board; (b) see that all notices are duly given in accordance with the provisions of these Bylaws or as required by law; (c) be custodian of the corporate records of the corporation; (d) keep records of the post office address and class, if applicable, of each member and Director and of the name and post office address of each officer; (e) sign with the President, or other officer authorized by the President or the Board, deeds, mortgages, bonds, contracts, or other instruments; and (f) in general perform all duties incident to the office of Secretary and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him or her by the President or the Board.

4.9 Treasurer

If requested by the Board, the Treasurer shall give a bond (at the Funds expense) for the faithful discharge of his or her duties in such amount and with such surety or sureties as the Board may determine. The Treasurer shall have charge and custody of and be responsible for all funds and securities of the corporation; receive and give receipts for moneys due and payable to the corporation from any source whatsoever, and deposit all such moneys in the name of the corporation in banks, trust companies or other depositories selected in accordance with the provisions of these Bylaws; and in general perform all of the duties incident to the office of Treasurer and such other duties as from time to time may be assigned to him or her by the President or the Board.

ARTICLE 5. ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

5.1 Books and Records

The corporation shall keep at its principal or registered office copies of its current Articles of Incorporation and Bylaws; correct and adequate records of accounts and finances; minutes of the proceedings of its members and Board, and any minutes which may be maintained by committees of the Board; records of the name and address and class, if applicable of each member and Director, and of the name and post office address of each officer; and such other records as may be necessary or advisable. All books and records of the corporation shall be open at any reasonable time to inspection by any member of three months standing or to a representative of more than five percent of the membership.

5.2 Accounting Year

The accounting year of the corporation shall be the twelve months ending 12/31._____.

5.3 Rules of Procedure

The rules of procedure at meetings of the Board and committees of the Board shall be rules contained in Roberts' Rules of Order on Parliamentary Procedure, newly revised, so far as applicable and when not inconsistent with these Bylaws, the Articles of Incorporation or any resolution of the Board.

ARTICLE 6. AMENDMENTS

These Bylaws may be altered, amended or repealed and new Bylaws may be adopted by the vote of a majority of the number of Directors in office.

The foregoing Bylaws were adopted by the ImpactNV Board of Directors on _____, ____.

SOCIAL EQUITY IMPACT FUND ALLIANCE AGREEMENT

Regardless of its date of execution, this Social Equity Impact Fund Alliance Agreement (this "Agreement") shall be deemed made and entered into as of November 1, 2018 (the "Effective Date") by and between Caesars Enterprise Services, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company, located at One Caesars Palace Drive, Las Vegas, Nevada 89109 ("Caesars"), and Green Chips d/b/a ImpactNV, a 501(c)(3) non-profit catalyst organization, located at 4220 S Maryland Parkway, Suite 205, Las Vegas, Nevada 89119 ("ImpactNV"). ImpactNV and Caesars may hereinafter be referred to as the "Party" or the "Parties" where appropriate. Exhibits attached hereto, and any attachments and addenda thereto and/or hereto, are hereby incorporated herein by reference.

RECITALS

WHEREAS, ImpactNV is a Nevada 501(c)(3) non-profit catalyst organization that is dedicated to building community through collaborative partnerships in support of a more sustainable and socially balanced region; and

WHEREAS, Caesars is an international gaming, hospitality and entertainment company that desires to engage ImpactNV to provide services (the "Services"), including support and management of a social equity impact fund (the "Fund"), in a collaborative effort to address three primary areas of concentration: (1) homelessness (housing insecurity), (2) human trafficking, and (3) immigrant integration (collectively, the "Focus Areas"); and

WHEREAS, ImpactNV intends to initiate the Fund with financial support from Caesars and Caesars intends to provide continued support to ImpactNV and the Fund thereafter, as further described in the Scope of Services Exhibit, attached hereto as Exhibit A; and

WHEREAS, Caesars and ImpactNV desire to enter into this Agreement and perform their respective covenants and agreements in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof.

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the representations, conditions and covenants set forth in this Agreement, and for other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which are hereby acknowledged, the Parties agree that the foregoing recitals are true and correct and are incorporated into this Agreement, and further agree as follows:

GENERAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS

1. Obligations of the Parties.

   a. Description of Services. All Services provided by ImpactNV for Caesars under this Agreement shall be performed pursuant to the Scope of Services Exhibit.

   b. Caesars' Obligations to ImpactNV. Caesars' obligations to ImpactNV under this Agreement are set forth in the Scope of Services Exhibit.

2. Definitions. In addition to terms defined elsewhere in this Agreement, the following capitalized terms have the meanings set forth below:

   a. "Confidential Information" means all information or material of a Party or its affiliate(s), whether revealed orally, visually, or in tangible or electronic form, that is competitively sensitive material not generally known to the public that relates to the business of a Party or Party affiliate(s), or any of their respective interest holders, unless such information (i) was already rightfully known to the receiving Party at the time of disclosure by disclosing Party; (ii) is in or has entered the public domain through no breach of this Agreement or other wrongful act of the receiving Party; (iii) has been rightfully received by receiving Party from a third party not under obligation of confidentiality to disclosing Party and without breach of this Agreement; or (iv) is independently developed by receiving Party without reference or reliance on any confidential information of disclosing Party.

b. "Event of Default" means or shall occur if (i) there shall be filed by or against a Party, in any competent court, a petition in bankruptcy or insolvency, or for reorganization, or for the appointment of a receiver or trustee of all or a portion of the property of a Party; (ii) either Party makes an assignment for the benefit of creditors or petitions for, or enters into, an agreement or arrangement with its creditors; or (iii) without limitation, a Party fails to perform or abide by any covenants, representations, warranties, or other provisions of this Agreement.

3. Term, Termination, Default.

a. Term. This Agreement shall begin on the Effective Date and shall continue for a period of one (1) year ("Initial Term") unless earlier terminated pursuant to the provisions of this Agreement. This Agreement shall automatically renew for subsequent thirty (30) day renewal terms (each a "Renewal Term(s)") unless either Party terminates by providing written notice of its intention not to renew at least thirty (30) days prior to the renewal date. Collectively, the Initial Term and Renewal Term(s) are referred to as the "Term.

b. Termination for Event of Default. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, except as otherwise provided in this Agreement, a defaulting Party shall have thirty (30) days after written notice of an occurrence of Event of Default is given by the non-defaulting Party to cure such Event of Default. If such Event of Default has not been cured upon expiration of such period to the reasonable satisfaction of the non-defaulting Party, then the non-defaulting Party may terminate this Agreement effective immediately. However, in the event of ImpactNV's breach of its confidentiality obligations herein, Caesars may terminate this Agreement immediately without written notice and an opportunity to cure.

c. Termination for Licensing/Suitability. Caesars may terminate this Agreement as provided for in the Suitability section.

d. Termination for Convenience. In addition to all other rights of termination set forth in this Agreement, Caesars may terminate this Agreement, for any reason on thirty (30) days' prior written notice, without further liability to ImpactNV, provided, however, that Caesars shall pay for Products and/or Services provided hereunder up to the date of termination, subject to the terms of this Agreement.

4. Intellectual Property; Filming and Photography.

a. No Use of Caesars Marks. Unless otherwise set forth in this Agreement, ImpactNV has no right to, or interest in, the name "Caesars" or any registered or unregistered service mark or trademark of Caesars or its affiliates, and ImpactNV shall not, in any manner, use such names or marks, in the promotion of ImpactNV's business.

b. Use of Marks. Subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement, each Party hereby grants to the other Party the revocable, non-exclusive permission to use such Party's name, logo(s), trademark(s), service-mark(s), and trade name(s) (collectively, the "Marks"), during the Term, solely in connection with the other Party's fulfillment of its obligations under this Agreement, provided that all uses of the licensing Party's Marks have been pre-approved in writing by the licensing Party and otherwise comply with the terms of this Agreement.

c. Filming and Photography. Any professional filming and/or photography on Caesars' properties and/or containing Caesars' Marks shall be subject to prior review and approval of Caesars, and shall be subject to execution of a separate media site license agreement ("Site License Agreement") between the Parties, or between Caesars and the third-party company performing the filming and/or photography. No such filming or photography by ImpactNV or any third-party company hired by ImpactNV can occur until a separate Site License Agreement is executed.

5. Confidentiality.

a. Treatment of Confidential Information. In connection with this Agreement, each Party acknowledges that it shall have access to Confidential Information of the other Party. The receiving Party shall only use Confidential Information in furtherance of its performance under this Agreement. The receiving Party shall treat all information and materials it receives from the disclosing Party as Confidential Information. The receiving Party shall not use or disclose the Confidential Information except on a "need to know basis" and only for purposes specifically authorized herein, and then only to: (i) its employees or officers, provided, however that each such employee or officer has entered into a confidentiality agreement, that is enforceable under the laws of each applicable jurisdiction, with terms no less restrictive than the terms hereof; (ii) affiliates of receiving Party only if approved by the disclosing Party and provided that such affiliates shall be restricted in use and re-disclosure of Confidential Information to the same extent as the receiving Party under binding obligations of confidentiality no less restrictive than the terms hereof; or (iii) to subcontractors, independent contractors, agents and consultants hired or engaged by the disclosing Party, only if approved by the disclosing Party and provided further that subcontractors and each of their employees and officers have entered into a confidentiality agreement that is enforceable under the laws of each applicable jurisdiction, with terms no less restrictive than the terms hereof. The receiving Party shall use its best efforts to inform its employees and independent contractors of their obligations hereunder and further to monitor their compliance herewith. Any improper use or disclosure of Confidential Information shall be treated as a material breach by the receiving Party.

b. Parties' Rights in Confidential Information. Each Party shall retain all rights, title and interest in and to its Confidential Information. Nothing herein shall be construed as a grant by one Party to the other Party of any rights in and to a Party's Confidential Information. Any use, disclosure, reproduction, or transfer of all or part of Confidential Information, or copies or compilations thereof, except in accordance with these provisions is strictly prohibited.

c. Compelled Disclosure. In the event the receiving Party is legally compelled (by deposition, interrogatory, request for documents, subpoena, civil investigative demand or other legal process) to disclose any Confidential Information of the disclosing Party, then the receiving Party shall provide the disclosing Party with prompt prior written notice so that disclosing Party may seek a protective order or other appropriate remedy, and the receiving Party shall reasonably cooperate with the disclosing Party's efforts to obtain such relief at no cost to the receiving Party.

d. Violation. If the receiving Party becomes aware of any actual, threatened or impending act by any person or entity that is or might be in violation of any of the restrictions herein with respect to use, disclosure, or copying of Confidential Information, then receiving Party shall notify the disclosing Party immediately and shall work with the disclosing Party to remedy the situation. This provision shall not limit any other remedy (including injunctive relief without the need to post a bond) that may be available to disclosing Party herein at law or in equity.

e. Injunctive Relief. The Parties acknowledge that disclosure of any Confidential Information by the receiving Party may give rise to irreparable injury to the disclosing Party or the owner of such information and, as a matter of law, such injury is inadequately compensable in damages. Accordingly, the disclosing Party or such other party may seek injunctive relief without the need to post a bond against the breach or threatened breach of confidentiality, in addition to any other legal and equitable remedies which may be available.

f. Return of Confidential Information. At any time upon the request of disclosing Party, receiving Party shall return all of disclosing Party's Confidential Information (and all copies and derivative works thereof), and/or shall delete or erase such Confidential Information and copies and derivative works thereof from the computer systems in the possession or control of the receiving Party or any third party acquiring the Confidential Information from such Receiving party, provided, however, that to the extent the receiving Party's or third party's computer back-up or archiving procedures create copies of the Confidential Information, receiving Party may retain such copies on a strictly Confidential basis for so long as such copies are not readily accessible and are not used or consulted with for any other purposes, which copies shall remain subject to this Agreement until destroyed or no longer deemed Confidential Information. Disclosing Party shall have the right to require receiving Party to verify, to disclosing Party's reasonable satisfaction, that all Confidential Information has been returned, deleted, or otherwise protected from use or disclosure under the terms of this Agreement.

g. Confidentiality of Agreement. Receiving Party shall not release any information relating to this Agreement or its subject matter for publication, advertising or any other purpose without the prior written consent of disclosing Party.

h. Trade Secrets. Under the federal Defend Trade Secrets Act of 2016, a Party shall not be held criminally or civilly liable under any federal or state trade secret law for the disclosure of a trade secret that: (i) is made (A) in confidence to a federal, state, or local government official, either directly or indirectly, or to an attorney, and (B) solely for the purpose of reporting or investigating a suspected violation of law; or (ii) is made to such Party's attorney in relation to a lawsuit for retaliation against such Party for reporting a suspected violation of law; or (iii) is made in a complaint or other document filed in a lawsuit or other proceeding, if such filing is made under seal.

6. Representations and Warranties. Each Party makes the following representations and warranties, as applicable, each of which shall be true and correct on the Effective Date and at all relevant times thereafter during the Term:

a. General. (i) the signatory has requisite power and authority to sign this Agreement and bind its respective organization hereto; (ii) this Agreement constitutes a valid, legal and binding agreement of the Party, enforceable against such Party in accordance with its terms, except as such enforceability may be limited by bankruptcy, insolvency and other laws affecting creditors' rights generally; (iii) the execution, delivery, and performance of this Agreement does not and will not conflict with or violate any agreements between such Party and any other party; (iv) neither Party or its respective officers, employees or agents has solicited or received from the other Party any sum, gift or gratuity or other thing of value as an inducement to securing or maintaining the performances hereunder.

b. Licenses and Permits. ImpactNV shall at its sole cost and expense, obtain and maintain in good standing at all times during the Term, and upon request submit to Caesars or an affiliate copies of, all applicable licenses and permits (the "Licenses and Permits") required for ImpactNV to operate legally under the terms and conditions of this Agreement. ImpactNV, upon request shall submit to Caesars, or an affiliate, copies of all such Licenses and Permits.

c. Taxes. Each Party shall be solely responsible for the collection and/or remission to the appropriate governmental entities of all taxes and assessments applicable to such party under this Agreement.

d. ImpactNV Employees. ImpactNV shall, at all times, be responsible for the actions of its employees and representatives in connection with its obligations under this Agreement. If applicable, ImpactNV may enter Caesars' property only during hours designated by Caesars. ImpactNV shall ensure that its employees and representatives (i) do not obstruct or interfere with the freedom or pleasure of guests or employees of Caesars and/or its affiliates, (ii) comply with all applicable laws while present on Caesars' property, including applicable workplace safety and health standards and regulations, (iii) comply with any verbal and/or other instructions communicated to ImpactNV while onsite, and (iv) ImpactNV employees shall be at least twenty-one (21) years of age if performing duties or engaging in activities in areas of Caesars' property prohibited by law. Caesars may exclude any employee or other representative of ImpactNV from the property of Caesars for any reason at any time, in its sole discretion. ImpactNV shall be responsible for commercially reasonable and customary background screening of any employees with responsibilities related to ImpactNV's performance hereunder, including those employees or representatives with access to the property or Caesars' Confidential Information. ImpactNV shall assist and cooperate to Caesars' satisfaction with any criminal investigation or investigation by a regulatory agency or internal investigation by Caesars security involving any of ImpactNV's employees or representatives.

e. Services Warranty. In performing the Services, ImpactNV shall act consistent with that degree of care and skill exercised by members of the same profession currently practicing under the same or similar circumstances and standards of care. Caesars reserves its right to pursue ImpactNV for all appropriate remedies and damages incurred by Caesars arising out of ImpactNV's failure to perform the Services pursuant to the applicable standards of care defined herein and in the industry.

7. No Exclusivity. Nothing in this Agreement grants ImpactNV the exclusive right or privilege to supply Caesars with Services which are the same as or similar to the products and/or services purchased hereunder, as applicable, nor prohibits Caesars from engaging with a third party to purchase such third party's services which are the same as or similar to the ImpactNV's Services.

8. Indemnification.

a. By ImpactNV. ImpactNV shall defend at its expense, indemnify, and hold harmless, Caesars, and its parents, subsidiaries, affiliated entities, and each of their respective officers, directors, executives, employees, agents, insurers, managers, partners, principals, licensees, and representatives, from and against all claims, including, fines, penalties, interest, damages, expenses, awards, costs, demands, liability, attorney's fees, court costs, costs of appeal, and expert witness fees (collectively, "Claims") that result from or in any way related to: (i) ImpactNV's breach of this Agreement or willful misconduct; (ii) death or injury arising out of ImpactNV's negligent acts or omissions; (iii) damage to tangible personal property arising out of ImpactNV's negligent acts or omissions; (iv) alleged infringement of patent, copyright, trademark, trade secret or other intellectual property rights; (v) any claim by any individual retained by ImpactNV related to allegations concerning unpaid wages or any other amounts or benefits owed to or on behalf of any said individual; (vi) the failure of ImpactNV to comply with the laws, rules, regulations, ordinances, statutes, codes and orders of any governmental or quasi-governmental or regulatory or administrative authority.

b. By Caesars. Caesars shall defend at its expense, indemnify, and hold harmless, ImpactNV, and its parents, subsidiaries, affiliated entities, and each of their respective officers, directors, executives, employees, agents, insurers, managers, partners, principals, licensees, and representatives, from and against all Claims that result from or in any way related to: (i) Caesars' breach of this Agreement or willful misconduct; (ii) death or injury arising out of Caesars' negligent acts or omissions; (iii) damage to tangible personal property arising out of Caesars' negligent acts or omissions; (iv) alleged infringement of patent, copyright, trademark, trade secret or other intellectual property rights; (v) any claim by any individual retained by Caesars related to allegations concerning unpaid wages or any other amounts or benefits owed to or on behalf of any said individual; or (vi) the failure of Caesars to comply with the laws, rules, regulations, ordinances, statutes, codes and orders of any governmental or quasi-governmental or regulatory or administrative authority.

c. Procedure. Each Party's indemnification obligations under this section are conditioned upon the indemnified Party: (i) promptly notifying the indemnifying Party of any claim in writing, no later than thirty (30) days after actual knowledge of the claim; and (ii) cooperating with the indemnifying Party in the defense of the claim. The failure to give prompt written notice shall not, however, relieve the indemnifying Party of its indemnification obligations, except and only to the extent that the indemnifying Party forfeits rights or defenses by reason of such failure. Such notice by the indemnified Party shall describe the claim in reasonable detail, shall include copies of all material written evidence thereof, and shall indicate the estimated amount, if reasonably practicable, of the loss that has been or may be sustained by the indemnified party. In the event that a claim is brought, the indemnifying Party shall have the right and option to control the defense of such claim with counsel of its choice, provided however that the indemnified Party at its own expense may participate and appear on an equal footing with the indemnifying Party in the defense of any such claims. ImpactNV shall not consent to judgment or concede or settle or compromise any claim without the prior written approval of Caesars, which approval shall not be unreasonably withheld.

9. Limitation of Liability. Except for a Party's willful misconduct, gross negligence, a Party's confidentiality obligations herein, and/or its indemnity obligations set forth herein, to which no limitation of liability or cap on damages shall apply, in no event shall either Party be liable for any indirect, special, incidental, consequential, or punitive damages, even if such Party has been advised of the likelihood of the occurrence of such damages or such damages are foreseeable.

10. Insurance. ImpactNV shall maintain the insurance set forth in the Insurance Requirements exhibit at all times during the Term and as specified therein.

11. Compliance with Laws. The Parties agree to abide by all federal, state or local laws, regulations, ordinances, or other legal requirements in connection with the performance of their respective obligations under this Agreement.

12. Suitability or Licensure by Gaming Regulatory Agency. As a holder of privileged gaming licenses, Caesars and its affiliates are required to adhere to strict laws and regulations regarding vendor and other business relationships or associations. If at any time Caesars determines, in its sole discretion, that its association with ImpactNV could violate any statutes and/or regulations regarding prohibited relationships with gaming companies, or if Caesars determines, in its sole discretion, that it would be in its best interest to terminate its relationship with ImpactNV in order to protect any proposed or pending licensing applications or any of its privileged gaming licenses, Caesars may immediately terminate this Agreement. ImpactNV agrees to cooperate with Caesars, if requested, to undergo a background investigation to comply with Caesars compliance policies and to continue to cooperate with Caesars throughout the term of this Agreement to establish and maintain ImpactNV suitability. During the term of this Agreement, to the extent that any prior disclosure becomes inaccurate, including the initiation of any criminal proceeding or any civil or administrative proceeding or process which alleges any violations of law, involving ImpactNV or any of ImpactNV's owners or key principals, ImpactNV shall disclose the information to Caesars within ten (10) calendar days from that event. ImpactNV agrees to comply with any background investigation conducted in connection with the disclosure of this updated information. Under this paragraph, for privately held companies, "owner" means any holder of an interest in ImpactNV, and for publicly-traded entities means any holder of a 5% or greater interest unless that interest meets the definition of an institutional investor as that term is defined in the gaming laws of Nevada. If ImpactNV is or becomes required to be licensed by any federal, state, and/or local gaming regulatory agency, ImpactNV shall secure said licensing at its sole cost and expense, or if it fails to become so licensed, or, once licensed, fails to maintain such license or fails to continue to be suitable by the governmental licensing agency, Caesars may immediately terminate this Agreement. Notwithstanding any other terms of this Agreement, in the event of termination of this Agreement pursuant to this Section, Caesars shall have no further liability to ImpactNV, except for any obligations pursuant to any work performed prior to the date that such termination becomes effective, unless otherwise prohibited by a gaming regulatory agency. ImpactNV agrees to comply with all federal, state, local, provincial or other laws or regulations applicable to countries outside of the United States, including laws and regulations governing anti-corruption, anti-bribery, foreign corrupt practices, and anti-money laundering laws and regulations applicable to its business. Failure to do so could result in termination of this Agreement pursuant to this paragraph.

13. Subcontracts Require Consent. ImpactNV shall not be permitted to subcontract any of its rights or obligations hereunder without the prior written consent of Caesars, which may be withheld in Caesars' sole and absolute discretion. Use of subcontractors or contractors in violation of this provision constitutes an Event of Default. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, in the event that any of ImpactNV's obligations are subcontracted, with or without Caesars' written consent or knowledge, ImpactNV shall retain the entire responsibility for the obligations subcontracted as well as for subcontractor's compliance with this Agreement and the gaming regulations in any jurisdiction in which the subcontractor may perform such obligations. ImpactNV understands, acknowledges and agrees that its use of subcontractors shall not in any way alter its obligations, representations and warranties made herein. ImpactNV shall notify Caesars in writing of any portion of the work to be performed by subcontractors and shall be fully responsible for all acts and omissions of its subcontractors. Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to create any contractual relationship between Caesars and any subcontractor, nor any obligation on the part of Caesars, to pay or to ensure the payment of any money due any subcontractor. Any subcontractor engaged by ImpactNV to provide products and/or services under this Agreement must agree to be bound by confidentiality provisions as restrictive as those set forth in this Agreement.

14. Notice. Any and all notices or demands provided for, permitted or required to be given in connection with this Agreement shall be in writing and be conclusively deemed to have been given if (a) personally delivered to the Party entitled to receive the same; or (b) within five (5) days after depositing it in a United States mailbox either by certified or registered mail, postage prepaid, in a sealed envelope addressed to the name and address of the Party entitled to receive the same; or (c) one (1) day if sent by first class overnight, nationally recognized delivery or courier service, prepaid in a sealed envelope or package addressed to the name and address of the Party entitled to receive the same. Any notice to ImpactNV shall be sent to the address set forth in the preamble above, to the attention of: Lauren Boitel, Executive Director. Any notice to Caesars shall be sent to the address set forth in the preamble above, to the attention of: Gwen Migita, VP of Social Impact & Inclusion and Chief Sustainability Officer. A copy of any notice shall also be sent to Caesars Enterprise Services, LLC, Attention: General Counsel, Law Department, One Caesars Palace Drive, Las Vegas, Nevada 89109, but shall not constitute notice hereunder. The address for notice set forth herein may be changed at any time by giving ten (10) days' prior written notice to the other Party in the manner described in this Section.

15. General Provisions.

    a. Governing Law, Jurisdiction, and Venue. This Agreement shall be governed by, construed in and enforced exclusively in accordance with the laws of the State of Nevada, without regard to its conflict of laws provisions or the residence of its parties. Any lawsuit to interpret or enforce the terms of this Agreement shall be brought exclusively in a court of competent jurisdiction in the State of Nevada. The Parties expressly consent to personal jurisdiction in Nevada for the purpose of resolving any dispute related to the making or interpretation of this Agreement.

    b. Attorneys' Fees. In the event either Party brings an action, suit or proceeding against the other to enforce or interpret this Agreement, or to defend an action brought by the other Party, the prevailing Party shall be reimbursed by the other Party for all actual fees and costs as may be incurred in such action, suit or proceeding (including any appeals) including actual attorneys' fees, court costs and expert witness fees.

    c. Relationship of the Parties: Independent Contractor Relationship. ImpactNV understands and agrees that it is engaged by Caesars as an independent contractor. At no time shall either Party represent itself as an agent, employee, lessee, sub-lessee, partner or joint venture partner of the other Party, and no employer-employee relationship shall exist between either Party and any employee or agent of the other Party. Neither Party hereto shall have the express or implied right or authority to assume or create any obligation on behalf or in the name of the other Party or to bind the other Party in regard to any contract, agreement or undertaking with any third party.

d. Amendments. This Agreement may not be modified, supplemented or changed except pursuant to in a written amendment, signed by a duly authorized representative of each Party.

e. Waiver. All waivers of performance of or adherence to the terms and conditions of this Agreement must be in writing and signed by the Party waiving the same. The failure of a Party to require the performance of any obligation herein, or the waiver by a Party of any breach hereof, shall not constitute a waiver of future performance or any subsequent breach.

f. Severability. If any provision in this Agreement is held to be invalid or unenforceable, such provision shall be amended to achieve as nearly as possible the objectives of, and the same economic effect as the original provision, and all other provisions shall remain in full force and effect.

g. Assignment. This Agreement shall be binding upon the Parties, and their respective successors and permitted assigns and shall inure to the benefit of the Parties and, except as otherwise provided herein, to their respective successors and permitted assigns. ImpactNV may not assign or encumber its interest in this Agreement without the prior written consent of Caesars. Caesars may freely assign, sublicense, transfer or delegate its duties under this Agreement, including (i) in connection with the sale of all or substantially all of its assets; (ii) to the surviving entity in any merger or consolidation; (iii) to any of its affiliates; or (iv) to satisfy a regulatory requirement imposed upon Caesars by a governmental body with appropriate authority. Any attempted assignment in violation of this provision is void.

h. Force Majeure. A Party's performance of its obligations hereunder shall be excused for any delay or failure resulting directly or indirectly from acts or conditions that are beyond the reasonable control of such Party, including any foreign or domestic embargo, product detention, seizure, act of God, fire, flood, storm, explosion, riot, strike, insurrection, continuance of war, or the passage or enactment of any law or ordinance, regulation, ruling or order (each a “Force Majeure Event”). Subject to the provisions herein, a Party’s performance of its obligations affected by Force Majeure Events will be suspended for the duration of such Force Majeure Event. If any Force Majeure Event prevents a Party’s performance for a period of thirty (30) days or more, either Party may terminate this Agreement without any further liability, except for any outstanding payments for obligations fulfilled by Party that are outstanding prior to the date of termination.

i. Survival. Any of the provisions in this Agreement which by their nature extend beyond the termination or expiration of this Agreement shall remain in effect until fulfilled and apply to both Parties’ successors and assigns.

j. Counterparts and Admissibility of Electronic Copies. This Agreement may be executed in multiple counterparts, which together shall constitute a complete document. Unless otherwise prohibited by any applicable laws or regulations, this Agreement may be signed electronically, and such electronic signature shall be deemed, and shall have the same legal force and effect as, an original signature. An electronic copy thereof shall be deemed, and shall have the same legal force and effect as, an original document.

k. Headings. Section and paragraph headings and document titles and below are not to be considered part of this Agreement and are included solely for convenience and shall not be held to define, construe, govern or limit the meaning of any term or provision of this Agreement.

l. Interpretation. This Agreement is to be deemed to have been prepared jointly by the Parties hereto, and if any inconsistency or ambiguity exists herein, it shall not be interpreted against either Party, but according to the application of rules of the interpretation of contracts. Each Party has had the availability of legal counsel with respect to its execution of this Agreement, and the Parties agree neither of them shall be deemed drafter of this Agreement.

m. Conflicts. In the event of a conflict between any of the provisions in the body of this Agreement or any of its exhibits, or the attachments or addendum thereto or hereto, or other provisions of this Agreement, if any, then except as expressly stated here in this Agreement, the provisions in this main body of this Agreement shall control.

n. Terms and Usage Generally. In this Agreement, except to the extent otherwise provided or the context otherwise requires: (i) when a reference is made in this Agreement to an Article, Section, Exhibit or Schedule, such reference is to an Article or Section of, or an Exhibit or Schedule to, this Agreement unless otherwise indicated; (ii) whenever the words "include," "includes" or "including" are used in this Agreement, they are deemed to be followed by the words "without being limited to"; (iii) the words "hereof," "herein" and "hereunder" and words of similar import, when used in this Agreement, refer to this Agreement as a whole and not to any particular provision of this Agreement; (iv) all terms defined in this Agreement have the defined meanings when used in any other document made or delivered pursuant hereto, unless otherwise defined therein; (v) references to the plural include the singular, to the singular include the plural, and to the part include the whole, and the definitions contained in this Agreement are applicable to the singular as well as the plural forms of such terms; (vi) use of masculine, feminine and neutral pronouns will not be a specific reference to either gender or lack thereof; (vii) any reference to "days" means "calendar days" unless otherwise specified; (viii) any reference to "$" and "dollars" is to the lawful money of the United States of America; and (ix) unless otherwise expressly provided herein, with respect to any consent or approval right herein, such consent or approval shall not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed.

o. Entire Agreement. This Agreement, including all exhibits and appendices attached hereto, as well as any applicable statements of work and/or orders, embodies the entire agreement and understanding of the Parties, and as of the Effective Date supersedes all prior written or oral agreements or contemporaneous discussions, negotiations, correspondence or other understandings between the Parties, relating to the subject matter hereof. The Parties agree that no Party has made any representation with respect to the subject matter herein or any representation, including the extension and delivery hereof, except such representations as are specifically set forth herein, and each of the Parties acknowledges that it has relied on its own judgment and upon the facts within its knowledge in entering into this Agreement. No verbal agreement or implied covenant shall be held to vary the provisions hereof, any statements, law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

Exhibit A

SCOPE OF SERVICES EXHIBIT

A. ImpactNV's Services. As consideration for all of the undertakings and services of Caesars, subject to Caesars' fulfillment of all covenants, terms, conditions, representations and warranties contained herein, including payment of the Seed Capital, ImpactNV shall provide the following to Caesars:

1. Perform all duties and provide all deliverables outlined in the Caesars Fund Governance Objectives for a Social Equity Impact Initiative, attached hereto as Attachment A-1.

2. Manage the Fund in accordance with the objectives and Focus Areas described in Attachment A-2.

B. Caesars' Obligations. As consideration for all of the undertakings and services of ImpactNV, subject to ImpactNV's fulfillment of all covenants, terms, conditions, representations and warranties contained herein, Caesars shall provide the following to ImpactNV:

1. Make a one-time, non-refundable payment of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00) to ImpactNV to serve as seed capital for the planning and budgeting of the Fund ("Seed Capital").

2. Provide reasonable assistance to ImpactNV in launching the Fund to address future work in the Focus Areas.

3. Make commercially reasonable efforts to provide continued financial support to ImpactNV and the Fund in the form of revenues derived from entertainment events at Caesars' affiliated properties (subject to separate agreements between those Caesars affiliates, ImpactNV and third-party producers), vendor social impact revenues, retail and other sources identified in Attachment A-2.

XXXX XX, 2018

Caesars, as a condition of its support to ImpactNV, use the resources of unrelated third party consultant, Point B, Inc., to help ImpactNV create a business plan in connection with the Fund ("Business Plan") that will address the following:

1. Fund Management Roles and Functions:
   - Management and Oversight of the Fund: Green Chips d/b/a ImpactNV shall be the designated managing entity for the Fund. ImpactNV shall have authority to hire professional Fund investment managers as needed to execute the business plan.
   - Board of Directors: ImpactNV will appoint a 5-person Board of Directors (all fiduciaries of ImpactNV) who shall be permitted to have authority to manage the Fund as a division of ImpactNV (the "Fund Board"). The Fund Board shall make all final loan, grant and investment decisions and purpose of the Fund Board will be to review, conduct diligence, report on, value and distribute funds.
   - Manager: The ImpactNV Executive Director is appointed as "Manager" of the Fund and shall serve on the Fund Board as a voting member
   - Performance Management Responsibilities: ImpactNV shall recruit and administer the Fund by recruiting experienced policy-oriented Fund Board members and advisors as advisors and reviewers of Focus Area grants, loans and investments.
   - Compliance & Audit Chair/Committee: The Fund Board or the Finance Committee or Investment Committee (or other subgroup/committee of the Fund Board as established in the future) shall transparently report and account for its loans, grants and investments and shall be audited by an independent CPA firm which shall insure appropriate oversight and best practice management.

2. Caesars' Expectations Regarding Management of Fund:
   - ImpactNV shall prioritize investments, loans and grants for Requests for Proposals, based on regional assessments, impacts and disparity studies.
   - ImpactNV shall seek investments, loans and grants wherein its Fund capital is being leveraged in a collaborative way with other organizations, via shared services and shared funding of two or more existing service providers who will be incented. That is, collaboration and consolidation of existing non-profits, non-governmental organizations, and service providers will be encouraged through investments.
   - The awarding, review, monitoring and performance management of investments will be transparent to encourage critical feedback, honest collaboration, and visibility of Fund use and impacts.
   - Investment will focus on implementation strategy approaches which are multi-sector and multi-issue regional Systems Based Needs Assessment.
   - This is venture philanthropy – some of the funding will be philanthropic but performance measures will be expected on outcomes and impacts to the Focus Areas
   - The Fund may be a vehicle to raise money for more philanthropy. Decision making for funding should be a collective impact model which is disruptive and transformative to the system.
   - Some monies may be invested as "impact fund" with expected return on investment. Others are for consultative.
   - These are high level issues with ambitious goals. Policy and regulatory changes, with consciousness raising efforts, are expected.
   - Impacts tax structure may not be conducive to these efforts. In 2020, a 501c4/ lobbying arm may need to be considered to advance efforts in the state
   - In the long-term, national and global issues of interest to social sustainability are expected to appeal to funders/ contributors outside of Southern Nevada.

3. Unrestricted Funding:
   - One (1) Caesars executive shall be permitted to serve as an observer of the Fund ("Observer") and shall be permitted appropriate rights ("Information Rights") to attend all Fund Board meetings, Finance Committee meetings and Investment Committee meetings and review all Fund Board or committee decisions to make loans, grants or investments. The Observer shall also serve as a non-voting member of the Fund Board's Finance Committee ("Finance Committee"). Other public, private, non-profit experts, and service providers shall be permitted by the Fund Board to advise the Finance Committee.
   - Other Caesars executives, outside of the reporting structure of the Finance Committee, shall be permitted to review and provide input on the Fund's performance management and outcomes to the review committee.
   - Management of the Fund shall be subject to best practice standards in the investment community for equity investments (valuation, deal structuring, syndication, exit management), and may be informed by Charity Navigator, Guidestar ratings, and independent auditors. Fund management reports to be included in annual reporting and made public.
   - The Fund Board, while a division of ImpactNV, shall have delegated to it, authority to manage the Fund, report on results, make loan, grant and investment decisions, and commit resources in the Focus Areas based on the capital made available to it through the support of Caesars and other donors and shall be permitted to manage the Fund and operate independently within the authority granted to it by the ImpactNV Board of Directors.

4. Distribution of funds and investment:
   - ImpactNV to serve as managing entity for oversight of Fund distribution and investment.
   - A best practice approach is recommended to allow for fund flexibility with oversight on use of funds for outcomes on social issues identified.

5. Oversight:
   - An audit and compliance officer, separate from the Executive Director of ImpactNV (who shall serve as the head of the Fund), should be appointed to establish clear control processes and auditing.

6. Transparency & Disclosures:
   - Quarterly communications to funders & stakeholders.
   - Annual 990 filing.
   - Annual disclosures following best practice standards on Impact Funds, Guidestar, etc.
   - Publicly disclosed performance metrics.

ImpactNV Social Equity Impact Fund Business Plan

Overview:

Caesars Enterprise Services, LLC ("Caesars") is committed to support the funding for, and initiation of a Social Equity Impact Fund as part of its community reinvestment strategy for the southern Nevada market. The establishment of the Social Equity Impact Fund ("Fund") is intended to reflect the Caesars' position as a thought leader in social sustainability practices by addressing and meeting the emergent and long-term needs of the most vulnerable residents in the region with emphasis on homelessness (housing insecurity), sex-trafficking, and immigrant integration ("Focus Areas").

The Situation:

Southern Nevada is currently facing a social sustainability crisis:

- Nevada has the 3rd highest rate of unsheltered individuals in the nation.
- The 2018 Southern Nevada Homeless Census counted 6,083 people living in shelters and on local streets thus year. Just under 2/3 of those are living without shelter.
- 300+ families with children are homeless in Nevada every night.
- The Clark County School District has identified more than 14,500 homeless students including those who are living doubled up with other families in a single home or in weekly hotels.
- According to LVMPD, Southern Nevada is "ground zero for sex trafficking."
- Nevada ranks 2nd for highest number of sex trafficking cases per 100,000 residents in the country, more than twice the national average.
- The Nevada Coalition to Prevent the Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children's 2017 annual report estimates there could be as many as 5,687 victims of child sex trafficking in Nevada.
- Nevada is a major destination for those who seek to sexually exploit children.
- ADD naturalization/immigrant health numbers

The Goals:

The Fund will address priority long-term intersectional issues of: homelessness, sex-trafficking and immigrant integration. These are systemic challenges which align with the nonprofit objectives of ImpactNV and will benefit Caesars' headquarters and its host region in Southern Nevada by:

- Positioning the local community as vibrant and sustainable;
- Reinforcing Southern Nevada as a region which attracts, offers, and retains top talent;
- Contributing to a competitive visitor industry; and
- Helping to address the downside of tourism and wealth coming into the region in the Focus Areas over the last few decades.

Cross-sector efforts began in 2017 between the Caesars, ImpactNV, and key community public sector and NGO partners to implement a systems approach to prioritizing long-term (10 to 20 year) goals and identifying solutions to these critical needs of our region. This cross-sector engagement created alignment around three ambitious regional targets, including:

1. Homelessness (housing insecurity): 50% reduction in youth (18-24-year-old) homelessness
2. Sex-trafficking: 0% youth incarceration rate for trafficked victims
3. Immigrant Integration: 30% reduction in health indicators of immigrant communities by 2022.

References: The above are working goals proposed via Social Sustainability Master Plan workshops with City of Las Vegas and anchor service providers, Social Equity Impact Fund overview and customer activation.

The Approach:

Establishment of the Fund will accelerate efforts to advance progress toward the regional targets through catalytic investments that create leverage points within and across the system of public, private, and nonprofit stakeholders.

Caesars will provide in kind and direct financial support to initiate the Fund. The Fund will be managed by a separate fiduciary and non-conflicted entity, ImpactNV, a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, that will govern a social impact model consisting of contracts, grants/ donations, direct investments and loans to community partners who would be chosen for their expertise and their ability to demonstrate progress against our strategic objectives in our communities. These partners would be responsible for delivering specific support as part of an overall solution to the issues above.

As such, the Fund will be established in late 2018 with activation in 2019 as an effort to address social sustainability goals in Southern Nevada in the following, interrelated and intersectional, priority issue areas: (1) human trafficking, (2) homelessness (housing insecurity), and (3) immigration integration.

Success Metrics (i.e., 12 to 18-Month Objectives):

- Annual and 3 to 5-year targets established and regional roadmap completed on Fund outcomes toward achieving the social sustainability goals for Southern Nevada.
- Impact Fund Reporting model established and actively reporting to funders, opinion leaders, policy makers, community leaders, and other stakeholders.
- Completion of 90 percent of planned activities, and success story “quick wins” within the first 6 months to one-year – with visible outcomes.
- At least one fund recipient, funder, client and/ or service provider provides a letter of satisfaction.

Impact Goals (i.e., 3 to 5 year+ Goals):

- TBD – Percent improvement against long-term goals in sex-trafficking, immigrant health, and homelessness.
- TBD – Improving long-term economic and social trends in quality of life perception metrics of the region, business investment, and economic diversity index scores, population transience metrics, and regional competitiveness.
- TBD – Positive movement against other intersectional areas of need in the community such as: education, mental health, affordable housing, healthcare, etc.

Launch and Timeline:

- January 2019: Public announcement
- January 2019: Ticket sales for celebrity event
- May 2019: Customer Activation
- Ongoing post-May 2019: Management and funding efforts

CONFIDENTIAL – DO NOT DISTRIBUTE

Why do we need help?

The most pressing social equity issues in the region, particularly human-trafficking, homelessness, and immigrant integration, lack a collective action model to accelerate and catalyze systems change.

Human-Trafficking

$290+ million is needed to provide baseline minimum level of care for victims of under-25 sex-trafficking in Nevada for one full year.[1]

Homelessness

$44+ million is needed to provide last resort emergency shelters for every known unsheltered youth in Nevada for one full year.[2] This assumes enough shelters to house the homeless population actually exist…

Immigrant Integration

Between $420 million and $1.25 billion is needed annually to provide health insurance coverage alone for uninsured immigrant populations in Nevada.[3]

Priority Gap

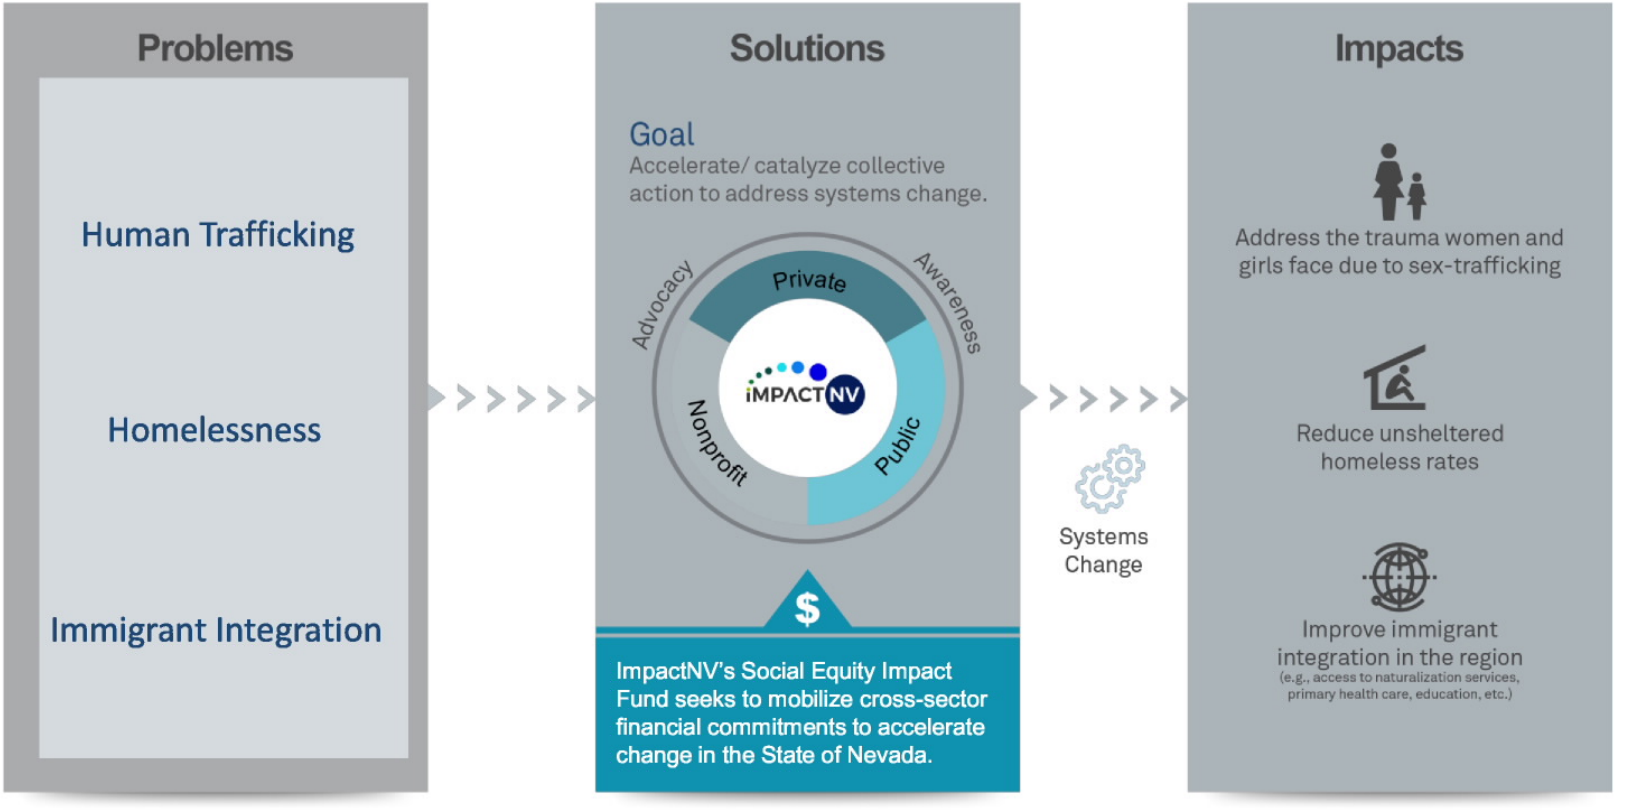
These issues are too complex for traditional funding mechanisms to address at scale.

[1] 5,687 known victims x $51k minimum care cost per individual
[2] 6,083 known homeless individuals x 365 nights x $20 cost of shelter per night
[3] Estimated 124,542 uninsured immigrants x range of insurance cost ($3,348 to $10,044)

CONFIDENTIAL – DO NOT DISTRIBUTE

What is the proposed solution?

A collaborative systems approach – combined with new and innovative funding models – can accelerate the deployment of solutions that benefit the most vulnerable populations in the State of Nevada.



CONFIDENTIAL – DO NOT DISTRIBUTE

Where do we start?

Human-Trafficking, Homelessness, and Immigration Integration represent systemic challenges: initially, the Fund will prioritize investments that support women and girls affected by trauma associated with sex-trafficking in Nevada.

Mission

To accelerate the deployment of solutions that support vulnerable populations and ultimately bring equity to Nevada.

CONFIDENTIAL – DO NOT DISTRIBUTE

Vision

A world where every person has an equal opportunity to live a fulfilling life*.

* We define a fulfilling life as one that includes access to education, livable wage employment, healthcare, safety, and community connection.

Beliefs

- We can help solve society's most pressing social issues through awareness, advocacy and investments that serve as a catalyst for long-lasting results.
- We have a collective responsibility to create a safety net where every person is connected to each other and the greater whole; everyone is seen; everyone is heard; and everyone has access to a fulfilling life.
- Trauma, shelter insecurity, and lack of community integration can threaten a person's access to a fulfilling life.
- The Fund's greatest near-term opportunity is to provide financial support for efforts to improve the lives of women and children.
- Women and children are uniquely vulnerable; protecting, supporting, and empowering them is a priority of this fund.

Dr. Halleh Seddighzadeh
Traumatologist, ARMAN

Dr. Halleh Seddighzadeh is an international counter-trafficking advisor and Traumatologist specializing in the psychological treatment of torture, complex traumatic stress and dissociative conditions, specifically in survivors of human trafficking, radicalized youth, war refugees, genocide, gender based violence, terrorism and most recently survivors of cults and spiritual abuse. She has worked in refugee settings and crisis affected communities with child and adult survivors of trafficking and torture in the Middle East. She frequently provides consultation and training to law enforcement agencies, service providers, faith-based organization, prosecutors, investigators, medical practitioners and the business sector internationally and domestically on trauma-sensitive best practices.

ARMAN is a multidisciplinary mental health organization supported by a network of international trauma experts, subject matter experts, medical and academic researchers and practitioners who have extensive experience treating and working with individuals who have suffered the most extreme forms of torture and trauma around the world. It is from these experiences that ARMAN's culturally adept, multicultural values and holistic approach to healing are founded.

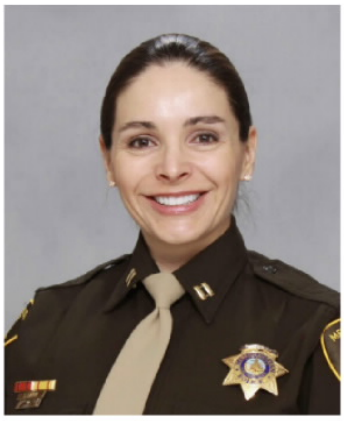
BIO
Elaina Mule

Elaina Mule' is the Senior Manager of Community Development at Charles Schwab Bank. In her role she helps plan the Bank's community priority areas, develops strategies to maximize impact in each area, helps measure the Bank's community impact, and collaborates with multi-sector partners to meet community goals. She focuses on the integration of human centered program design, client feedback/customer voice, data/research, and innovative technology to improve decision making about social services and their funding.

Elaina has a B.S. in Industrial and Labor Relations from Cornell University, an M.S. in International & Comparative Labor and Labor Economics from Cornell University, and was a visiting student in an M.A. program in International Public Policy at Central European University. She is a graduate of Leadership Las Vegas class of 2017 and a current member of the Jameson Fellows 2018 cohort. Elaina is certified in human centered design, six sigma, evaluation for grant makers, and facilitation.

Elaina started with the United Way of Southern Nevada in January 2016 as the Vice President of Collective Impact and Social Innovation. In that role she developed and managed UWSN's strategies related to community impact, in particular, using data and inclusive approaches to define community work, measure impact, and scale what works through strategic partnerships. She collaborated with community partners and actively engaged the community to create measurable results. Her projects aimed to mobilize the community to make effective collective decisions through the use of information, research and data, and innovative technology and tools. Previously, she was at the United Way of Buffalo and Erie County as the Director of Research and Public Policy.

SASHA LARKIN, CAPTAIN
NORTHWEST AREA COMMAND
LAS VEGAS METROPOLITAN POLICE DEPARTMENT



Sasha Larkin is a Captain with the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department, where she has served for nineteen years. She currently commands Northwest Area Command Station which encompass over 380,000 residents, 100 square miles and over 180 officers and civilian staff under her direction. She was originally promoted to Captain leading the Support Operations Bureau, which encompasses Vice, Special Events, Human Trafficking, and the Office of Community Engagement (which conducts all religious and cultural outreach, refugee education, gang prevention, and overt counter-terrorism activities), Homeless Liaison Section, Spanish interpreters, the Patrol Watch Commanders and Laughlin Area Command.

Recognized for her work in community engagement, Sasha was integral in building the Office of Community Engagement (OCE) and the Fusion Liaison Officer Program. These two offices have reached thousands of people from all cultural, religious, and minority communities that would have never otherwise had a voice with the police. She is also Chair of Women of Metro, an outreach organization that mentors woman internally for promotion in law enforcement, and hosts a variety of community events.

Sasha has served in a variety of assignments through her career giving her a well-rounded platform to lead from which includes: Patrol, Field Training, Vice, undercover in the Intelligence Unit, a bike officer on the iconic LV Strip, the Problem Solving Unit, as a Sergeant in the Southern Nevada Counter Terrorism Center, and Internal Affairs, as a Lieutenant in Gangs/Narcotics, and in the Office of Community Engagement.

Sasha teaches all over the world, to include the Naval Postgraduate School, Police Executive Research Forum and US State Department, for the LVMPD in the field of building programs that support the prevention of terrorism and crime, how to build bridges of trust with the community and prevent a sense of isolation, and ensure the police are integrated throughout the community they serve.

Sasha has been honored by numerous community organizations for her work in terrorism, law enforcement and community building efforts. In 2016 she was recognized by the Anti-defamation League as the recipient of the "Shield Award" for building one of the largest, most successful Terrorism Liaison Officer Programs in the country, along with one of the leading refugee integration programs nationwide. Sasha has also been honored by Girl Scouts of America and Top Cops in Washington D.C.

Sasha attended the University of New Mexico, majoring in Biological Anthropology and Criminal Justice, receiving her Bachelor's degree and currently working on entering a Master's degree program at the Naval Post Graduate School. In addition to serving on with the LVMPD, Sasha has been teaching yoga for twenty years and travels around the world to teach and train various yoga disciplines. Her most significant outside accomplishment is being the proud mother of a little boy and adorable twin girls, and wife to a spectacular husband.

RE: Proposal | Southern Nevada Sustainability Data Portal

Dear Ms. Boitel:

Pursuant to our recent discussion and your request, Applied Analysis ("AA") is pleased to submit this proposal to provide market research and strategic analysis services to ImpactNV ("the Organization"). This letter sets forth our understanding of your objectives, our approach to the engagement and the general conditions of our retention.

OUR UNDERSTANDING OF THE PROJECT AND OUR APPROACH TO THE ENGAGEMENT

We understand that Green Chips was founded in 2008 as a non-profit catalyst organization, dedicated to building community through collaborative partnerships for a more sustainable future. In 2017, Green Chips changed its name to ImpactNV, reflecting a similar mission, but a broader scope. The Organization focuses primarily on promoting sustainability in southern Nevada through leadership development, community outreach and awareness and targeted community projects. ImpactNV's core mission is to strengthen and accelerate the implementation of sustainable community initiatives through strategic collaborations and public-private partnerships. Through this broad-based collaboration, which includes the community's largest private-sector employers and leading public-sector agencies, ImpactNV is positioning southern Nevada both nationally and internationally as a leader and example of sustainable development and operations.

We further understand that communicating southern Nevada's successes from a community sustainability perspective is particularly important to ImpactNV. This does two things. First, it helps narrow the space between aspiration and accomplishment by highlighting what the community has done as opposed to what it needs to do. Second, it helps focus the community's collective attention on the long-term goal of improved community sustainability, which is a constantly evolving set of initiatives that requires broad-based support to achieve. Importantly, sustainability is neither ethereal nor out of reach, and southern Nevada has made great strides with several notable accomplishments in the area.

In 2015 and 2016, AA assisted ImpactNV (then Green Chips) in designing and developing the inaugural Southern Nevada State of Sustainability Report, a report designed specifically to highlight the Organization's eight pillars of a sustainable community (i.e., economy, health, nature, built environment, energy, community, social equity and transportation). In 2016 and 2017, AA worked with the Organization to develop version 2.0 of the Southern Nevada State of Sustainability Report and deliver the same at its Convene for Green conference. Version 2.0 extended the effort, adding several new metrics and highlighting industry leaders and their respective sustainable initiative accomplishments.

In 2018 and 2019, we understand that ImpactNV would like to rethink its approach to the sustainability report. In doing so, AA understands the organization desires to transform the Southern Nevada State of Sustainability Report into the Southern Nevada Sustainability Data Portal. This web-based portal would: (i) house data and exhibits traditionally reported in the sustainability report; (ii) be integrated into the ImpactNV web page (https://impact-nv.org/); (iii) would promote a recurring update of the underlying data, such that updates would not be limited to an issuance of a report, but rather, would be updated in real time as sustainability metrics are released; and (iv) would be designed to position ImpactNV as the source for sustainability information with internal and external stakeholders.

AA will essentially convert the Southern Nevada State of Sustainability Report into a website. In doing so, we will update the text content, charts and exhibits and develop web-based visualizations as well as standardized navigation. To do this, AA will first develop a wireframe for the site. This wireframe will be provided to the Organization for its review and approval. Once approved, AA will actively develop (program) the site, and we will work with ImpactNV's existing developers and web hosting company to integrate the data portal into the ImpactNV website.

Please note that there is a significant amount of content that ImpactNV produces for the current sustainability report. It is assumed herein the Organization will similarly produce this content and will submit the same to AA for integration into the site.

The data portal is expected to have both static and dynamic features. Dynamic features will be those tied to the data itself as well as selected data-oriented graphs and exhibits. Static features will include features about specific projects or people that are leaders in sustainability. Both parties agree that updates to static elements may occur from time to time but will need to be governed by reasonable time and resources limitations.

Finally, AA understands that ImpactNV would like to be able to announce/release its data portal at its Convene for Green conference tentatively scheduled for March 2019. We anticipate the data portal will be completed by the end of 2018, with some refinement based on the Organization's feedback taking place in early 2019. Additionally, per your request, AA agrees to design and develop a one-page sustainability highlights summary that will be available for hardcopy distribution at the 2019 Convene for Green conference.

Standard Assumptions and Limiting Conditions

AA's principals and staff are economic, fiscal and policy research professionals. We are not attorneys or registered lobbyists in Nevada or in any other state; and as such, our efforts will be in the capacity of "analyst" as opposed to "advocate." We understand that we may be required to deliver information to third parties. In doing so, we will provide the required information and/or testimony as an objective third party.

Market and economic information furnished to us and contained in any submission or report or utilized in the formation of the findings will be obtained from sources considered reliable and believed to be true and correct, including ImpactNV. However, we will not perform any audit or other assurance procedures on the data; and as such, no representation, liability or warranty for the accuracy of such items is assumed by or imposed on AA, and all submissions will be subject to corrections, errors, omissions, and withdrawal without notice.

AA will design procedures and undertake analyses in response to your request. However, we make no representations as to the adequacy of these procedures for all purposes. ImpactNV agrees to indemnify AA, its partners, principals and employees, and hold them harmless from and against any and all liabilities or obligations including, but not limited to, attorney's fees that arise directly or indirectly from the services that are the subject of this engagement letter, except to the extent that it is determined by an appellate court of competent jurisdiction that AA's conduct in connection with the services that are the subject of this engagement letter were grossly negligent or fraudulent, and that such conduct was the proximate cause of any injury for which AA is sought to be held liable.

Confidentiality and Record Retention

Our personnel understand that they are subject to and will abide by any reasonable confidentiality restrictions and protective orders. We will take appropriate steps to segregate all materials related to our work in this engagement from other files in our office. Any records obtained and/or generated during the course of this assignment will be retained by AA for a period of up to three (3) years or the minimum required under Nevada law.

APPLIED ANALYSIS

TIMEFRAME, DELIVERABLES AND BUDGET

AA will have the initial wireframe developed within 30 days of being authorized to proceed. AA will have the data portal constructed within 60 days of approval of the wireframe's approval by ImpactNV. The development and recurring maintenance cost for this project are estimated at $3,600 per month over a 12-month licensing period ($43,200 total). That said, respecting the important community mission of the ImpactNV and AA's long-standing relationship with the Organization, the licensing fee for this project will be reduced by 15 percent to $3,060 per month for a 12-month licensing period ($36,720 total).

The fees for the services described herein are considered a licensing fee for use of the technology, information and graphical elements; ownership resides with Applied Analysis and MyResearcher.com. If selected to move forward, MyResearcher.com LLC, an affiliate company of Applied Analysis, will be the contracting entity with ImpactNV. The pricing above contemplates a minimum 12-month licensing arrangement. After the 12-month period, this licensing agreement will convert to a month-to-month contract, which either party can terminate the agreement with 60-day notice.

If at any time we believe our fees will exceed this estimate set forth above, we will notify you in advance of incurring the additional time. Alternatively, if the level of effort required is less than the quoted range above due to modifications in the design of the data portal itself, AA will bill the ImpactNV only for the actual time incurred. Efforts undertaken shall be billed on a time and materials basis using the hourly rates tabled below.

Standard Hourly Rate Schedule

Staff	Standard Hourly Rate
Jeremy Aguero, Principal	$450
Brian Gordon, CPA/ABV, Principal	$425
Directors	$325
Senior Managers	$275
Project Managers	$225
Senior Analysts	$175
Analysts	$150
Creative Director and Graphic Designers	$100 to $175
Interviewers and Administrative Staff	$25 to $40

Note: Rates as of January 1, 2018 (subject to annual adjustment).

ImpactNV will be provided with monthly billings that will be due upon receipt. We reserve the right to cease all efforts and to withhold the release of any deliverables in the event that an invoice remains unpaid for longer than 30 days.

##########

We welcome the opportunity to discuss this proposal with you at any time. Should you have any questions or require additional information, please contact Jeremy Aguero or Brian Gordon at (702) 967-3333. If the foregoing is in accordance with your understanding, please sign one copy of this agreement in the space provided below and forward a second copy to us.

Sincerely,

EXHIBIT 1: STANDARD ASSUMPTIONS AND LIMITING CONDITIONS

The standard assumptions and limiting conditions pertaining to the tasks that are the subject of this contract are summarized below. If applicable, "special assumptions" will be cited elsewhere in the deliverables.

1. Market and economic information furnished to us and contained in any submission or report or utilized in the formation of the findings will be obtained from sources considered reliable and believed to be true and correct, including ImpactNV. However, no representation, liability, or warranty for the accuracy of such items is assumed by or imposed on AA.
2. No change of any item in any of the reports or submissions shall be made by anyone other than AA and we shall have no responsibility for any such unauthorized change.
3. The working papers for this engagement will be retained in AA's files and will be made available for your reference upon request. Compiling, copying and providing these data will be done at additional expense.
4. Neither all nor any part of the contents of any report or submission shall be disseminated or referred to the public through advertising, public relations, news, or sales media, or any other public means of communication or referenced in any publication, including any private or public offerings including but not limited to those filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission or other governmental agency, without the prior written consent and approval of and review by AA and ImpactNV.
5. All maps, graphs, building diagrams, or photographs submitted are for illustrative purposes only; they are not guaranteed to be exact. Dimensions and descriptions are based on public records and/or information furnished by ImpactNV or others and are not meant to be used as a reference in legal matters.
6. We take no responsibility for any events, conditions, or circumstances affecting the local or national economy, or its financial and real estate markets. We assume no liability for an unforeseen change in the economy.
7. We have not performed an audit, review, or examination or any other attest function regarding any of the historical or prospective third-party economic and real estate market information used or included in any report or submission, including that provided by ImpactNV. Therefore, AA will not express any opinion or any other form of assurance with regard to the same, in the context of any report or submission.
8. It is assumed that ImpactNV will be managed in a competent manner and will abide by all local, state, and federal laws. We assume no liability for ImpactNV's failure to meet these requirements, and additional fees and charges may apply if additional hours are incurred.
9. It is assumed that in the event a conflict of interest arises for AA, its partners, principals or employees with regard to the subject of this engagement, AA has authority to withdraw from such engagement and fully refund any fees and/or out-of-pocket expenses incurred through the date of such determination. In addition, in the event of such withdrawal, ImpactNV agrees to release AA of all obligations outlined in this engagement letter, excluding the obligation of confidentiality. As of the date hereof, AA is not aware of any potential or actual conflicts of interest.
10. It is assumed ImpactNV authorizes AA to use ImpactNV's name and general description of this engagement (excluding information on professional services or other compensation contract details) in AA's collateral and marketing materials, including its website.
11. This proposal will remain valid for 14 days from the date of this letter. Failure to manifest agreement to its terms and act as required, including providing the necessary retainer in full, constitutes a rejection of this proposal and renders it null and void. AA assumes no responsibility for any occurrence, including but not limited to reporting delays, resulting from any act or omission by ImpactNV.

8. Closing
9. Awards
   - Sustainable Leader
   - Sustainable Community
   - Sustainable Future Award

Topic Selection Thought Process:
The intention is to show how each topic area interrelates and are co-dependent on the other topic areas. At the moment, tying each area together through "investment" seems the most logical although the topic areas have not yet be settled. In investment we would look at what is necessary in money, energy, time and resources to achieve a given impact or goal.

As has been our tradition, three main topics would drive the event and conversation. The committee was thinking of something dedicated social, economic and environmental sustainability but we could sub-divide as we did in the SOS. Also, a discussion may be necessary with the SOS report committee to learn what focuses will be in the report so we can coordinate messaging and topic focus.

Participants: Once we have our topics, we can select whom we want to participate.
We discussed having third-party individuals possibly moderate panels including:

- The Nevada Independent reporters/Jon Ralston and staff (in Carson though)
- The Guinn Center
- Applied Analysis/Jeremy Aquero
- Brookings Institute

Awards: TBD at next couple committee meetings. Ask board to start thinking about both potential award recipients as well attendees.

Timeline:
	October:	Program and Speaker Suggestions
		Date and Venue Secured
	November:	Program finalized
		Sponsor Outreach Begins (will this be tied to SOS Report?)
	December:	Save the Date Sent Via Email and Social Media
		Place on community calendars (if necessary)
		Sponsor Outreach Continues
		Event Materials Developed
	January:	Open Registration
		Trustees and Board Members Initial Attendee Outreach
		Event Materials Finalized/Printed/Developed
	February:	Final Attendee Outreach

Policy Council on Homelessness

Vision Statement: To identify local and state policy changes that will make homelessness rare, brief, and one time in Nevada and to advocate for the implementation of those policies.

The Policy Council on Homelessness seeks to support policies that will;

- Decrease the number of people experiencing homelessness
- Increase the development of affordable housing
- Increase funding for homeless and housing related services in the State of Nevada

Policy Recommendations:

1. Support legislation to create a Statewide Affordable Housing Tax Credit Program in the 80th (2019) Nevada Legislative Session.

2. Support the development of legislation to create a shelter diversion fund. Shelter diversion provides flexible and necessary supports to help individuals and families divert from utilizing the homeless service system when experiencing housing instability.

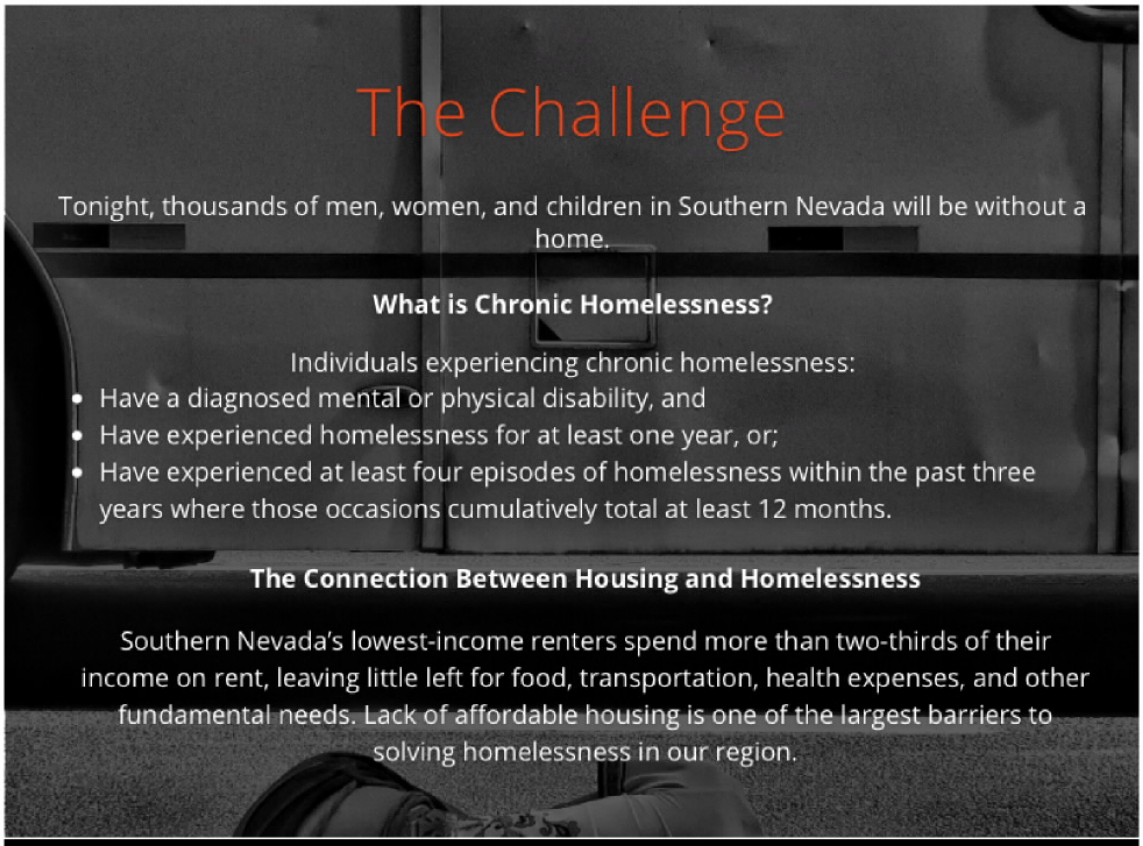
3. Support legislation to develop a Nevada Interagency Council on Homelessness.

Additional policy recommendations under consideration (review):

1. Support the development of legislation to fund housing related services for the homeless in NV.
2. Support legislation to expand Medicaid 1915(i) State Plan Amendment (SPA) to increase funding for supportive housing. Support of this legislation is contingent on match source.
3. Explore policies that strengthen residential stability and security for homeowners and tenants.
4. Support policies that will allow jurisdictions to provide supportive housing.

Built For Zero. | Southern Nevada

Homelessness is a solvable problem that has lost its sense of urgency. Built for Zero is a rigorous national change effort designed to help a core group of committed US communities end chronic and veteran homelessness. Southern Nevada is making strides to become the first large community to end chronic homelessness in the country!



Homeless and Waiting for Housing in Southern Nevada as of August 2018

Total Persons	Chronically Homeless	Families with Children	Youth

Our Goal

Become the first large community to end chronic homelessness.

We will do this by:

- Expanding supportive housing resources to meet the demand of our community.
- Developing a strategy to move people into affordable housing.
- Preventing people from experiencing homelessness through diversion.

To showcase diverse youth voices throughout the Plan, Young Adults in Charge (YAC), Southern Nevada's Youth Action Board, held art and essay contests for young people with lived experiences of homelessness. The art contest's winning submission is featured on the Plan's cover, while the essay contest's two winning submissions are printed in full inside. All three winners were awarded scholarships for their efforts. Quotes from additional submitted youth essays and art pieces are also featured throughout the Plan. The Movement thanks all the young people who participated in the art and essay contests for their time, bravery, and creativity!

"Here you will observe a young lady. Stripped of one of her wings and most of her colors, she has been tainted by the harshness of the world. Her mask she wears is to protect her from love. She walks along a garden of happiness in fres waiting for someone to teach her to love again because she knows in her heart of hearts that is what she truly is wants way the girl is me, I was kicked out at 13 when I came out as FTM and gay. So I relate to this character a lot. My objec here is simple: by loving and being loved by others we will make this world a better place."

executive summary

With the third-highest prevalence of youth homelessness in the nation, Southern Nevada is experiencing a startling crisis that demands immediate action. The Southern Nevada Homeless Continuum of Care (SNH CoC), a group of local stakeholders committed to addressing homelessness in the community, counted 2,096 unaccompanied youth experiencing homelessness — nearly a third of the entire homeless population in the area — in its annual Point-in-Time (PIT) count in 2017. Even more alarming is that 93 percent of these youth are sleeping either outside or in places not meant for human habitation, like their car or an abandoned building.

Federal leaders and communities across the country now recognize that youth experiencing homelessness require a response that accounts for their specific situations and stage of life. Without such tailored interventions, youth will remain in the homeless system without the necessary supports to exit, and will become our future population of adults experiencing chronic homelessness.

Thanks to the creative collaboration of a diverse group of funders, national experts, community stakeholders, and youth and young adults who have themselves experienced homelessness, the Southern Nevada Plan to End Youth Homelessness is in our hands. This Plan will serve as a roadmap for the many partners working together to prevent and end youth homelessness in Southern Nevada.

CREATING THE PLAN

This Plan is the result of a collaborative community effort by individuals and organizations, led by the Nevada Partnersh for Homeless Youth (NPHY); Las Vegas Sands; Clark County Social Service, the SNH CoC collaborative applicant; the SNH CoC Planning Working Group, represented by the City of Las Vegas; the University of Nevada, Las Vegas Greens College of Urban Affairs; and Young Adults in Charge (YAC), Southern Nevada's Youth Action Board.

In November 2017, our community came together for the first annual Southern Nevada Youth Homelessness Summit, presented by NPHY and Las Vegas Sands. This community-wide event served as a kickoff to the Movement to End Yo Homelessness in Southern Nevada (the Movement), an initiative to build a focused and sustained effort to end youth homelessness in the region. The Movement was tasked with producing the first-ever Southern Nevada Plan to End Youth Homelessness.

The Movement's decision-making structure was based on four core teams working in coordination. Young Adults in Charge was established to ensure that voices of youth led the drafting of the Plan from the very beginning. This group began by meeting monthly, and then elected to meet weekly as its membership grew. YAC representatives also participated in meetings of the Joint Decision-Making Team (JDMT), which was comprised of Movement leaders, including Plan funders, and was tasked with reviewing all Plan components and making final determinations about wha content to include. The Planning Team, made up of key community stakeholders and youth-serving providers, acted as the driver of the Plan throughout much of the process, synthesizing and packaging all information and recommendation for JDMT to consider. Finally, an expanded version of the SNH CoC Youth Working Group (YWG+) was made up of members of the SNH CoC's existing Youth Working Group and newly invited subject matter experts. This group provide community input throughout the process, along with others who were brought in to address specific topics.
To keep up with progress on the Plan, visit the Movement at www.nphy.org/themovement.

OUR VISION FOR SUCCESS

We will know the Plan has succeeded when our community's coordinated response system can ensure that homelessness among unaccompanied youth is rare, brief, one-time, and equitably addressed.

These criteria are modeled on federal standards that define homelessness among youth as rare when homelessness does not occur often, and when youth and young adults do not exit our public systems into unstable housing conditions. Homelessness among youth is brief when, if a young person does experience homelessness, their experience in the homeless services system lasts only a short time. Homelessness among youth is one-time when after exiting the hom services system into housing, youth remain stably housed and do not return to homelessness. Homelessness among y is equitably addressed when all youth experiencing homelessness, regardless of race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, or gender identity, gain equitable access to our system and its services and have equitable exits to safe and stable housin Six principles, described in detail in the Plan, will guide our efforts as we make the changes necessary to meet these standards. Our system to end youth homelessness will…

… be person-centered.
… be accessible and equitable.
… provide comprehensive wraparound housing and support.
… promote accountability.
… be as efficient as possible.
… be collaboration-focused.

GOALS

As the convener of federal bodies addressing the issue of homelessness, the United States Interagency Council on Homelessness (USICH) has published criteria and benchmarks on ending youth homelessness. After discussion, the decision-making groups in the Movement decided that USICH criteria would form the best framework for the goals of o own Plan, and would help propel our community towards the vision of making youth homelessness rare, brief, one-time and equitably addressed.

Our goals outline in broad terms what the community hopes to achieve. In the Plan, each of these goals is defined by specific objectives and supported by metrics that will keep us accountable to our vision and make our work transparent all stakeholders.

Goal One
The community identifies all unaccompanied youth experiencing homelessness.

Goal Two
The community uses prevention and diversion strategies whenever possible, and otherwise provides immediate access to low-barrier crisis housing and services to any youth who needs and wants it.

Goal Three
The community uses coordinated entry processes to effectively link all youth experiencing homelessness to housing and services that are tailored to their needs.

Goal Four
The community acts with urgency to swiftly assist youth to move into permanent or non-time-limited housing options with appropriate services and supports.

Goal Five
The community has resources, plans, and system capacity in place to continue to prevent and quickly end future experiences of homelessness among youth.

STRATEGY FOCUS AREAS
There is no one-size-fits-all approach to preventing and ending youth homelessness, and our goals will not be achieved if we focus all of our efforts in one area alone. Instead, a variety of strategies have been identified that each align with o or more of the following focus areas: Legislative/Policy, Fundraising, Public-Private Partnerships, Housing & Services, a Systems Intersectionality. The strategies will serve as active steps toward achieving each of the five goals of the Plan. Aligning each strategy with one or more of these focus areas will help diverse partners and stakeholders to institutionali and amplify our successful innovations.

NEXT STEPS
Now the hard work of implementation begins. To succeed, we need the voices and energy of policymakers, service providers, businesses, and community stakeholders. Much like the heavily collaborative planning process, implementat must also be carried out with an all-hands-on-deck approach. Southern Nevada is rich with subject matter experts and systems leaders whose participation will be essential as we move forward. Youth and young adults with lived experienc of homelessness will continue to play a central role. Together, we will use the Plan to transform our existing systems ar create a sustainable end to youth homelessness in Southern Nevada.

“THE NECESSITIES OF HOMELESS YOUTH ARE MATERIALS SUCH AS CLOTHING, INCOME AND STABILITY. THESE ARE THE KEY FACTORS IN PRODUCING AND MAINTAINING A QUALITY LIFE.”

Dear Friends,

Southern Nevada is facing one of the worst youth homelessness crises in the nation. Not only does our community have one of the highest incidences of unaccompanied youth experiencing homelessness, but we also have one of the highest rates of these youth living unsheltered on our streets, without adequate community resources to provide for their safety, stability, or well-being.

Together, we can change this. Now, thanks to the Southern Nevada Plan to End Youth Homelessness, we have a roadmap to end this crisis here in our community.

The first annual Southern Nevada Youth Homelessness Summit, presented by Nevada Partnership for Homeless Youth and Las Vegas Sands, kicked off the community-wide Movement to End Youth Homelessness in Southern Nevada in late 2017. Throughout 2018, the Movement convened a wide range of diverse stakeholders in an intensive multi-level planning process to create the Southern Nevada Plan to End Youth Homelessness.

This is a comprehensive, holistic umbrella Plan that comes at the issue of youth homelessness from all angles. Youth homelessness requires its own distinct approach and this Plan represents the first coordinated, regional response plan dedicated to youth homelessness in Clark County. This Plan was created out of Southern Nevada's unique landscape, but is aligned with federal criteria, helping our community to support federal efforts while serving as a nationwide leader in the fight to end youth homelessness.

On behalf of the Clark County Commission, I want to commend all of the organizations and individuals who devoted hundreds of hours of time and dedication to building this Plan, and express Clark County's full support of the Southern Nevada Plan to End Youth Homelessness.

Addressing youth homelessness affects all of us: when we get young people off the streets sustainably, we prevent further negative outcomes from occurring and save our community significant long-term costs. But, none of us can do this alone.

Now, the hard work of implementation begins. I urge all of you to read this Plan, understand its urgency, and come together from all sectors of society to implement its strategies. I am proud of what the Southern Nevada community has already accomplished in building this Plan: now please join me in making the Southern Nevada Plan to End Youth Homelessness a reality.

Sincerely,

#BETHEMOVEMENT — MY STORY

JS, Age 20, Las Vegas

Sunday, March 22, 1998…It was just around lunch time that I came into this world. A beautiful little girl with bright orang peach fuzz on the top of my little, newborn head. I was nothing more than an innocent soul, not yet tainted by the cruel ways of this world. Well…it started off that way, at least. But before I even attended my first day of kindergarten, my life was already a tragedy. My parents weren't really parents at all. My mother was consumed by the darkness of the Las V streets, and my dad was no more than a trailer park drug dealer. It was only a matter of time before me and my 2 siblin were tossed into the foster care system, which opened the door to some of the scariest years of my life.

My 2 siblings and I were adopted in 2005, after an unfortunately disappointing string of foster homes. Each from which we left a little more broken and traumatized. Our new parents were pretty nice, and for a bit we began to feel like a fam again. Then it all came crashing down. What should have the happiest years of my life were instead, flooded with harsh words, emotional manipulation and the constant sting of my father's heavy hand across my face. Life was not very pret me. Year after year I cried a little harder on my birthday, feeling as if this pain would never end. The closer I got to turni 18, the more I thought of leaving…just running far, far away and never looking back. So that's what I did.

The day I turned 18, I moved out of my parents' house and began my life as a young adult in this big city. Things were g at first. I had my own apartment and a job, life was great for me. I was 18 and way more naïve than I would admit. Soo enough, things weren't going so well for me anymore. I was so consumed by the need to take care of others that I trust the wrong person and then it all fell apart. After a series of lies and one of the most painful acts of betrayal I have ever experienced, I found myself in the streets.

After losing my apartment, I had no idea what to do. I was constantly looking, asking everyone I knew for a couch to sle on. I just wanted a roof over my head for the night. I was living my life recklessly, day-by-day with no idea where I was headed. Little did I know that the path I was traveling down, would take me nowhere but straight down. Before I knew it was hooked on drugs and constantly doing things I deeply regret, just for a shower and place to lay my head at night.

I remember my first day walking into Nevada Partnership for Homeless Youth. I was a wreck, in every sense of the wor But something changed the second I walked through those front doors. I was greeted with open arms and a feeling of acceptance that I never expected to encounter, not after everything I had been through. I met so many other kids, beau souls who have been pushed aside all their lives, just like me. I stumbled upon the greatest support system for a homel teenager that I could have ever asked for. These people have helped me accomplish so much in the time I've been involved with the program. If I didn't come across NPHY in September of 2016, I would probably still be on drugs. I would have never finished high school and received my diploma. Without the support of NPHY staff and all the friends I've made along the way, I don't think I would have found the strength or determination to become the woman I am toda

So many teens and young adults are walking the streets of this city, broken and lost. Young women are selling their boc just so they can make enough to feed themselves and in a lot of cases, their children. With the lack of positive influence their lives, the young homeless male population is beginning to flood the city jails because they get busted for committi crimes, just so they can score a couple of bucks. So much love and so many dreams, thrown away with every pill that t kids swallow. Without knowledge of his potential, a young entrepreneur sits in an alley searching for his next fix. Unawa of the bright future that lies just beyond her reach, a teenaged girl walks out of a cheap motel after her last appointmen for the night. "Hopefully tomorrow I can get my baby diapers after I pay the rent," she thinks to herself after counting he money on the bus. As unbelievable as it sounds, this has become a very harsh everyday reality for over 10,000 youth i our city.

A lot of people want to help, but don't know how and I just want to let you all know that it's actually pretty simple. Old clothes, school supplies, canned food, hygiene items….these are all things that you can use to help contribute to endin youth homelessness in Las Vegas. Simply showing these kids that somebody out there cares also helps tons. Help the lost teens find their path to success and watch them grow into the strong, confident adults they are meant to be.

AN ENDANGERED FUTURE: THE NECESSITY OF HOMELESS YOUTH HAVING A VOICE

TH, Age 19, Las Vegas

The adolescent years are primarily tasked to be the period of finding one's self. This is an incredibly important time for development and yet there are youth experiencing homelessness at alarming rates. Our false sense of security is ripped away from us as we find ourselves couchsurfing, living out of motels and shelters, struggling on the streets, and doing anything we can to stay alive. Upon experiencing this firsthand, I've learned that it is a constant state of disbelief and pa I'm burdened with the task of calculating how much I can carry physically and emotionally as the knowledge that anythi can happen becomes more tangible. However daunting it may be, I still believe that homelessness can be eradicated a a large part of the solution lies within our community.

The issue of youth homelessness is a growing epidemic that should not be ignored for various reasons. The absence o stability is traumatic and we begin to lack a valuable member in society as youth turn to anything that will fill that gap. D to this, the health and safety of our community is jeopardized as medical conditions go untreated, drug abuse is amplifi and sex trafficking becomes more prominent. Youth homelessness doesn't just impact the quality of our community, it reflects it as well. Young people are homeless as a result of running away from an abusive household, being forced out because of their sexual orientation or gender identity and financial reasons amongst other countless factors. With the increasing amount of youth running away and being put out on the streets it's important to realize that the way our community reacts to youth is part of the problem.

In like manner, the support for homeless youth is underwhelming. In order to aid those that come up against homelessness, it needs to be destigmatized. The shame placed on us is discouraging and for many it's cause to not co forward. This leads to them not gaining access to the services and programs they need, causing their situation to worse In addition to eliminating the reproach surrounding homelessness, youth should also be provided with a platform to spe out about our unique experiences. Every decision made on behalf of youth affects us directly and the majority of them a determined without our input. Having a seat at the table is imperative because no one knows what we need more than With a safe place to utilize our voices, we'll be able to help people understand that homelessness isn't a faceless entity affects youth on a daily basis which is why raising awareness is important.

Public awareness is one of the most crucial parts of the solution to ending youth homelessness because one cannot fix what they know little to nothing about. Raising public awareness can teach our community that homelessness itself is a problem not necessarily the youth experiencing it. Instead of considering us delinquents, it may bring about empathy a the realization that youth are a part of the community. Public awareness can also lead to public action. For instance, pe might be more inclined to donate to non-profit homeless youth providers after learning about what they do and where they are. However, the concept of public awareness can easily be watered down to that of lip service. While it's importa to keep the conversation going about what youth homelessness is, oversaturating the public with why it's a problem can make them less liable to do something about it. Public awareness is a stepping stone and the best way to utilize it is to people not only what they can do but also what's being done.

All things considered, ending youth homelessness isn't an impossible feat. It can be done with the help and support of community. Turning a blind eye to this issue will not solve it and the key to understanding and moving forward is giving voice to not only allow us to be heard, but to allow the community to listen. The youth are the future. We will be the one you pass the baton to and we deserve to be there to receive it.

introduction

The Southern Nevada Plan to End Youth Homelessness represents the wo diverse and dedicated group of stakeholders who came together with the vi of addressing the issue of youth homelessness.

But why is there a need to focus specifically on youth, when our community already making a coordinated effort to address homelessness in general?

Young people experiencing homelessness are distinct from other homeless populations not just in their ages, but in their circumstances, mindsets, and needs; young people require distinct resources to sustainably end their homelessness. Without stable housing, young people are held back from taking critical steps toward adult independence, such as pursuing educatio and employment. Furthermore, in order to meet their basic needs, youth ar young adults who become homeless often resort to survival strategies that both dangerous and detrimental to their health. To ensure that youth who a currently homeless — or at risk of becoming so — do not become our community's future long-term homeless population, tailored solutions are needed.

Leading first and foremost with the voices of young people themselves, this Plan is a roadmap to reach a sustainable end to youth homelessness in Southern Nevada.

YOUTH DEFINITIONS IN THIS PLAN

Youth are under 18 years of age.

Young Adults are between 18 and 24 years old.

Unaccompanied Youth are under 25 years of age, are not part of a family w children, and are not accompanied by a parent or legal guardian during their episode of homelessness.

Pregnant or Parenting Youth are under 25 years of age and are pregna or are the parents/ legal guardians of one or more children who are present with or sleeping in the same place as the youth parent.

HOW THE PLAN WAS DEVELOPED

In November of 2017, the community came together to participate in and support the inaugural Southern Nevada Youth Homelessness Summit. The Summit, presented by the Nevada Partnership for Homeless Youth (NPHY) and Las Vega Sands, both heightened the sense of urgency and provided an opportunity for local organizations and community members to collectively address the unique needs of this population. The Summit served as a kickoff to the Movement End Youth Homelessness (the Movement) in Southern Nevada, an initiative to build a focused, sustained, community-w effort to end youth homelessness in the region. The Movement was tasked with producing the first-ever Southern Neva Plan to End Youth Homelessness.

In March of 2018, the Movement issued a national request for proposals seeking an outside organization to facilitate th creation of the Plan, and after an intensive review process, selected the Technical Assistance Collaborative (TAC). Fun for TAC's role was provided by NPHY, Las Vegas Sands, and the Southern Nevada Homeless Continuum of Care (SNH CoC) Planning Working Group. Starting with TAC's first on-site visit in April, Southern Nevada's Youth Action Board, You Adults in Charge (YAC), youth providers, funders, and other community stakeholders have worked energetically to crea this Plan.

DECISION-MAKING STRUCTURE

A decision-making structure was established consisting of the Joint Decision-Making Team (JDMT), the Planning Team YAC, and an expanded SNH CoC Youth Working Group (YWG+). The JDMT was composed of Movement leaders, Pla funders, and members of YAC, ensuring from the beginning that the voices of youth led the drafting of the Plan. The group was tasked with reviewing all Plan components and making final determinations about what would be included ir the Plan. YAC began by meeting monthly, and then elected to meet weekly as its membership grew. The Planning Tear made up of key community stakeholders and youth-serving providers, acted as the driver of the Plan throughout much of the process, synthesizing and packaging all information and recommendations for JDMT to consider. The YWG+ included both members of the SNH CoC's existing Youth Working Group and newly invited subject matter experts. This group provided community input throughout the process, along with others who were brought in to address specifi topics. The graphic below shows how the decision-making structure worked in action.

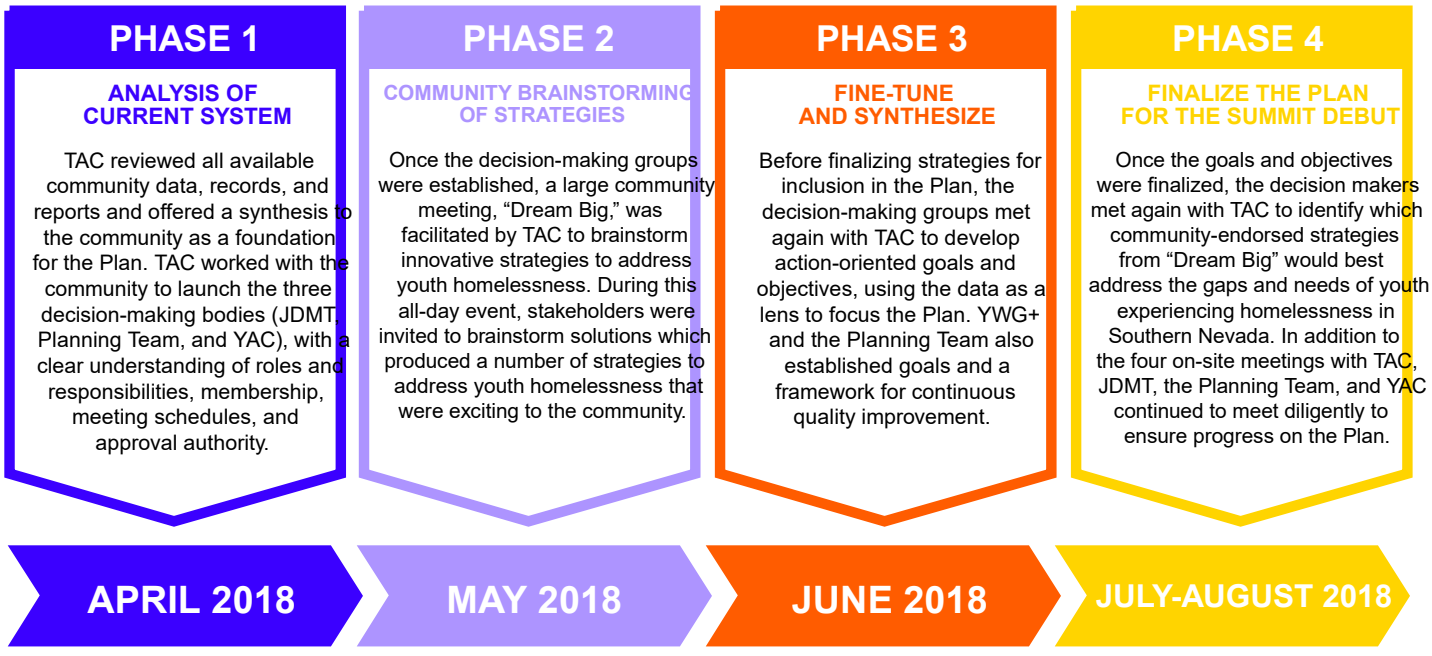
During the subsequent months, the community moved through four phases of planning, guided by TAC: 1) Analysis of the Current System; 2) Community Brainstorming of Strategies; 3) Fine-tune and Synthesize; and 4) Finalize Plan for Summit Debut.

PHASES OF PLANNING



INTRODUCING OUR VISION FOR SUCCESS

Early on in the process, the Plan's decision-making groups defined the plan's vision for success. We will know the Pla has succeeded when our community's coordinated response system can ensure that homelessness among unaccompanied youth is rare, brief, one-time, and equitably addressed. This vision is central to the structure of this document and serves as the foundation of the Plan.

These criteria are modeled on federal standards that define homelessness among youth as rare when homelessness does not occur often, and when youth and young adults do not exit our public systems into unstable housing conditions. Homelessness among youth is brief when, if a young person does experience homelessness, their experience in the homeless services system lasts only a short time. Homelessness among youth is one-time when after exiting the hom services system into housing, youth remain stably housed and do not return to homelessness. Homelessness among y is equitably addressed when all youth experiencing homelessness, regardless of race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, or gender identity, gain equitable access to our system and its services and have equitable exits to safe and stable housin

background

UNDERSTANDING YOUTH HOMELESSNESS

Before examining youth homelessness in Southern Nevada, it is important to acknowledge the national scope of this issue. Cause consequences, and high-risk subpopulations in youth homelessn are shared in communities throughout the United States. Basic knowledge of the national data is a lens through which youth homelessness at the local level can be better understood.

While youth homelessness is not a new challenge, a spotlight on issue in recent years has illuminated the staggering numbers of y and young adults experiencing housing instability in the United St According to the Voices of Youth Count national survey from Cha Hall at the University of Chicago, one in ten young adults ages 18 25 experience some form of homelessness in a given year.[1] Similarly, this research shows that one out of every 30 minors between the of 13 and 17 experience some form of homelessness, unaccomp by an adult, in a given year. Interestingly, these numbers do not d widely between urban and rural communities.[2]

Homelessness among youth takes many different forms. Some y stay in shelters or transitional living programs, while others remai unsheltered, sleeping on the street or in places not meant for hum habitation. Many are also doubled up, or "couch surfing," making even more difficult to discern just how many young people are experiencing homelessness at a given moment. Youth and young adults who are unaccompanied and bouncing between the homes friends may not necessarily seek help from homeless service pro or even identify as homeless, despite lacking a regular, safe place spend each night. Youth homelessness is often referred to as "hid in plain sight" for this very reason.

1 Chapin Hall research includes young adults 18 to 25, while federal definitions only go up to age 24.

DIFFERENT DEFINITIONS OF HOMELESSNESS

This Plan relies on the broad definition of homelessness set forth in the federal McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act. According to th definition, youth are homeless if they "lack a fixe regular, and adequate nighttime residence."

Federal agencies that interact with youth experiencing homelessness have differing definitions:

The Department of Housing and Urban Development, in its Final Definition of Homelessness, established four categories: Literally Homeless, At Imminent Risk of Homelessness, Homeless Under Another Federal Definition, and Fleeing or Attempting to Flee Domestic Violence.

The Department of Education follows the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act definition.

The Runaway and Homeless Youth Program addresses individuals who are "not more than 2 years of age…for whom it is not possible to live a safe environment with a relative and who have no other safe alternative living arrangement." This definition includes only those youth who are unaccompanied by families or caregivers.

More detailed federal definitions of homelessnes are included in the Appendix (see page 37).

It is important to note that one of the biggest obstacles to coordinating a precise federal response to youth homelessne has been the lack of cohesive data. Contributing to this problem is the fact that key federal stakeholders maintain differ definitions of youth homelessness, leading to variation among annual counts of youth experiencing homelessness. For instance, the Department of Housing and Urban Development's (HUD) 2016 Point-in-Time (PIT) count estimated 40,799 unaccompanied youth experiencing homelessness, while the Department of Education estimates that 111,753 unaccompanied youth experiencing homelessness were enrolled in public schools in the 2015–2016 school year (the most recent year for which data was available).[3][4]

In addition to different ways of determining the number of youth experiencing homelessness, there are also a wide variety of factors linked to the causes of youth homelessness today. Though every youth experiencing homelessness has a unique story, there are often common threads throughout each one. For example, the Voices of Youth Count four that Black or African American youth had an 83 percent increased risk of having experienced homelessness compared to youth of other races.[5] The National Network for Youth, a public education and policy advocacy organization, identifies four primary reasons for homelessness among individuals under the age of 25:

1. Family Dysfunction, Rejection, and Conflict: Many youth experiencing homelessness report having dealt with some level of family instability such as child abuse, neglect, domestic violence, parental substance use, or family conflict. It is important to emphasize that most youth who experience homelessness are not doing so by choice. You may run away from a family situation as a means for survival or may be thrown out of the home by a parent or guar[6]

   Family rejection is particularly prevalent among youth experiencing homelessness who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, or queer (LGBTQ). LGBTQ youth have a much higher risk of becoming homeless than their straight and cisgender peers, often as a result of rejection related to their sexual orientation or gender identity. Nearly 40 percent of youth experiencing homelessness identify as LGBTQ, compared to an estimated 7 percent of t general U.S. youth population.[7] Over half of all youth who come out to their families are met with a negative reaction, and the ensuing conflict leads to one in four such youth being thrown out of their homes.[8]

2. Child Welfare System Involvement: "Aging out" of the foster care system occurs when youth between the ages of 18 and 21 exit the system of care and are expected to establish independence.

   Youth face a number of challenges during this period of transition. They are expected to find housing, obtain employment, and refine the life skills necessary for adulthood, often without any stability or support from biological or foster families. More than 25 percent of former foster children become homeless within two to four years of leavi the system.[9]

   Youth aging out of foster care are less likely to graduate from high school or receive a General Equivalency Diplom (GED). Not completing one's high school education often stunts any further educational attainment and leads to limited employment opportunities, prompting financial instability.[10]

3. Juvenile Justice System Involvement: Homelessness and involvement in the juvenile justice system are often interrelated. Not only are youth who have touched the juvenile justice system more likely to experience homelessne but youth who experience homelessness are also more likely to have some involvement with the juvenile justice system. Interviews with more than 600 youth in 11 U.S. cities who had run away or were experiencing homelessnes showed that 44 percent had stayed in a jail, prison, or detention facility; nearly 62 percent had been arrested at some point; and 78 percent had had at least one interaction with the police.[11]

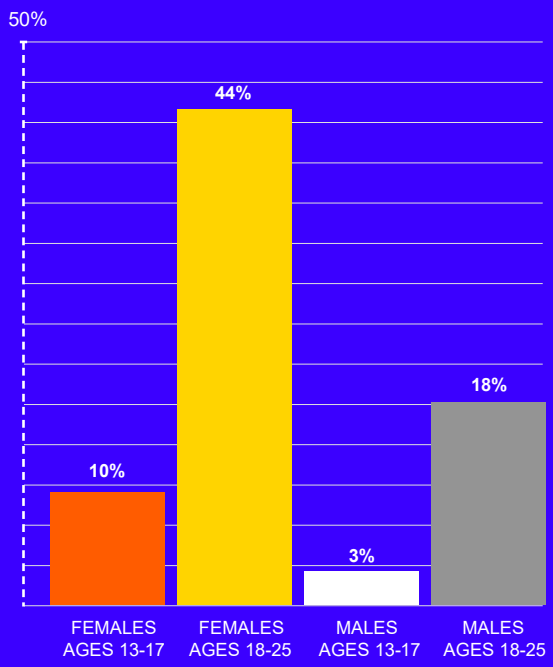
Youth who are dually enrolled in both the child welfare and juvenile justice systems also have a significantly higher risk of homelessness. Foster care placements for older youth can be difficult to obtain, particularly for youth with previous or ongoing involvement with the justice system. Half of all dually enrolled adolescents aging out of the foster care and juvenile justice systems experience homelessness within six months because they are unprepared to live independently and have limited education and social support.[12]

Youth experiencing homelessness may engage in survival strategies that lead to contact with law enforcement such as trespassing or theft. They may also experience commercial sexual exploitation or trafficking. Youth exiting the juvenile justice system may fall into homelessness as a result of family rejection or housing barriers related to their criminal background.[13] For instance, if their family lives in subsidized housing that prohibits household members with certain criminal backgrounds, young people may be forced into homelessness so that the rest of the family can remain housed.

4. Economic Hardship: Residential instability, extreme disconnection, and other economic hardships are often underlying causal factors for homelessness among youth. A lack of stable and affordable housing coupled with unemployment or lack of a living wage can make families unable to provide for their children. These youth are at risk of becoming disconnected from other potential supports such as education, the workforce, and social networks, which in turn harms their chances to achieve self-sufficiency and economic stability.[14] An analysis from Voices of Youth Count indicates that young adults lacking a high school diploma or GED were 4.5 times more likely to experience homelessness than their peers who completed high school.[15]

THE IMPACT OF HOMELESSNESS ON PREGNANT AND PARENTING YOUTH

Percentage of Pregnant and Parenting Youth Experiencing Homelessness



As shown here, according to Voices of Youth Count, a large percentage of pregnant and parenting youth experience homelessness. Pregnancy is one of the most vulnerable times a person's life, and experiencing homelessness at the same tim exacerbates that vulnerability. Pregnant youth and young parent may have no experience living on their own, may be unprepared for the responsibilities of being a parent, and may have difficult meeting other challenges in their lives.

The Consequences of Youth Homelessness

It is imperative that communities work to prevent homelessness among youth whenever possible, as its effects can be devastating. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has found that youth who experience prolonged homelessness are at an elevated risk of substance use and mental health challenges.[16] Over 50 percent of youth experiencing homelessness report mental health problems over their lifetime.[17] The National Network for Youth has found that 30 to 40 percent of youth experiencing homelessness report alcohol problems in their lifetime, and 40 to 50 percen report drug problems.[18] As a result of experiencing homelessness, these young people are not afforded the opportunity t heal from whatever life events or factors put them at greater risk to begin with. Instead, stressors are often exacerbatec the lack of support and stable housing.

The effects that homelessness or housing instability can have on a young person are striking. Indeed, experiencing homelessness prior to the age of 24 may wholly alter the trajectory of an individual's future. Many of the youth and your adults at elevated risk of experiencing homelessness have already endured trauma. To allow these young people to the languish without a safe and stable place to call home should weigh heavily on the conscience of any community.

By identifying the primary causes, we can begin strategizing to prevent and end homelessness and housing instability among yo and young adults. Such varied factors as family dysfunction and conflict, child welfare involvement, juvenile justice involvement, and economic hardship cannot be addressed with a one-size-fits- approach. Instead, this Plan offers strategies that incorporate poli and legislation, fundraising, private/public partnerships, systems intersectionality, and innovative housing and services solutions. Southern Nevada enjoys a wealth of community members who ha relevant expertise and play leadership roles in each of these area We must call on those partners and other stakeholders to identify what part they may play in the implementation of this Plan and in creating a sustainable end to youth homelessness in Southern Nevada. Much like the heavily collaborative planning process, implementation must be carried out with an all-hands-on-deck approach. Southern Nevada has an obligation to ensure the safet and well-being of its youth and young adults and we must all participate in assuming that responsibility.

COORDINATED ENTRY FOR YOUTH

The Youth Coordinated Entry System (YCES) is process by which the Southern Nevada Homele CoC assesses the needs of youth (ages 12 to 2 experiencing homelessness and connects them appropriate housing using a four-step process:

1. Access
   Youth are first connected to a Youth Access Site to receive services and a housing assessment. The Southern Nevada YCES u a multi-site model and has four youth acces site providers. These providers connect yout to services and emergency shelter as neede

2. Assessment
   At each Youth Access Site, youth undergo a housing assessment to evaluate their curren housing situation and level of vulnerability.

3. Prioritization and Matching
   Once youth complete the housing assess- ment, their information is collected and placed in the community queue. Youth are prioritized based on their vulnerability and matched to appropriate housing placements via care coordination meetings.

4. Referral
   Following the matching process, youth are contacted and connected to appropriate housing placements based on their needs and program eligibility.

THE PICTURE OF YOUTH HOMELESSNESS IN SOUTHERN NEVADA

Progress to Date

The Southern Nevada community has proven itself to be both a le and an innovator in addressing youth homelessness, with initiativ that are both CoC-specific and beyond.

Before the process of developing this Plan began, the SNH CoC had already introduced structures specifically designed for youth experiencing homelessness.

HIGHLIGHTS OF COMMUNITY MILESTONES

Passage of the Right to Shelter Law, a Nevada law that breaks down barriers to enable unaccompanied minors who are homeless to access survival services.

Passage of Nevada Assembly Bill 94, which created and funds an account for former foster youth.

Establishment of the National Safe Place program in Southern Nevada, providing homeless and at-risk young people through age 18 with 24/7/365 entry points to services at virtually every street corner in the region.

2011

Passage of Nevada Assembly Bill 350, which allows youth aging out of foster care to choose to remain under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court and be eligible for pro bono legal services and monetary payments from their child welfare agency until age 21.

2012

Award of a competitive U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Transitional Living Program/Maternity Group Home grant to Southern Nevada for the first time, through an innovative public-private partnership between Clark County Social Service and two nonprofits to create eight new transitional housing/maternity group home beds for homeless youth.

2014

Formalization of the Youth Working Group (YWG) in the governance structure of the SNH CoC; YWG is a subgroup of the Planning Working Group that is dedicated to addressing youth homelessness.

2016

Launch of UNLV HOPE Scholars program, a partnership between the University of Nevada-Las Vegas (UNLV), the Clark County School District's Title I HOPE office, and the Nevada Partnership for Homeless Youth (NPHY). This program assists between four and ten homeless students each year with year-round housing, academic and financial support, employment, and counseling while attending UNLV.

Creation of the Harbor, the Clark County Department of Juvenile Justice's juvenile assessment and triage center, which houses numerous community providers under one roof to meet youths' varied needs and divert them from systems involvement.

Launch of the Southern Nevada "Power ON!" Collaborative Mentoring Project, the region's first mentorship project designed to serve survivors and minors at risk of commercial sexual exploitation and domestic minor sex trafficking, funded by the U.S. Department of Justice.

Launch of Southern Nevada's youth-specific coordinated entry process, which includes a youth-specific assessment tool and specialized Youth Access Sites.

Formation of "Young Adults in Charge" (YAC), Southern Nevada's Youth Action Board, a subgroup of the Youth Working Group made up of young people ages 12 to 24 with lived experience of homelessness.

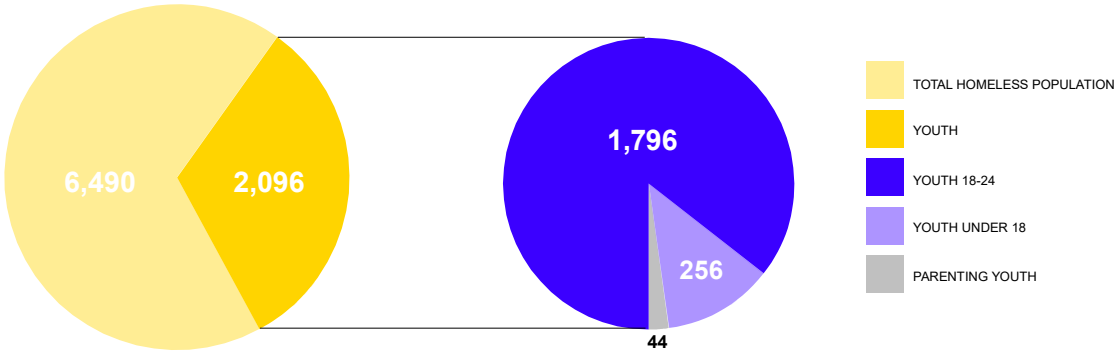
The inaugural Southern Nevada Youth Homelessness Summit, which brought together service providers, civic leaders, government officials, and members of the business community to launch the Movement to End Youth Homelessness in Southern Nevada.

WHERE SOUTHERN NEVADA IS TODAY

Snapshot of Youth Homelessness

According to the 2017 PIT count, summarized in the Southern Nevada Homeless Census and Survey Comprehensive Report, there are 6,490 persons experiencing homelessness in Southern Nevada, including 2,096 youth and young adults. As shown below, youth and young adults are more than a third of that total population. This is a stunning numbe giving the SNH CoC the third highest number of youth experiencing homelessness in the nation, behind only CoCs in L Angeles and San José.[19]

Southern Nevada's Homeless Population in 2017



Source: Southern Nevada Homeless Census and Survey Comprehensive Report, 2017

Notably, the 2017 Census identified that 93 percent of Southern Nevada's youth experiencing homelessness were sleeping in unsheltered locations. Twenty-two percent of all parenting youth counted in the Census were among those who were unsheltered, meaning that their young children were also living on the street.[20] The fact that most youth sleep in unsheltered locations could be due to insufficient shelter options for youth in the community, a disconnect between th shelter available and the type of setting that youth would seek out, or both. As shown below, the SNH CoC has a limite number of youth-dedicated crisis beds, and the utilization rate — especially for emergency shelter — remains low.

At this time, local data collection does not accurately capture the se orientation of youth and young adults experiencing homelessness. The majority of youth and young adults (85 percent) who accessed the homeless system in 2017 did not have data collected on their sexual orientation. To improve the completeness of this data eleme the SNH CoC's Homeless Management Information System (HMIS Working Group recently made the decision to require programs to ask about a participant's sexual orientation when participants enter program in the SNH CoC.

Based on this understanding of youth homelessness in our commu the current system should be considered from the perspective of how to make youth homelessness rare, brief, one-time, and equitabl addressed.

WHERE DOES THE DATA COME FROM?

To inform the Southern Nevada Plan to End Youth Homelessness, several data sources wer reviewed, including the Homeless Managemen Information System (HMIS) and Point-in-Time count results.

The annual Point-in-Time count tallies people experiencing homelessness on a given night in January, and is required by HUD.

The local HMIS is used to collect client-level da including information about housing and service provided to individuals and families who are experiencing or at risk of homelessness.

JDMT decided on HMIS as the data source for the Plan because it is widely utilized by a variet of organizations to capture information about th populations they serve, making it a robust and stable data source.

For this Plan, we focused on data from calenda year 2017 because it was the most widely and readily available. For future updates, the Southern Nevada Homeless CoC expects to continue using the most recent year's data.

Youth Involved with Other Systems of Care

Some public systems of care, most notably public school systems, report students as homeless when they are living in shelters or in unstable housing situations such as being doubled up or couch-surfing. Schools are a source of meaningful data for a community looking to prevent youth from becoming homeless. The Clark Cour School District (CCSD) reported that according to the McKinney-Ve Homeless Assistance Act definition of homelessness, 14,659 youth experienced homelessness in the 2017–2018 school year, with the majority doubled up (78 percent). This number includes youth who are homeless with their families, while the PIT includes only unaccompanied youth who are homeless. The chart below focuses on youth who are enrolled in high school in CCSD and who are not living with their legal guardian. As shown, students in higher grade levels had a greater incidence of housing instability. More students find themselves unsheltered, in shelters, or doubled up in 12th grade than in any other grade. This instability comes at a significant time, when youth are transitioning to you adulthood and considering next steps in their development, such as further education or employment and moving out o their own.

Exiting from the child welfare system is another point at which a young person is at great risk for experiencing homelessness. According to Clark County Social Service (CCSS), 106 youth aged out of foster care in 2017.[21] CCSS operates the Clark County Step Up program, which is funded through county recorder fees that are administered from a statewide account. Step Up provides extended services to youth who age out of foster care, until their 21st birthday. A total of 400 young adults participated in this voluntary program in 2017, receiving a monthly living fund of $773.13 (the standard monthly rate of foster care) to aid in their transition out of foster care.

In 2017, of the 128 young adults who exited Step Up, 76 percent exited to permanent housing; 8.5 percent exited to temporary housing; and 15.5 percent exited to "unknown status or unenrolled." While the majority of exits to permanent housing is notable, there is limited follow-up with these young adults so it is difficult to gauge their long-term housing stability. Approximately 20 percent of youth who complete a youth housing assessment through the coordinated entry system in Clark County self-report having aged out of the foster care system.[22][23]

Young adults who are involved with the juvenile justice system are another subpopulation at risk of homelessness. The homeless system and juvenile justice system are frequently interconnected because homelessness can lead to juvenile justice involvement through pathways such as truancy or trespassing, and because young people can be forced into homelessness if they are unable to return home because of their criminal record. In Nevada, a young adult charged wit a crime remains in the juvenile justice system until age 21, with the exception of certain crimes. As shown below, in 201 there were over 300 bookings of young adults in the Clark County juvenile justice system, of whom 46 percent were Black or African American. This racial breakout is similar for minors booked in Clark County. Additionally, there were approximately 650 young people on probation as of August 24, 2018.[26]

Finally, youth who are fleeing unsafe homes or foster care placements or are experiencing homelessness are at an ele risk of commercial sexual exploitation. In 2016, Nevada was ranked the 14th in the nation for the number of human trafficking cases reported to the National Human Trafficking Hotline. In the same year, the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Departm documented about 140 child sex trafficking victims, or approximately a dozen a month. In Clark County there is a Speci Juvenile Court for commercially sexually exploited children. This court is meant to be a problem-solving court that meet weekly to adjudicate all delinquency cases for sexually exploited children. This court had 606 hearings in 2017 involving 156 youth.[24] This particular population overlaps with child welfare, as 81 percent of those youth who were from Nevada were in the child protection information system.[25]

Youth in the Homeless Services System

The Southern Nevada Annual Flow infographic reflects the most recently available data for the community's youth homeless service terms:

- Inflow: The number of youth and young adults who entered any program in the SNH CoC who identified as homeless during 2017.
- Currently homeless: The number of youth and young adul identified during the 2017 PIT count.
- Outflow: The number of youth and young adults who exited the homeless system in 2017, including:
  - » Placed in permanent housing[26]
  - » Self-resolved[27]
  - » Exit unknown[28]
- Interventions: Methods to solve a young person's housing crisis such as case management, family reunification and mediation, six months of rental assistance, or a brick-and-mortar unit.

A look at the number of youth who are moving through the homele system relative to the system's ability to intervene in their housing with its current capacity shows an annual gap of approximately 1,3 interventions. In order to achieve a system with sufficient capacity ensure that youth homelessness is rare, brief, and one-time, the S CoC must have enough resources to reach each young person wh enters and remains in the homeless system.

SNAPSHOT OF TAY-VI-SPDAT

The Southern Nevada Homeless CoC (SNH CoC) has adopted the Transition Age Youth Vulnerability Index-Service Prioritization Decisio Assistance Tool (TAY-VI-SPDAT) to assess the vulnerability of youth and young adults who enter the homeless system. The tool helps providers to understand each person's current vulnerabilities and risks to future housing stabili

The SNH CoC has a number of youth-specific entry points for its homeless system, where a young person would be assessed using the TAY-VI-SPDAT, and then placed in the queue for a potential housing placement.

The assessment asks a series of questions on topics such as the young person's history of housing and homelessness, risks, socialization and daily functioning, and wellness.

At the end, an assessment of vulnerability is given. Households with lower vulnerability are more likely to be able to self-resolve their episode of housing instability, while households with higher vulnerability may need housing supports.

The SNH CoC does not currently have enough resources to permanently house all youth experiencing homelessness. With a total of only 151 youth-dedicated permanent housing units in rapid re-housing and permanent supportive housing combined in 2017, youth are often on the coordinated entry waiting list for extended periods of time before they are referred to a permanent housing placement. For youth under 25 who have been placed on the coordinated entry queue since October 1, 2017, there has been an average wait time of 233 days.[29] The SNH CoC is not alone in this shortage of permanent housing options; recent research from Chapin Hall found that nationally, half of youth experiencing homelessness had to wait at least four months before being placed in a permanent housing destination. Furthermore, extended waiting periods increased a young person's chance of returning to homelessness after being housed.[30]

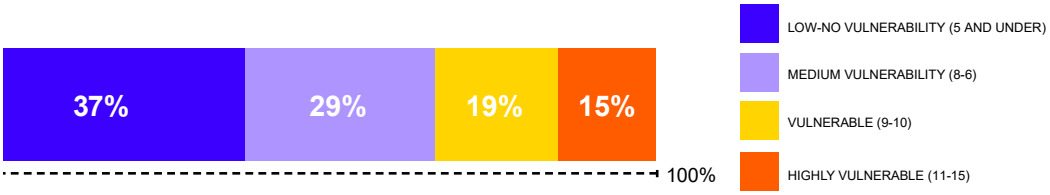
Utilizing “matching reports,” the SNH CoC’s youth matchers determine referrals to housing interventions for each household. Based on these reports from January to March 2018, over a third of youth who took an assessment registe in the range of low to no vulnerability, meaning they would be more likely to self-resolve, or that their homelessness could be resolved with light-touch diversion services. According to research, 66 percent of youth who score four or lowe on the TAY-VI-SPDAT self-resolve or return home, while only three percent return to homelessness.[31] Rapid re-housing can be an effective solution for youth who score up to a 10, but more research is needed on using this strategy with higher-scoring youth.[32]

Distribution of Vulnerability Level (Sample Day)



Source: Southern Nevada Homeless Continuum of Care: Monthly Matching Reports, January–March 2018

It should be noted that this data is a potentially incomplete picture of the acuity of youth who are experiencing homelessness in Southern Nevada. Currently an average of 90 youth and young adults are in the coordinated entry queue on any given day; these are individuals who have been assessed with the TAY-VI-SPDAT and are awaiting a hou placement. This number is a small fraction of the total population of youth experiencing homelessness. The reason for gap in assessments needs to be further explored; the SNH CoC is unsure whether the cause is a lack of accessibility o awareness of assessments, or a lack of trust in, or understanding of, the system.

Youth Who Have Exited the Homeless Services System

Many youth experience ongoing housing instability after exiting homeless service programs. As shown in the chart belc of 609 permanent housing placements for youth in 2017, 62 percent were with family or friends; of these youth, almost quarter returned to homelessness in three to four months. Many of these youth are likely cycling back and forth betwee family and friends and the homeless system. Of the 942 youth and young adults who reported that their residence prior to entry into the homeless system was staying with a family member, almost half (47 percent) exited to a family membe home. This trend is mirrored by youth and young adults who stay with friends, almost 45 percent of whom return to livir with a friend upon exiting the homeless system.

There is also housing instability in other permanent housing placements. Twenty-five percent of youth who were placed subsidized housing returned to homelessness in four to five months.

Furthermore, youth point to the interpersonal conflicts listed in the chart below as their reasons for homelessness. Whe asked during their TAY-VI-SPDAT assessment, the majority of young people said their homelessness was due to "famil friends" and/or to "an unhealthy or abusive relationship."

Reasons for Homelessness Reported by Southern Nevada Youth

Throughout the creation of this Plan, the community's data was central. This data displayed a picture of youth and your adults who need more intervention as they attempt to resolve their housing crises to move on with their lives. Youth wh enrolled in other systems of care need additional assistance as they progress out of those systems to prepare them for next stage of their lives. Those systems, which are currently overwhelmed, need mechanisms to flag the youth at great risk for housing instability. Once homeless, youth in the community need more safe places to go both during the day ar at night. Young people who are able to resolve their housing crises, either through a subsidy or by returning to family or friends, need more assistance to maintain those housing solutions. Finally, the current system is one that does not affe youth equally, but rather traps youth of color at disproportionate levels. As the decision makers built the following goals, objectives, and strategies, this reality was what they were seeking to address.

"FACED WITH ALL THE INTERNAL EFFECTS THAT OUR SOCIETY HAS ON OUR YOUTH AND MINORS [IT] IS REALLY HARD FOR THOSE TO SPEAK ON THINGS THAT ARE REALLY HURTING THEM ON THE INSIDE. SO IT WOULD BE NICE FOR ONCE TO HAVE SOMEONE OR SOMEBODY(S) WITH ENOUGH COURAGE TO REACH OUT AND TAKE THE TIME FOR ALL THOSE IN SORROW."

The vision of success and guiding principles of the Plan serve as its foundation, and ensure that the collaborations and investments that come out of this Plan are ultimately serving to achieve this vision and adhere to these guiding principl

OUR VISION FOR SUCCESS

We will know the Plan has succeeded when our community's coordinated response system can ensure that homelessn among unaccompanied youth is rare, brief, one-time, and equitably addressed.

These criteria are modeled on federal standards that define homelessness among youth as rare when homelessness does not occur often, and when youth and young adults do not exit our public systems into unstable housing conditions Homelessness among youth is brief when, if a young person does experience homelessness, their experience in the homeless services system lasts only a short time. Homelessness among youth is one-time when after exiting the homeless services system into housing, youth remain stably housed and do not return to homelessness. Homelessnes among youth is equitably addressed when all youth experiencing homelessness, regardless of race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, or gender identity, gain equitable access to our system and its services and have equitable exits to safe an stable housing.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

1. Person-Centered: The system to end youth homelessness will ensure that all system staff are trained in key princi such as cultural competency and trauma-informed care, to ensure that the system is as welcoming, comfortable, ar empowering as possible for every youth who interacts with it. Regardless of where they interact with the system, ea youth should feel safety, security, and trust with each and every person.
2. Accessible & Equitable: The system to end youth homelessness will use a Housing First orientation in all housing services to ensure low- or no-barrier access for all young people. Additionally, the system will obtain input from yout and the community to design and evaluate access to interventions for all youth, as well as high-risk subpopulations ensure access and equity are achieved.
3. Comprehensive Wraparound Housing and Support for Young People: The system to end youth homelessness will ensure that every young person who experiences homelessness receives opportunities to tap into permanent housing options and natural support systems, and/or to create new support systems to exit homelessness as quickl as possible. Wraparound housing and support for young people may include housing and service options that a you has identified as contributing to personal self-sufficiency goals.
4. Accountable: The system to end youth homelessness will promote accountability in all of its activities. Key components will include the establishment of performance measures that are clear to all community stakeholders; continuous improvement mechanisms that are rigorously used and shared across stakeholders; and regular update to stakeholders on the use of funds and corresponding results.
5. Efficient: The system to end youth homelessness will be as efficient as possible. Examples of key efficiencies the system may strive for include ensuring that access to the system is as fast as possible; the alignment or de-duplica of funding to create results; the creation of seamless, streamlined, de-duplicated communication flows between service providers and system partners; and the use of demonstrated promising practices when considering strategi to implement.
6. Collaboration-Focused: The system to end youth homelessness will pursue innovative collaborations to increase resources to end youth homelessness; create an adaptable system for young people using flexible funds; and promote seamless implementation of those resources. Examples of partnerships may include deep partnerships between service providers and systems of care; corporate sponsorships; private funding; public-private sector partnerships; and federal partners.

GOALS, OBJECTIVES, STRATEGIES, AND METRICS

In order to ensure a sustainable end to youth homelessness in this community, our Plan must be action-oriented. Our g outline in broad terms what the community hopes to achieve. Each one is further defined by specific "objectives" and supported by metrics that will keep us accountable to our vision and make our work transparent to all stakeholders. As convener of federal bodies addressing the issue of homelessness, the United States Interagency Council on Homeless (USICH) has published criteria and benchmarks on ending youth homelessness. Through discussions, it was decided t USICH's criteria formed the best framework for the goals of our own Plan, and would best propel our community toward the vision of making youth homelessness rare, brief, one-time, and equitably addressed.

The objectives and strategies define the steps to achieve the five goals and are designed to be both measurable and specific. These elements of the Plan were developed by the community at "Dream Big" or by the Planning Team or You Adults in Charge (YAC) at their bi-weekly meetings, and vetted and approved by the Joint Decision-Making Team (JDM Our objectives and strategies are deliberately aligned with existing best practices in the field of youth homelessness an with the Plan's vision and guiding principles, and are intended to address gaps that became apparent in our data review and brainstorming events. To highlight YAC's role, the strategies created by this group are noted with an asterisk in the "Goals, Objectives, and Strategies" table.

The metrics of success described below reflect current outcome data from federal funders such as the U.S. Departmen Housing and Urban Development and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Runaway and Homeless Yo program, the USICH benchmarks on ending youth homelessness, and research on youth homelessness. These metric the community's ultimate indicators that the system can respond to any experience of youth homelessness. In subsequ Plan updates, the community will work toward establishing incremental indicators to track progress towards each goal.

STRATEGY FOCUS AREAS

Proposed during the planning process, the following focus areas were used as a framework for the development of the strategies included in the Plan. As youth homelessness is a complex issue affected by a confluence of factors and syst this Plan seeks to address youth homelessness from all angles.

1. Legislative/Policy solutions require either a change in legislation at the local or state level or a change in how a program is implemented by a provider.
2. Fundraising solutions increase the money available to fund efforts to prevent and end youth homelessness.
3. Public-Private Partnerships solutions require public systems such as local government entities to work with nonprofits, businesses, or other private sector partners.
4. Housing and Services solutions focus on preventing homelessness, increasing housing stock, changing the way we operate a current housing intervention, or offering wraparound services to help youth obtain or maintain housing
5. Systems Intersectionality solutions address the different ways that youth interact with youth-serving systems, suc as child welfare, juvenile justice, and education.

From the outset, the community wanted this Plan to be truly comprehensive, addressing all aspects of youth homeless and not simply a lack of housing. The variety of strategies represented here is a reflection of that priority.

"NEVER ONCE DID I CRY I FEEL LIKE AT THIS POINT I AM INCAPABLE OF CRYING BECAUSE I HAVE TO STAY STRONG FOR MY MOM, FOR MY BROTHER, FOR ME SO I BURIED MY FEELINGS SO DEEP THAT I COULDN'T CRY EVEN IF I WANTED TO."

to make youth homelessness in Southern Nevada rare, brief, one-time, and equitably addressed.

FOCUS AREAS

- INNOVATIVE HOUSING AND SERVICES
- PUBLIC-PRIVATE PARTNERSHIPS
- POLICY/ LEGISLATIVE
- FUNDRAISING
- SYSTEMS INTERSECTIONALITY

GOAL ONE: THE COMMUNITY IDENTIFIES ALL UNACCOMPANIED YOUTH EXPERIENCING HOMELESSNESS.

HOW WILL WE KNOW WHEN WE ACHIEVE THIS GOAL?

- Reduction in unsheltered youth and young adults to zero
- Multiple data sources (HMIS, schools, child welfare, juvenile justice) contribute to a youth-focused list

Objective	Strategy	Focus Area
Create a community-wide identification and crisis response system covering the entire CoC. BRIEF	Create comprehensive youth-dedicated outreach with staff who are trained to respond to youth with complex needs
	Connect the coordinated entry system more intimately with the crisis response system (via system design and easy-to-access transportation)
Enumerate and collect data on all youth experiencing homelessness and/or who are unsafe or at risk of homelessness under any federal definition.	Create a framework to house, keep, and manage data
	Look into means of obtaining youth client-level data from the Harbor, CCSD, Nevada System of Higher Education, providers working with pregnant and parenting youth, providers working with commercially sexually exploited children, and other youth service providers beyond homeless service providers
	Improve the youth component of the annual Southern Nevada Homeless Census
RARE, BRIEF	Conduct an annual count of all youth experiencing homelessness under any federal definition (including Chapin Hall-style randomized sample surveys to collect better data on unstably housed youth, working with other systems, etc.)
Ensure outreach and in-reach efforts are tailored to the unique needs of vulnerable youth, including pregnant and parenting youth, LGBTQ youth, minors, youth involved with the juvenile justice or foster care systems, commercially sexually exploited children, and youth with mental health or substance use issues. BRIEF, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Train all community outreach teams in current best practices for interacting with vulnerable youth*

CLV003639

*Strategy developed by Young Adults in Charge

GOAL TWO: THE COMMUNITY USES PREVENTION AND DIVERSION STRATEGIES WHENEVER POSSIBLE, AND OTHERWISE PROVIDES IMMEDIATE ACCESS TO LOW-BARRIER CRISIS HOUSING AND SERVICES TO ANY YOUTH WHO NEEDS AND WANTS IT.

HOW WILL WE KNOW WHEN WE ACHIEVE THIS GOAL?

- No youth or young adult is exited into homelessness from other systems of care
- Reduction of inflow of youth into the homeless services system
- Zero turnaways or denials from shelters or transitional housing unless the person can be successfully diverted to a safe living environment of their choosing
- Reduction in the number of youth who are experiencing homelessness for the first time

Objective	Strategy	Focus Area
Help youth reunify with or return home to their given or chosen families, as desired.	Increase family engagement, counseling, and reunification services
	Create support groups for youth experiencing homelessness, families experiencing homelessness, and reunified families*
RARE, BRIEF	Partner with schools of social work and counseling assistance to support family reunification efforts
Standardize screening and assessment of youth at imminent risk of homelessness who are referred from other systems to ensure an equitable and quick connection to available services.	Create transition plans for youth who may be enrolled in multiple systems to ensure exit to stable housing
RARE, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Implement a standardized tool to measure the likelihood of housing instability (i.e. those at risk of homelessness) that can be administered upon exit from child welfare, juvenile justice, and other systems
Offer all youth experiencing homelessness immediate connections to services.	Train assessors to refer to services as needed
	Expand the Safe Place Program
BRIEF, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Establish a 24/7 hotline or app to connect youth to services
Increase access to safe shelter options.	Create accessible public awareness videos targeted to youth (e.g. for the youth coordinated entry system, youth emergency shelters, etc.)
BRIEF, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Pilot additional crisis housing options for youth, including host homes and respite beds

CLV003640

Objective	Strategy	Focus Area
Strengthen partnerships with other youth-serving systems, including child welfare and the juvenile justice and educational systems.	Ensure representation of leaders from other youth-serving systems in CoC leadership	RARE	Conduct inter-system care coordination at major milestones (ex: intake and exit, school enrollment and graduation, etc.)
Strengthen connections with law enforcement to ensure behaviors associated with homelessness are not criminalized.	Train law enforcement and private security about the issue of youth homelessness, what resources are available in the community, and how to assess youth who may be experiencing homelessness*		Have police conduct Know Your Rights trainings and community forums about youth homelessness*	RARE, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Re-evaluate policies and practices that might criminalize youth experiencing homelessness (ex: status offenses, sex trafficking laws, etc.)
CLV003641

Strategy developed by Young Adults in Charge*

GOAL THREE: THE COMMUNITY USES COORDINATED ENTRY PROCESSES TO EFFECTIVELY LINK ALL YOUTH EXPERIENCING HOMELESSNESS TO HOUSING AND SERVICES THAT ARE TAILORED TO THEIR NEEDS.

HOW WILL WE KNOW WHEN WE ACHIEVE THIS GOAL?

- Average stay in emergency shelter is less than 30 days
- Length of time from assessment to safe and stable housing is less than 90 days

Objective	Strategy	Focus Area
Continue to implement a youth-focused coordinated entry system that is trauma-informed and culturally and linguistically responsive to youth. BRIEF, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Perform quarterly coordinated entry housing assessment trainings that focus on sensitivity training, trauma-informed care, and promote equity*
Develop intentional strategies to target vulnerable sub-populations such as LGBTQ youth, commercially sexually exploited children, and youth of color. BRIEF, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Create and distribute outreach materials that reflect diverse populations of youth experiencing homelessness*
	Sponsor pop-up outreach events at locations that may target youth subpopulations*		Create a youth-focused coordinated entry public awareness campaign	Ensure coordinated entry processes provide access to housing options for youth with high potential barriers to housing (criminal background, poor credit history, etc.), using a Housing First approach. BRIEF, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Create mental/behavioral health group homes
	Hire housing navigators to assist youth experiencing homelessness in securing stable and adequate housing	Increase connections to coordinated entry throughout the community. BRIEF, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Expand youth coordinated entry to include more youth access sites (including "pop-up" locations), housing assessors, and means of assessment (e.g.: hotlines, online surveys, apps)*

CLV003642

Strategy developed by Young Adults in Charge*

GOAL FOUR: THE COMMUNITY ACTS WITH URGENCY TO SWIFTLY ASSIST YOUTH TO MOVE INTO PERMANENT NON-TIME-LIMITED HOUSING OPTIONS WITH APPROPRIATE SERVICES AND SUPPORTS.

HOW WILL WE KNOW WHEN WE ACHIEVE THIS GOAL?

- Reduction in the number of youth who were previously homeless who return to homelessness within two years
- Higher percentage of youth with increased or sustained employment
- Higher percentage of youth with improved education

Objective	Strategy	Focus Area
Increase inventory of affordable housing, both inside and beyond the homeless services system.	Establish a landlord mitigation fund to incentivize landlords to house young people
	Conduct outreach to potential landlord partners to encourage them to house young people
	Pilot long-term host homes*
	Fund non-time-limited community-based housing for youth that operates with a Housing First orientation
RARE, BRIEF, ONE-TIME	Establish tiny-home communities for young adults*
Utilize strategies to make non-subsidized housing more affordable to youth in the community.	Implement a roommate matching service for youth*
	Promote the establishment of a living wage*
	Expand the HOPE Scholars Program to ensure housing affordability is not a barrier to higher education
	Establish co-ops for all youth
BRIEF, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Pass an inclusionary zoning ordinance in Clark County
Reduce barriers to ensure youth can meet all of their self-sufficiency needs.	Require in all contracts case management standards and core competencies to include self-sufficiency and financial literacy
BRIEF, ONE-TIME	Incorporate financial literacy into the school curriculum

CLV003643

Strategy developed by Young Adults in Charge*

Objective	Strategy	Focus Area
Ensure that youth exiting the homeless system have the supports they need to remain housed.	Establish transition support staff to assist youth exiting the homeless services system
ONE-TIME	Establish community standards for stabilization services that include case management and behavioral/mental/physical health support services, flexible financial supports, and employment and education support*
Support youth in reaching educational and employment goals that will help them achieve long-term stability.	Increase educational supports in secondary education to ensure more students experiencing homelessness graduate and continue to higher education
	Provide or promote tutoring and workforce development programs, such as vocational training at schools, to improve access to sustainable careers*		Establish peer mentoring and support for students experiencing homelessness*
	Establish specialized liaisons to help youth move through systems and meet educational and employment goals*
ONE-TIME	Incentivize local employers to hire youth who are currently or formerly homeless
Improve networks to non-traditional housing options to ensure youth are connected to all available housing.	Establish a set-aside of units for youth-headed households at Southern Nevada Regional Housing Authority
	Connect with Low Income Housing Tax Credit-funded properties to match youth households experiencing homelessness with housing and supportive services
BRIEF	Create a points incentive in the NV Qualified Allocation Plan, the annual plan that guides allocation for housing tax credits, for youth aging out of foster care
Increase access to basic needs services.	Establish a mobile app to connect youth to available basic needs services (socks, tampons, etc.)
	Increase transportation accessibility to connect youth to needed services
BRIEF, ONE-TIME	Work with businesses and others to retrieve necessary supplies and create a system to streamline the distribution of goods
Ensure all provider and program staff are trained to provide high-quality services through practices such as harm reduction, trauma-informed care, and positive youth development, and are accountable and respectful in all interactions with youth.	Establish an accountability system to ensure standards are implemented across homeless service provider agencies (such as certification, CEUs, licensure requirements, monitoring, etc.)
	Establish an annual Mainstream Program Basic Training-Youth Homelessness Training
BRIEF, ONE-TIME, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Conduct an assessment of training requirements and needs for youth service providers

CLV003644

Strategy developed by Young Adults in Charge*

GOAL FIVE: THE COMMUNITY HAS RESOURCES, PLANS, AND SYSTEM CAPACITY IN PLACE TO CONTINUE TO PREVENT AND QUICKLY END FUTURE EXPERIENCES OF HOMELESSNESS AMONG YOUTH.

HOW WILL WE KNOW WHEN WE ACHIEVE THIS GOAL?

- Percentage of exits to permanent housing for youth and young adults of color are greater than or equal to those of white and non-Hispanic youth and young adults
- Percentage of exits to permanent housing for youth and young adults who identify as LGBTQ are greater than or equal to those who identify as straight and cisgender
- The number of youth entering the homeless system is smaller than the number of youth exiting the homeless system
- Reduction in the annual number of youth who are experiencing homelessness

Objective	Strategy	Focus Area
Improve data quality, data use, and data sharing to better understand the needs of youth.	Increase participation of other youth-serving systems (Clark County School District and Clark County Department of Family Services) and other community partners (The Center, Boys & Girls Club) in HMIS
	Establish a data dashboard that is updated regularly (at least monthly) that informs an annual youth homelessness data report
RARE, BRIEF, ONE-TIME, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Identify uncaptured/gaps in available data and create methods to capture needed data
Increase collaboration between youth-serving systems.	Establish a leadership network that includes policymakers, sector leaders, youth, providers, and others to lead sustainability efforts
	Develop a funded State Office of Youth Homelessness
RARE, BRIEF, ONE-TIME, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Create opportunities for youth to act as advisors (e.g. peer mentors, agency liaisons, etc.) to provide recommendations for system guidance and more*
Establish funding to support activities in this plan.	Create a funders' coalition to guide funding asks
	Pass a funding mechanism (taxes, fees, Measure H, or other sustainable efforts)
RARE, BRIEF, ONE-TIME, EQUITABLY ADDRESSED	Establish a community collaborative for accessing new funding sources

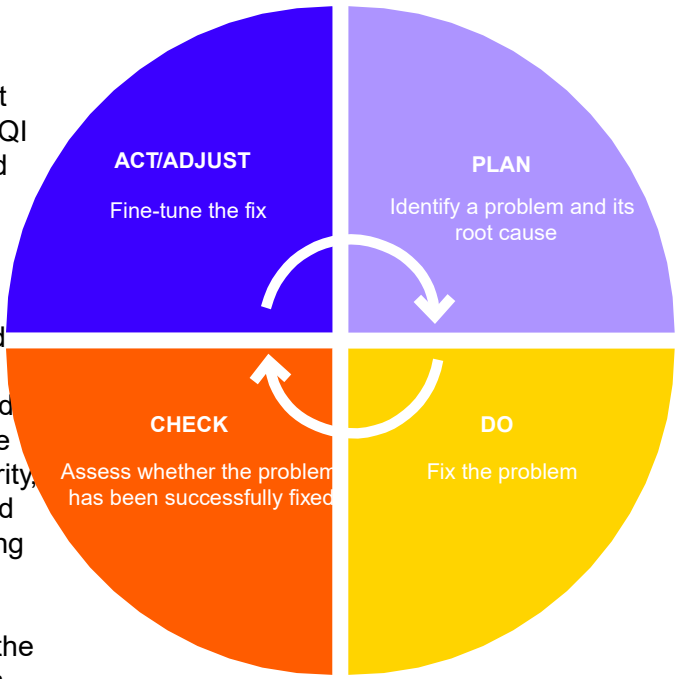
CONTINUOUS QUALITY IMPROVEMENT

The Southern Nevada Homeless Continuum of Care (SNH CoC) is committed to continuous quality improvement (CQI) in its pursuit to end youth homelessness. Decision makers agree to utilize the "Plan-Do-Check-Act" model shown here.



A new working group will be established to lead the CQI process. The membership of this group will include UNLV evaluators, youth and young adults, and implementers of t he strategies. Over the course of the coming months, a CQI plan will be developed that includes quarterly updates and dashboards to be shared with the community.

Both qualitative and quantitative data will be reviewed. Southern Nevada's Homeless Management Information System (HMIS) is a major source of quantitative data, and Southern Nevada is working to make HMIS more of a community resource so as to involve partners from beyond the SNH CoC in recognizing and addressing the challenge of youth homelessness.[33] Qualitative data will also be a priority, and may include stakeholder interviews, focus groups, and surveys conducted on a regular basis with youth and young adults, providers, and other interested parties.

Updates will be shared at meetings of the SNH CoC and the Youth Working Group, on the SNH CoC's website, and via social media. As positive outcomes and program impacts are identified, this data will be used to seek out additional funding from other partners. Furthermore, training opportunities will be identified and shared with the community throug learning collaboratives in the SNH CoC.

At each year's Youth Homelessness Summit for the Movement to End Youth Homelessness in Southern Nevada (the Movement), an annual review of the Plan will be shared, which will include an update on CQI efforts.

next steps

At the November 2018 Youth Homelessness Summit, we will design a leadership structure for Plan implementation, decide which stakeholders will be responsible for implementing each strategy, and further refine the design and timeline of the strategies.

After the Summit, a Plan Implementation and Accountability Team will be created. This group will be responsible for implementing the Plan, including the following first steps:

1. Prioritize which approved strategies in the Plan to pursue first.
2. Decide on a leadership structure for each of the approved strategies, and identify stakeholders to recruit for optimal success.
3. Categorize each strategy as short-term (within the first year), medium-term (within the next two years), or long-term (within the next five years).
4. Pursue necessary funding, resources, and stakeholders to drive the chosen strategies.

At each annual Youth Homelessness Summit, Movement leadership will share updates made to the Plan and progress toward ending youth homelessness.

For over six months, community members and organizations have worked intensively, united by the passion and commitment to end youth homelessness in Southern Nevada. Contributions by the Young Adults in Charge, in particula have been essential and have informed the entire design of the Plan. Together, all of these voices offer a true reflectior our community's hope for a better system to serve youth who are experiencing homelessness and housing instability.

Now the hard work of implementation begins. To succeed, we need the voices and energy of policymakers, service providers, businesses, and community stakeholders. Much like the heavily collaborative planning process, implementat must be carried out with an all-hands-on-deck approach. Southern Nevada is rich with subject matter experts and systems leaders whose participation will be essential as we move forward. Youth and young adults with lived experienc of homelessness will continue to play a central role as we use this Plan to transform our existing systems and create a sustainable end to youth homelessness in Southern Nevada.

To keep up with progress on the Plan, visit the Movement to End Youth Homelessness in Southern Nevada at www.nphy.org/themovement/.

"HOMELESSNESS FOR ME WAS COUCH SURFING, PUSHING MY PRIDE ASIDE JUST SO I CAN HAVE SOMETHING TO EAT OR SOMEWHERE TO LAY MY HEAD AT FOR THE NIGHT. IT WAS HAVING TO LOOK FOR A JOB SO I COULD PAY THE PERSON FOR LETTING ME STAY AT THEIR HOUSE FOR A FEW DAYS. I DIDN'T EVER THINK I WOULD EXPERIENCE IT BECAUSE I WAS SO CONFIDENT THAT I WOULD BE LIVING WITH MY MOM FOREVER."

APPENDIX A: FEDERAL DEFINITIONS

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT (HUD)

SOURCE
The Homeless Emergency Assistance and Rapid Transition to Housing Act of 2009 (HEARTH Act)
Notes on Origin
The HEARTH Act was signed in to law in May of 2009. It reauthorizes the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act. This reauthorization included a variety of changes, namely the definition of homelessness and chronic homelessness.

DEFINITION
CATEGORY 1: An individual or family who lacks a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence, meaning;

(i) An individual or family with a primary nighttime residence that is a public or private place not designed for or ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation for human beings, including a car, park, abandoned building, bus or train station, airport, or camping ground;

(ii) An individual or family living in a supervised publicly or privately operated shelter designated to provide temporary living arrangements (including congregate shelters, transitional housing, and hotels and motels paid for by charitable organizations or by federal, state, or local government programs for low-income individuals); or

(iii) An individual who is exiting an institution where he or she resided for 90 days or less and who resided in an emergency shelter or place not meant for human habitation immediately before entering that institution.

CATEGORY 2: An individual or family who will imminently lose their primary nighttime residence, provided that;

(i) The primary nighttime residence will be lost within 14 days of the date of application for homeless assistance;

(ii) No subsequent residence has been identified; and

(iii) The individual or family lacks the resources or support networks, e.g., family, friends, faith-based or other social networl needed to obtain other permanent housing.

CATEGORY 3: Unaccompanied youth under 25 years of age, or families with children and youth, who do not otherwise qualify as homeless under this definition, but who:

(i) Are defined as homeless under section 387 of the Runaway and Homeless Youth Act (42 U.S.C. 5732a), section 637 of the Head Start Act (42 U.S.C. 9832), section 41403 of the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (42 U.S.C. 14043e–2), section 330(h) of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 254b(h)), section 3 of the Food and Nutrition Act of 2008 (7 U.S.C. 2012), section 17(b) of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1786(b)), or section 725 of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11434a);

(ii) Have not had a lease, ownership interest, or occupancy agreement in permanent housing at any time during the 60 day immediately preceding the date of application for homeless assistance;

(iii) Have experienced persistent instability as measured by two moves or more during the 60-day period immediately preceding the date of applying for homeless assistance; and

(iv) Can be expected to continue in such status for an extended period of time because of chronic disabilities; chronic physical health or mental health conditions; substance addiction; histories of domestic violence or childhood abuse (including neglect); the presence of a child or youth with a disability; or two or more barriers to employment, which include the lack of a high school degree or General Education Development (GED), illiteracy, low English proficiency, a history of incarceration or detention for criminal activity, and a history of unstable employment.

CATEGORY 4: Any individual or family who:

(i) Is fleeing, or is attempting to flee, domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, stalking, or other dangerous or life-threatening conditions that relate to violence against the individual or a family member, including a child, that has either taken place within the individual's or family's primary nighttime residence or has made the individual or family afraid to return to their primary nighttime residence;

(ii) Has no other residence; and

(iii) Lacks the resources or support networks, e.g., family, friends, and faith-based or other social networks, to obtain other permanent housing.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

McKinney-Vento Homeless Education Assistance Improvements Act of 2001
Notes on Origin
In 2001, Congress reauthorized the McKinney Education of Homeless Children and Youth Program after being influenced by statistics regarding the high numbers of children likely to experience homelessness and extreme poverty each year. This legislation would ensure that no student experiencing homelessness could be segregated from their housed peers.[2]

DEFINITION
The McKinney-Vento Act defines "homeless children and youth" as individuals who lack a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence. The term includes —

- Children and youth who are: sharing the housing of other persons due to loss of housing, economic hardship, or a similar reason (sometimes referred to as doubled-up); living in motels, hotels, trailer parks, or camping grounds due to lack of alternative adequate accommodations; living in emergency or transitional shelters; abandoned in hospitals; or awaiting foster care placement;
- Children and youth who have a primary nighttime residence that is a public or private place not designed for, or ordinarily used as, a regular sleeping accommodation for human beings;
- Children and youth who are living in cars, parks, public spaces, abandoned buildings, substandard housing, bus or trai stations, or similar settings; and
- Migratory children who qualify as homeless because they are living in circumstances described above.

Age Range	Users
Under the age of 24.	All Local Education Agencies (LEA), regardless of whether or not they receive a McKinney-Vento subgrant.

The Runaway and Homeless Youth Act (RHYA)
Notes on Origin
The Runaway and Homeless Youth Act was passed in 1974. It authorized the Basic Center Program, which enabled organizations such as non-profit agencies to operate short-term shelters, providing emergency assistance to runaway and homeles youth who were not receiving services from the child welfare or juvenile justice systems.[3]

DEFINITION
The RHYA (42 USC 5701 § 387) defines "homeless youth" as —

- individuals who are not more than 18 years of age if seeking shelter in a Basic Center Program, or not more than 21 ye of age or less than 16 years of age if seeking services in a Transitional Living Program;
- and for whom it is not possible to live in a safe environment with a relative, and who have no other safe alternative livin arrangement.

Age Range	Users
Under the age of 21.	All community-based providers receiving funding through the RHYA.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

An FCA Update As We Await High Court's Escobar Decision

The federal False Claims Act may soon be reshaped. With a case pending before the U.S. Supreme Court on the controversial theory of implied false certification, a pair of interesting cases in the Second Circuit and a recent House Judiciary Subcommittee raising issues of FCA reform, the law may face changes in text or interpretation, say attorneys with Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP.

Unclaimed Property Auditors Move Beyond Life Insurers

The same contingency-fee unclaimed property auditors that targeted life insurance companies are now turning their focus to other types of insurance, like health insurance and property and casualty insurance, raising a host of unique issues, say Wilson Barmeyer and Mary Jane Wilson-Bilik at Sutherland Asbill & Brennan LLP.

Panama Papers: Reminders About Law Firm Cybersecurity

Nowhere is the attractiveness of law firms as cybercrime targets more evident than the recent Mossack Fonseca hack, believed to be the most significant data theft event in history. Firms represent a treasure trove of information and historically have had dreadful cybersecurity practices. There has been some progress, but firms can also commit to better defending their information by taking a simple, three-step approach, says Sean Doherty of TSC Advantage.

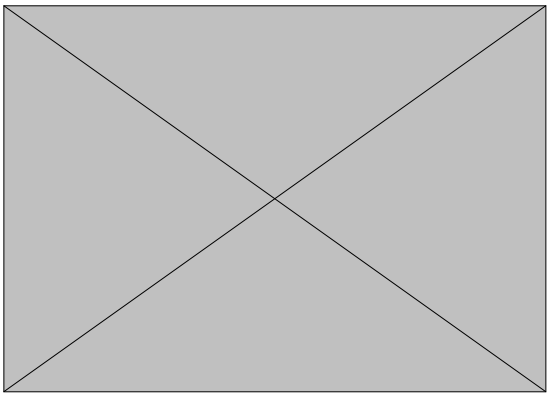
Subject: What did Ali mean to me?

CELEBRATING A DECADE OF SERVICE!



Carolyn,

As a young kid I had a Muhammad Ali doll with a pull string that bellowed the words “I am the Greatest of All Time” and “Float like a butterfly. Sting like a bee!” As a dark skinned Black teenager I remember Ali saying “I am beautiful. I am handsome.” These phrases may not seem like Shakespeare. But it was definitely poetry to me.

Growing up in Bed-Stuy (Bedford-Stuyvesant), Brooklyn New York, I was subjected to a lot of crime, drugs and despair; nothing “great" about our surroundings. But I can recall when Muhammad Ali visited a boxing gym and church in my neighborhood. I had never witnessed a larger crowd from all throughout New York City packed into one part of Brooklyn. Where did all of these people come from? This tall man stood in the middle of a crowd, hugging people and picking up children. It was him! My neighborhood witnessed “greatness” that day.

Today, we stand on the shoulders of legends like Muhammad Ali. My conviction of character, my belief in Christ and my dedication to family is because of people like Ali who were committed to whatever they believed in.

Rest well Champ!

Shaundell

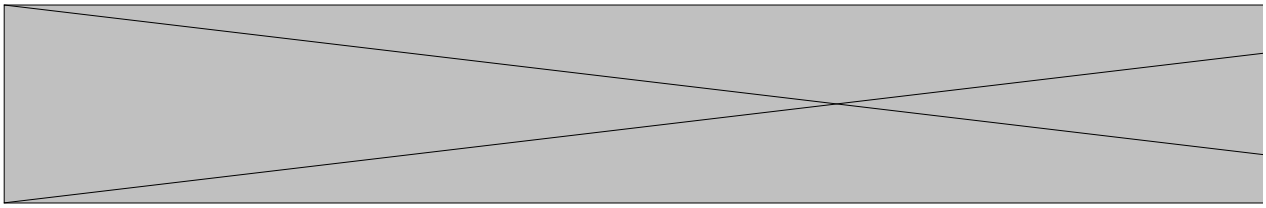
Analysis of the 2018 Medicare Trustees' Report



Analysis of the 2018 Medicare Trustees' Report

June 7, 2018

Read the paper.

The Medicare Trustees have released their 2018 report on the financial status of Medicare. The report shows spending will increase significantly over the next few decades, and the Part A Hospital Insurance (HI) trust insolvent in just eight years.

Highlights of the report include:

- Gross Medicare spending is projected to grow sharply from 3.7 percent of GDP in 2017 to 4.7 percent percent by 2040. After that, it will grow more gradually to 6.2 percent of GDP by 2090. Spending growth growth in the number of beneficiaries and per-capita health care costs.

- This spending growth is spread relatively evenly across Parts A, B, and D, though Part D is the fastest Medicare. Between 2017 and 2090, Part D will grow by 140 percent, Part B will grow by 69 percent, and by 46 percent – all measured by relative increase as a share of GDP.

- The Trustees' projections assume current law, but Medicare's Chief Actuary notes that several payme would hold down costs may prove to be financially unsustainable and threaten access. If those policies back, Medicare spending would increase much more rapidly to 8.8 percent of GDP by 209

- The HI trust fund is expected to be insolvent by 2026. The trust fund's 75-year actuarial shortfall is 0 taxable payroll, meaning that it would take about that much of a payroll tax increase or an equivalen spending cuts to maintain solvency over 75 years.

- This year's report is somewhat worse than last year's report. Medicare spending is projected to reach GDP in 2090, compared to 5.9 percent in last year's report. The HI trust fund will go insolvent in 2026 a percent of payroll shortfall, compared to a 2029 insolvency date and a 0.64 percent of payroll shortfall report.

The Trustees show that Medicare spending is projected to increase significantly as a share of GDP over t decades, with each part of Medicare contributing to that cost growth. In addition, lawmakers face a near-te challenge as the HI trust fund will be exhausted by 2026. Lawmakers need to undertake changes to Medicar payment policies to contain its growth.

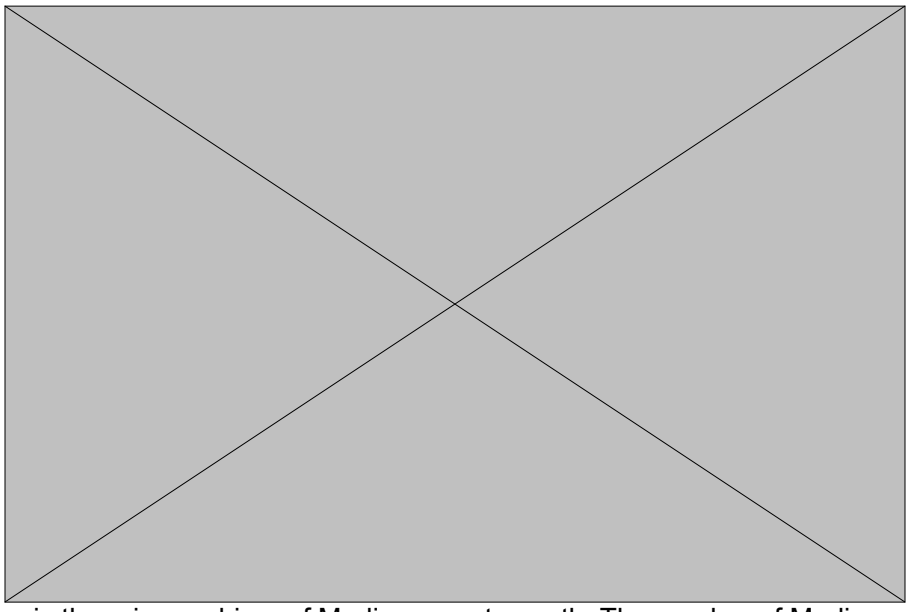
Medicare Spending Is Growing Rapidly

As a share of GDP, gross Medicare spending is expected to grow significantly over the long term and especia few decades.

The Trustees project that gross Medicare spending will increase from 3.7 percent of GDP in 2017 to 4.7 perce

5.9 percent by 2040. Growth will then slow significantly as demographics stabilize, with costs reaching 6.2 per 2090.

Importantly, Medicare Part A is largely financed by a payroll tax, and other parts of Medicare are partially fina beneficiary premiums. Net of these and other funding sources, spending is lower but growing somewhat mor Trustees project unfinanced spending on Medicare will double from 1.6 percent of GDP in 2017 to 3.2 percer remain at about that level after that.



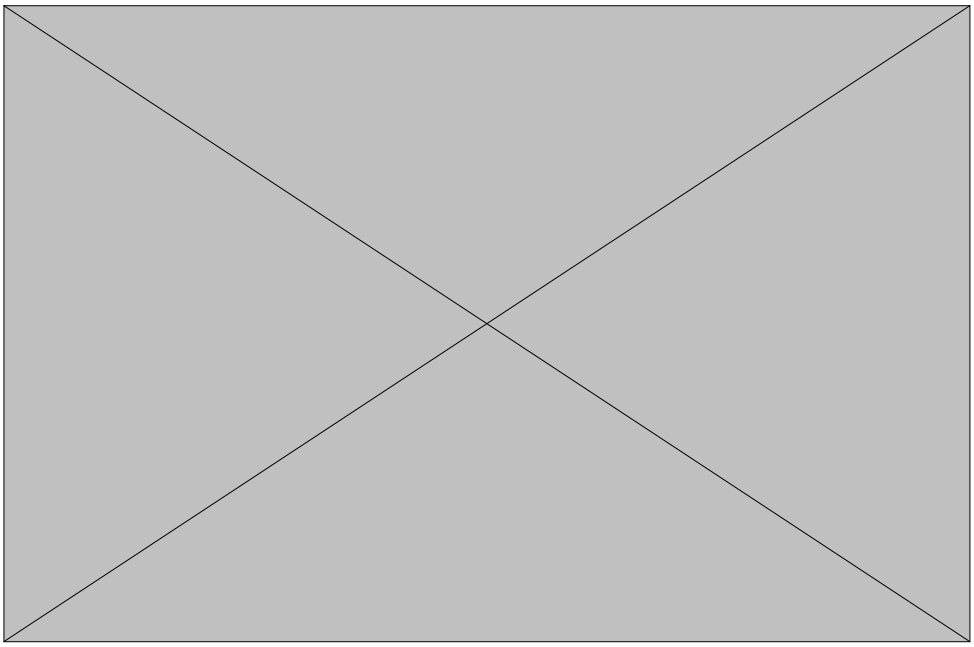
The aging of the population is the primary driver of Medicare cost growth. The number of Medicare beneficiar grown from 40 million in 2000 to 58 million last year and is projected to grow 87 million by 2040 and 116 mil

Per-capita increases in health care spending also play a role in Medicare spending increases, as nominal Medicare spending is expected to triple, from about $13,200 in 2017 to about $38,800 by 2040. By comparis GDP per capita are only projected to grow 80 percent and 130 percent, respectively. Beyond 2040, per-pers spending is projected to grow at about the rate of the economy, though this slower growth is largely due to pa the Chief Actuary does not view as sustainable.

All Parts of Medicare Are Growing

Spending increases in Medicare are spread between Parts A, B, and D, which finance inpatient care, outpat prescription drugs, respectively. Between now and 2090, Part A will be responsible for 28 percent of Medic growth as a share of the economy, Part B will be responsible for 45 percent, and Part D will be responsible f Nearly all the growth in Parts A and B will occur between now and 2040, while Part D will continue to grow

Part D is the smallest part of Medicare, but it will grow the fastest: its costs as a share of GDP will grow 140 p Part B's share of GDP will grow 69 percent and Part's A share will rise 46 percent. The Trustees attribute P growth to higher input price growth.



Included in these overall spending numbers are data on private health plans in Medicare Advantage, which pro equivalent to Parts A and B. Medicare Advantage's role in Medicare has grown significantly since its enactmer with total enrollment doubling from 10 million to 20 million people between 2008 and 2017.

The Trustees expect that enrollment will continue to grow to 29 million by 2027, with the share of enrollees inc to 39 percent of total Medicare enrollment over that time. Total payments to private plans will also increase fr in 2017 to $497 billion by 2027. Since the Trustees expect Medicare Advantage plans to be more costly on Medicare than traditional Medicare, the growth in the share of enrollees in private plans increases Medica relatively to what it would be if that share remained stable.

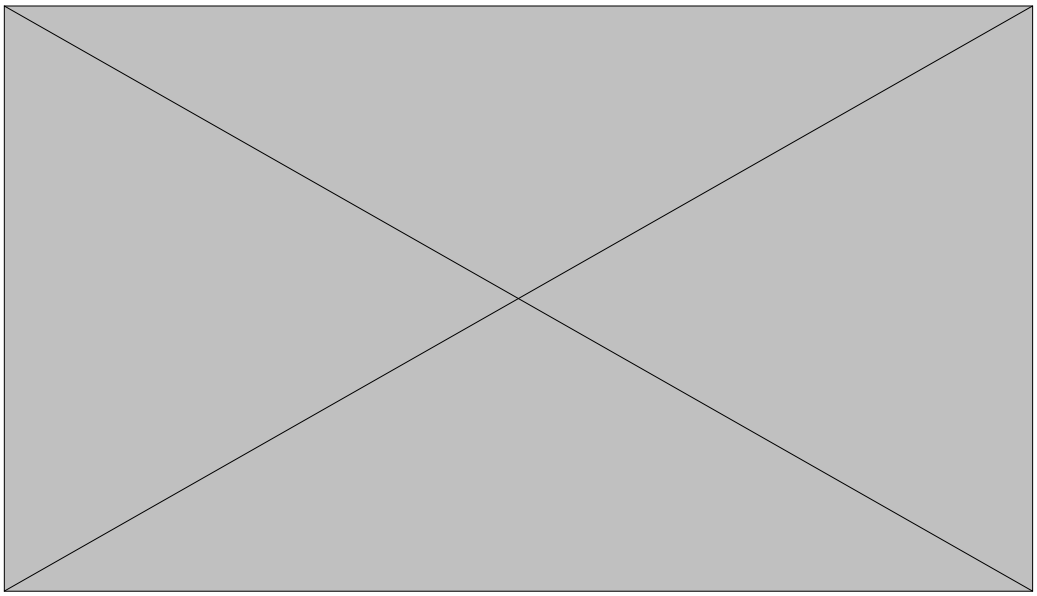
Actual Spending Growth Could Be Worse

The projections discussed in the previous two sections assume current law, meaning that lawmakers make no that would affect the Medicare program. However, in a letter accompanying the Trustees report, the Office o (OACT) of Medicare states that some payment policies embedded in current law will result in payment levels inadequate, threatening access for beneficiaries. Therefore, the Trustees develop an illustrative alternative sc what might be considered more realistic payment levels.

The payment policies changed in the alternative scenario are the relatively slow annual physician paymer specified in the 2015 physician payment law, the 2025 expiration of bonuses for physicians who participate payment models, and annual payment reductions for productivity growth. These policies would result in Medic physician payments being just 37 and 24 percent of what private insurance payments would be, respectively, and 75 percent currently. OACT estimates that half of hospitals and most skilled nursing facilities and home h would have negative profit margins by just 2040, making the prospect of maintaining these policies for unreasonable.

The alternative scenario instead assumes that productivity adjustments are reduced from an average of 1.1 p to 0.4 percent between 2028 and 2042, physician payment updates would gradually increase from 0.6 percen percent between 2028 and 2042, and the bonuses would continue.

These changes would result in much higher Medicare spending. Total spending as a share of GDP would in percent of GDP by 2090 rather than 6.2 percent under current law. Clearly, the alternative scenario shows challenging financial situation for Medicare.

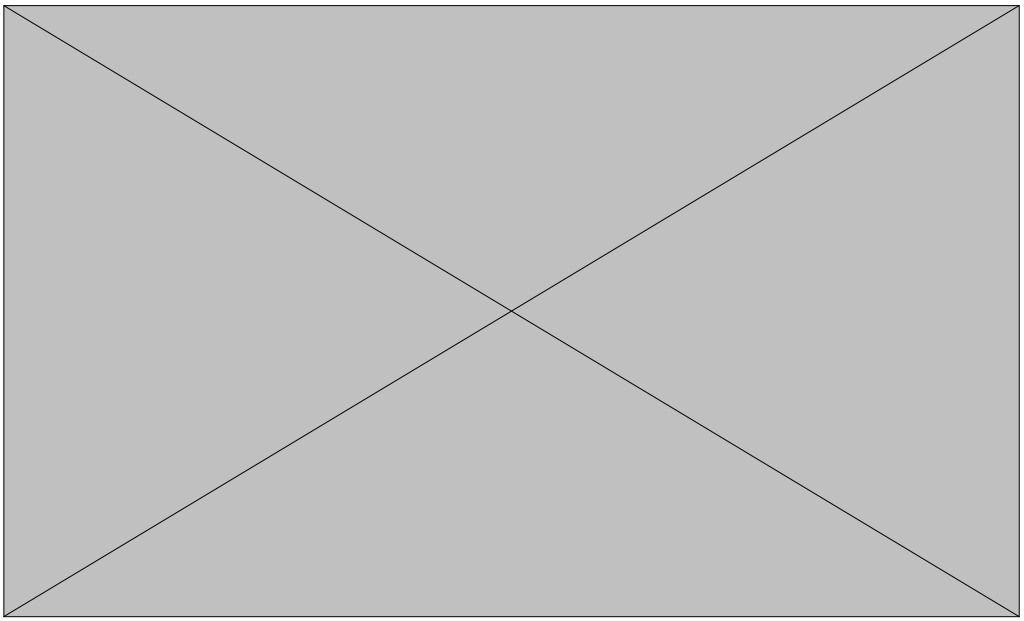


The Hospital Insurance Trust Fund Is Eight Years from Insolvency

Medicare Part A is financed mainly from payroll taxes through the Hospital Insurance (HI) trust fund. The Trust as Part A spending grows, that trust fund will soon deplete its reserves.

The HI trust fund ended 2017 with a balance of roughly $200 billion, but the Trustees project spending will ex (and interest) this year and beyond. The HI trust fund is projected to become insolvent by 2026, only eight y when today's 57-year-olds enter the program and today's newest Medicare beneficiaries turn 7

At the point of trust fund exhaustion, the law calls for payments to be cut by 9 percent to bring spending in lin with that cut rising to 22 percent by 2040. If allowed to take effect, this cut might result in restricted access providers.



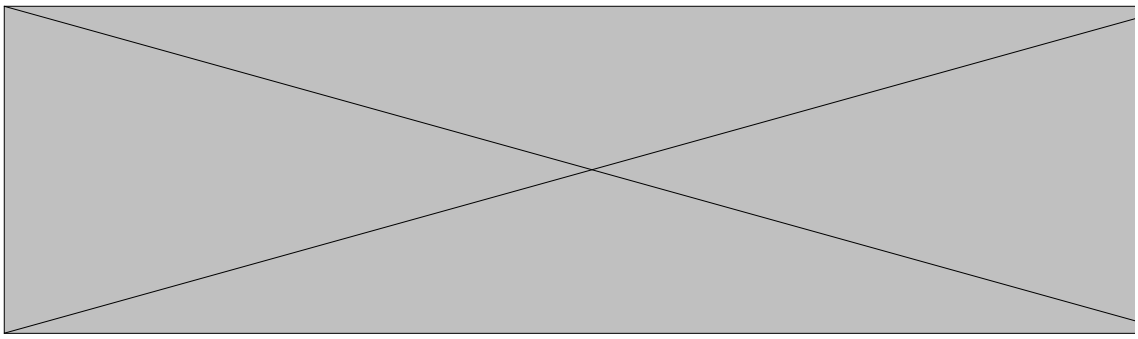
Importantly, cuts could be avoided through a plan to make Medicare Part A solvent. Such a plan would idea program's 75-year funding gap, which the Trustees estimate to be 0.82 percent of payroll, the equivalent of revenue or 17 percent of spending. This shortfall would grow to a high of 1.1 percent of payroll in 2045 before to 0.8 percent by 2090, equal to 15 percent of revenue or 18 percent of spending.

Under the Chief Actuary's alternative scenario, the shortfall would be larger, though the insolvency date wou same. HI's 75-year deficit would double from 0.82 percent to 1.71 percent of payroll, and HI spending as a sh 2090 would increase from 2.3 percent of GDP to 3.5 percent. The 75-year shortfall would be 43 percent of r percent of spending, so it would take a much larger change to ensure solvency.

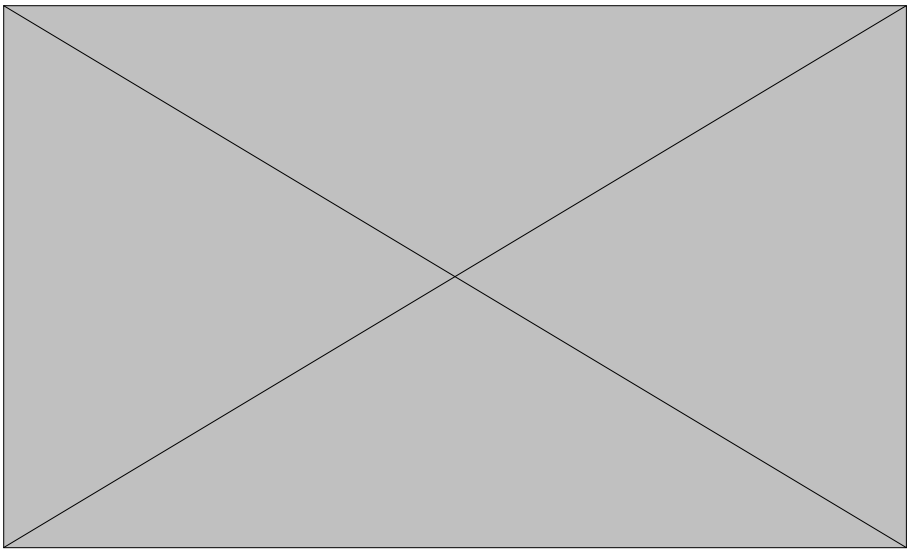
Medicare's Outlook is Worse than Last Year

This year's Trustees' report shows a worse outlook for Medicare compared to last year's report. Medicare projected to reach 5.9 percent of GDP by 2040 and 6.2 percent by 2090 compared to the 5.6 percent and respectively, projected last year. The HI trust fund's actuarial deficit is 0.82 percent of payroll compared to projected last year.

HI's worse financial status is partly due to recent legislation. In particular, repealing the Independent Payment (IPAB) and the individual mandate will increase the actuarial deficit by 0.10 percent of payroll. Other changes to the increase in the HI deficit. Higher spending and lower revenue in 2017 increase the deficit by 0.19 pe private health plan payments increase the deficit by 0.08 percent, and shifting the 75-year window from 2017 2092 increases the deficit by 0.01 percent. By contrast, lower utilization reduces the deficit by 0.13 percent, ar changes reduce the deficit by 0.07 percent.



Part B also shows higher spending than in the 2017 Trustees' report, while Part D shows slightly lower spend term but similar spending over the long term. IPAB repeal and higher payments to Medicare Advantage plans for higher Part B spending, while broader prescription drug developments will lower Part D spending in the



Conclusion

The 2018 Medicare Trustees' report shows Medicare spending rising rapidly as a share of GDP over the next and the HI trust fund becoming insolvent by 2026. The illustrative alternative scenario that includes more rea policies shows Medicare spending rising even more substantially over the long term. Either scenario shows a the federal government will need to dedicate a growing share of its budget to Medicare over tim Lawmakers need to get serious about reducing Medicare spending growth over the long term. Though some unavoidable due to the retirement of the Baby Boomers, lawmakers should work to hold down per-person co possible and ensure that the cost constraint inherent in current law after 2040 is made sustainable. These poli a more stable and secure Medicare program and a much brighter fiscal future.

REAL News: Summer 2018 Edition

REAL Impact:
Wrapping up the 2017-2018 School-year!

The 2017 - 2018 school year was one filled with exciting developments and accomplishments at Project REAL.

In addition to serving more than 13,000 students in Nevada during the 2017-2018 school year, Project REAL is now already on track to reach 17,000 students between August 2018 and May 31, 2019!

The massive increase in the number of students being served will be thanks to our work over the last year expanding Project REAL's capacity to serve the community.

In that time, we were able to introduce our new 4th grade mock trial activity and film one of our newer play scripts. These new tools were exactly what teachers were looking for from Project REAL, and the number of students we will reach during the 2018-2019 school year is going to reflect that.

You can help us meet and exceed that goal! Read about our 'Five-Minute Volunteers' to see what you can do to help us reach more of Nevada's students than ever before!

REAL Stylish:
Supporting Nonprofits is Always In Season!

At Project REAL, we believe that justice is rooted in knowledge.

To help more people learn about our work serving the students of Nevada, today we are launching our 'Roots of Justice' development campaign. We have teamed up with RedBubble to offer a line of items that capture the spirit of our work, spark conversations, and help fund the invaluable work we do.

'Roots of Justice' was designed exclusively for Project REAL by local Las Vegas artist Jasmine Floyd to illustrate our philosophy of justice being rooted in knowledge. This eye-catching design features Lady Justice thriving as a tree with her roots planted firmly in knowledge of laws, courts, and constitutional rights - the same information Project REAL provides to the students of Nevada.

Thanks to RedBubble's print-on-demand service, there are hundreds of items to choose from, so visit our page and find the right item for you today. Then, when you're out and about and asked where your awesome shirt/dress/coffee mug/etc is from, you'll have an opportunity to spread awareness about Project REAL! All proceeds will benefit Project REAL's work teaching Nevada's students about the law and their rights.

REAL Must-See-TV:

New Testimonials, Promos, & an After-school Special!

We get it: Not all of you are on social media, but it may be time to reconsider that decision!

If you haven't been following us across Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter, you missed out on live broadcasts we've been conducting after some of our courthouse field-trips! We hold brief interviews with a few students from each trip so you can see how your support for Project REAL directly impact Nevada's youth.

This is something we started during the 2017-2018 school year, and it's become something of a hit with our supporters. If you regret missing out on those live broadcasts, you can visit our Facebook page to watch archived footage.

Better yet, if you follow us on Twitter, Facebook and Instagram, you'll be able to tune in to live-streams where students will talk about how they were impacted by the experience your support allowed them to have!

If you thought that was the only video news we had, just wait - there's more!

We were overjoyed to have attendees of May's Lyrics & Lawyers 3 asking when the next one would be, but that's still in the early planning stages. It may be a while before we have a formal announcement, but we're happy to share something that might hold you over until Lyrics & Lawyers 4!

Thanks to Las Vegas Legal Video donating their services, we now have a few Lyrics & Lawyers promo videos. Check them out so you can relive the evening, or so you can see what you (regrettably) missed out on. Oh, and keep your ears perked up – we'll have a Lyrics and Lawyers 4 announcement sooner or later!

We also have a third video-related news item to share, and this one has been over a year in the making: We are pleased to announce that we have a new play for use with our Privacy Law & Policy activity!

'A Teen's Home is Their Castle' shows students the realities of what it means to exercise their rights. A filmed performance of our 'after-school special'-styled play will be used by teachers who are using Government, 'Privacy & You' in their classrooms.

You can watch the video here, or read more at the end of the newsletter to find out how you can help this important lesson reach thousands more of Nevada's students this year!

REAL Vital Volunteer Needs

Guest Speakers & New Classroom Recruiters:
WE NEED YOU!

The 2018-2019 school year is officially here, and that means we are in need of volunteers! This year, we're mainly focused on filling two vital needs.

First are our Five Minute Volunteers. This requires no registration or training either: Simply take five minutes to talk to a parent you're friends with or your child's teacher about Project REAL. Let them know who we are and how we can be reached... and that's it! For every successful 5 minutes of volunteering you do, we may end up reaching hundreds of new students! If you'd like help shaping your 'pitch,' contact us today!

Our other major need is for people with experience in criminal defense and prosecution that would serve as guest-speakers for high school students. We'd like them to hear perspectives from both sides as they learn about interacting with courts and the law as adults. If you would like to learn more, please contact our Program Director at mkamer@projectrealnv.org today.

Showing tribute of any kind to a drug addict is the most ridiculous thing your administration has come up with yet. The man was a good artist which he was paid highly for.
This is not someone I want my grandchildren to look up to. He killed himself! With Drugs!! This is how you wish to inspire the youth of our town. Your tribute is encouraging young people to follow in the footsteps of a drug addict!!
How sad you have decided to drag our town down a road of star idol worship instead of doing for and celebrating our military heroes. Shame on you. I am embarrassed for us all. Karleen Craig

Subject: Law Enforcement Leaders Continue Reform Efforts at Federal, State & Local Levels

From federal sentencing reform to the opioid crisis to efforts in their local jurisdictions, group members are a pivotal force for progress.

Law Enforcement Leaders Becomes Pivotal Voice on Capitol Hill

The Sentencing Reform and Corrections Act passed out of the Senate Judiciary Committee in February with bipartisan backing from lawmakers. The bill gives judges more discretion during sentencing, reduces some mandatory minimums for nonviolent offenses, and more. The morning of the hearing, Judiciary Chairman Sen. Chuck Grassley (R-Iowa) issued a press release about a letter from Law Enforcement Leaders Co-Chairman Ronal Serpas. He also quoted it in his opening statement before the Committee's vote. In the letter, Serpas noted: "I believe this legislation would free funding and time for officers to focus on targeting and preventing violent crime, making our streets safer. Broadly, law enforcement supports similar reforms." He cited support for the bill from 68 group members.

Moreover, 39 Law Enforcement Leaders members signed a letter to Sens. Rand Paul (R-Ky.) and Kamala Harris (D-Calif.) in support of the Pretrial Integrity and Safety Act of 2017. This bill would offer states the resources necessary to reform the practice of money bail, which allows defenders who can afford it to be released while others who can't remain behind bars — too often for nonviolent offenses. Former Director of the Office of Community Oriented Policing Services, Ron Davis, penned an op-ed supporting the federal effort. Former U.S. Attorney of Kansas, Barry Grissom, wrote in the Kansas City Star applauding the bipartisan bill.

Read more about other Law Enforcement Leader's national efforts in The Atlantic, The Hill, Houston Chronicle, McClatchy, New York Times, NPR, and Washington Examiner.

Group Backs Sensible Solutions to Opioid Crisis

President Trump visited New Hampshire to unveil his plan to tackle the opioid crisis. Members praised the president's recognition of the severity of the problem, but said from their experience treatment-based approaches should be implemented rather than policies that lead to additional incarceration.

John Tharp, Sheriff of Lucas County, Ohio, called the drug problem a "public health crisis." He added: "Federal resources are limited, but should be focused on providing treatment to people facing addiction — and letting law enforcement spend their limited time elsewhere, fighting violent crimes."

The administration also recently changed marijuana enforcement tactics, with Attorney General Sessions reversing Justice Department policy that let federal prosecutors overlook nonviolent marijuana offenses where state law allowed. Former Bush-appointed U.S. Attorney for Utah and LEL Steering Committee member Brett Tolman called the decision "an ineffective way to reduce crime."

Read more in USA TODAY.

At the local level, Milwaukee Police Chief Ed Flynn created a task force to investigate fatal overdoses in the city. Middlesex, Mass. Sheriff Peter Koutoujian has been collaborating with sheriffs and jail administrators to implement MATADOR, a program that helps jail inmates recover from opioid addiction. Near the nation's capital, Bryan Porter, Commonwealth's Attorney for the City of Alexandria, Va., is leading an effort to create a drug court program this year for treatment.

Members Make a Difference In Their Jurisdictions

This quarter, members have also worked to advance Law Enforcement Leaders' mission in their localities across the country:

- In California, Association of Prosecuting Attorneys President David LaBahn published an op-ed in the Sacramento Bee supporting the California Money Bail Reform Act, which would base pretrial detention on assessment of public safety risk instead of on ability to pay cash bail. San Francisco District Attorney George Gascón applied new marijuana legalization laws to prior offenses, expunging or reducing past charges.

- Norman City Police Chief Keith Humphrey wrote in The Oklahoman in support of a package of sentencing reform bills, which would reduce sentences for nonviolent crimes and improve parole practices. Tulsa Police Chief Chuck Jordan joined forces with Mayor G.T. Bynum to form a Citizen Advisory Board for the department. The initiative will improve communication between the police and local residents. The Mayor added: "Tulsa is setting the standard across the nation when it comes to implementing a comprehensive community policing strategy, and I am thankful for these citizens who have stepped forward to offer their help."

- Oregon District Attorney Rod Underhill made possessing small amounts of drugs a misdemeanor, while Oregon County Attorney John Hummel launched an initiative to place drug offenders in treatment rather than prison. San Antonio Police Chief William McManus issued a policy allowing officers to avoid arrests for minor drug crimes.

- Law Enforcement Leaders congratulates group member and former U.S. Attorney for Alabama, Doug Jones, on his new position as U.S. Senator from Alabama.

- The Middlesex, Mass. Sheriff Peter Koutoujian supported legislation to expand medical parole, which passed the House and the Senate. He also urged the state to reform its bail system.

Law Enforcement Leaders to Reduce Crime and Incarceration unites more than 175 current and former police chiefs, federal and state chief prosecutors, and attorneys general from all 50 states to urge for a reduction in both crime and incarceration. With this group, law enforcement joins the emerging movement calling for an end to unnecessary, widespread incarceration.

Hi Mayor! Two years ago (yes he kept the email!) Jon Ralston asked us about this whether you were considering returning the money he gave your campaign, and after talking with you we responded you were aware of the issue and would wait and see what the outcome of the investigation is,
Now that he has been indicted Jon wants to know whether you are planning to return the money he donated to your campaign.
Feel free to call me if you want to chat, I wanted to email you this so you had the PDF.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

Do You Carry A Concealed Weapon?

If you lawfully own a handgun in Nevada, you can apply for a concealed firearms permit. There's a fee attached - in Clark County, it's $96.25 - and you must complete an approved firearms course. In Nevada, there are about 120,000 active concealed carry permits.

"If you're a male in the United States over the age of 18, you have a greater chance of getting shot and getting killed by a gun then you do of dying of prostate cancer. And in some of the rural areas of Nevada it is significantly higher," says Craig Collins, author of "Thunder In The Mountains: A Portrait Of American Gun Culture."

INVESTIGATION DISCOVERY'S ALL-NEW SERIES "LAS VEGAS LAW" GRANTS VIEWERS UNPRECEDENTED ACCESS TO THE PROSECUTORS THAT PROTECT SIN CITY

--New Episodes of LAS VEGAS LAW Premiere Every Thursday Beginning May 12 at 10/9c--

(Silver Spring, Md.)— It's become a cliché that what happens in Vegas stays in Vegas, but for the Clark County District Attorney's office, there's nothing cliché about the crimes that affect their city. With more than 60,000 cases a year, including high-profile homicides, robberies, gang-related crimes and assaults on the Strip, these aren't stories pulled from a Hollywood script. They happen to real people just trying to live and let loose under the big lights of Sin City. Investigation Discovery's (ID) new series LAS VEGAS LAW offers exclusive access to District Attorney Steve Wolfson and his powerhouse team of prosecutors who work tirelessly alongside law enforcement officials to pursue justice in their community. Follow in real time as they assess the crime scene, interview victims and witnesses, strategize their case and ultimately chase a conviction in the courtroom. Shot in cinéma vérité and featuring surveillance footage and photography, the series immerses viewers in the high stakes, immensely dramatic environment that makes Vegas distinctive – and its crimes even more so. LAS VEGAS LAW premieres Thursday, May 12 at 10/9c only on ID.

"LAS VEGAS LAW combines the suspense of Law & Order with the tell-all appeal of American Crime Story: The People v. O.J. Simpson, except we're documenting current criminal cases as they unfold," said Kevin Bennett, general manager of Investigation Discovery. "LAS VEGAS LAW intimately captures all angles of the trial process from both the prosecution and the defense teams, giving viewers unprecedented access to the justice system in a way rarely seen on television."

The first three episodes of LAS VEGAS LAW are:

- LAS VEGAS LAW: "The Evil Men Do"

Series Premiere Episode: Thursday, May 12 at 10/9c

It was a horrific scene in which one man was shot to death and two others were killed in a taxi that went up in a fireball on Las Vegas's iconic Strip. Seeking the death penalty, the DA's office goes after Ammar Harris for the three murders, but will witnesses who were inside Harris's vehicle testify against him so the victims' families can get justice? Meanwhile in the Vegas suburbs, a male massage therapist is charged with sexually abusing two female clients, and a detective who initially didn't believe a crime had occurred finds himself in the middle of the explosive trial.

- LAS VEGAS LAW: "Burden of Proof"

Episode Premiere: Thursday, May 19 at 10/9c

This episode goes inside the "he said/she said" of a sexual assault case. The prosecution has physical evidence: video surveillance showing the man holding an inebriated woman upright as they walk to his room and photos of bruises all over her body. What they don't have is the woman's memory. She can't remember much. The defendant remembers everything, and makes a strong case that nothing illegal occurred in his room. Now the question becomes: who will the jury believe?

- LAS VEGAS LAW: "Out of Control"

Episode Premiere: Thursday, May 26 at 10/9c

It's a case Chief Deputy Richard Scow says "will stick with him forever." The defendant is charged with kidnapping and battery of his friend. Meanwhile across town, the second case goes to trial and, in a twist, two Deputy District Attorneys must convince the jury that a man who stole a case of beer deserves justice, since he was shot by the store clerk. Was the clerk a man protecting his store or a vigilante ready to impose his own "death penalty"?

LAS VEGAS LAW is produced for Investigation Discovery by MY Entertainment. For MY Entertainment, Michael Yudin, Joe Townley, Wil Surratt and Wayne Allyn Root are executive producers, with Greg Klein and Jon Grosskopf as co-executive producers. For Investigation Discovery, Eugenie Vink is senior executive producer, Sara Kozak is senior vice president of production, Kevin Bennett is general manager, and Henry Schleiff is group president.

About Investigation Discovery

Investigation Discovery (ID) is the leading mystery-and-suspense network on television. From harrowing crimes and salacious scandals to the in-depth investigations and heart-breaking mysteries that result, the "always revealing" network challenges our everyday understanding of culture, society and the human condition. One of our nation's fastest growing cable networks, ID delivers the highest-quality programming to more than 85 million U.S. households and is available in both high definition (HD) and standard definition (SD). For more information, please visit InvestigationDiscovery.com, facebook.com/InvestigationDiscovery, or twitter.com/DiscoveryID. Investigation Discovery is part of Discovery Communications (Nasdaq: DISCA, DISCB, DISCK), the world's #1 pay-TV programmer reaching nearly 3 billion cumulative subscribers in 220 countries and territories.

About MY Entertainment (www.myentertainment.tv)

MY Entertainment is a successful independent production company launched in 2000 by veteran TV producer and advertising executive, Michael Yudin. In addition to creating and producing compelling content, MY Entertainment has become known for pioneering new business models with advertisers, broadcasters and production companies in the US and around the world. Going back to the nondescript background of the women pharaohs. Mothers of Darkness then and now? Witches?

by Jone Johnson Lewis
Updated September 29, 2018

The rulers of ancient Egypt, the pharaohs, were almost all men. But a handful of women also held sway over Egypt, including Cleopatra VII and Nefertiti, who are still remembered today. Other females ruled as well, although the historical record for some of them is scant at best—especially for the first dynasties that ruled Egypt.

The following list of ancient Egypt's female pharoahs is in reverse chronological order. It begins with the last pharaoh to rule an independent Egypt, Cleopatra VII, and ends with Meryt-Neith, who 5,000 years ago was probably one of the first women to rule.

Cleopatra VII (69–30 B.C.)

Print Collector/Getty Images

Cleopatra VII, the daughter of Ptolemy XII, became pharaoh when she was about 17 years old, first serving as co-regent with her brother Ptolemy XIII, who was only 10 at the time. The Ptolemies were descendants of a Macedonian general of Alexander the Great's army. During the Ptolemaic dynasty, several other women named Cleopatra served as regents.

Acting in the name of Ptolemy, a group of senior advisers ousted Cleopatra from power, and she was forced to flee the country in 49 B.C. But she was determined to regain the post. She raised an army of mercenaries and sought the backing of Roman leader Julius Caesar. With Rome's military might, Cleopatra vanquished her brother's forces and regained control of Egypt.

Cleopatra and Julius Caesar became romantically involved, and she bore him a son. Later, after Caesar was murdered in Italy, Cleopatra aligned herself with his successor, Marc Antony. Cleopatra continued to rule Egypt until Antony was overthrown by rivals in Rome. Following a brutal military defeat, the two killed themselves, and Egypt fell to Roman rule.

Cleopatra I (204–176 B.C.)

CM Dixon/Print Collector/Getty Images

Cleopatra I was the consort of Ptolemy V Epiphanes of Egypt. Her father was Antiochus III the Great, a Greek Seleucid king, who conquered a large swath of Asia Minor (in present-day Turkey) that had previously been under Egyptian control. In a bid to make peace with Egypt, Antiochus III offered his 10-year-old daughter, Cleopatra, in marriage to Ptolemy V, the 16-year-old Egyptian ruler.

They were married in 193 B.C. and Ptolemy appointed her as vizier in 187. Ptolemy V died in 180 B.C., and Cleopatra I was appointed regent for her son, Ptolemy VI, and ruled until her death. She even minted coins with her image, with her name taking precedence over that of her son. Her name preceded that of her son in many of the documents between her husband's death and 176 B.C., the year that she died.

Tausret (Died 1189 B.C.)

De Agostini Picture Library/Getty Images

Tausret (also known as Twosret, Tausert, or Tawosret) was the wife of the pharaoh Seti II. When Seti II died, Tausret served as regent for his son, Siptah (aka Rameses-Siptah or Menenptah Siptah). Siptah was likely the son of Seti II by a different wife, making Tausret his stepmother. There is some indication that Siptal may have had some disability, which perhaps was a contributing factor to his death at age 16.

After Siptal's death, historical records indicate that Tausret served as pharaoh for two to four years, using kingly titles for herself. Tausret is mentioned by Homer as interacting with Helen around the Trojan War events. After Tausret died, Egypt fell into political turmoil; at some point, her name and image were stripped from her tomb. Today, a mummy at the Cairo Museum is said to be hers.

Andreas Rentz/Getty Images

Nefertiti ruled Egypt after the death of her husband, Amenhotep IV. Little of her biography has been preserved; she may have been the daughter of Egyptian nobles or have had Syrian roots. Her name means "a beautiful woman has come," and in the art from her era, Nefertiti is often depicted in romantic poses with Amenhotep or as his co-equal in battle and leadership.

However, Nefertiti vanished from historical records within a few years of assuming the throne. Scholars say she may have assumed a new identity or may have been killed, but those are only educated guesses. Despite the lack of biographical information about Nefertiti, a sculpture of her is one of the most widely reproduced ancient Egyptian artifacts. The original is on display at Berlin's Neues Museum.

Hatshepsut (1507–1458 B.C.)

Hulton Archive/Getty Images

Widow of Thutmosis II, Hatshepsut ruled first as regent for his young stepson and heir, and then as pharaoh. Sometimes referred to as Maatkare or the "king" of Upper and Lower Egypt, Hatshepsut is often depicted in a fake beard and with the objects that a pharaoh is usually depicted with, and in male attire, after a few years of ruling in female form. She disappears suddenly from history, and her stepson may have ordered the destruction of images of Hatshepsut and mentions of her rule.

of 13

Ahmose-Nefertari (1562–1495 B.C.)

CM Dixon/Getty Images

Ahmose-Nefertari was the wife and sister of the 18th Dynasty's founder, Ahmose I, and mother of the second king, Amenhotep I. Her daughter, Ahmose-Meritamon, was the wife of Amenhotep I. Ahmose-Nefertari has a statue at Karnak, which her grandson Thuthmosis sponsored. She was the first to hold the title of "God's Wife of Amun." Ahmose-Nefertari is often depicted with dark brown or black skin. Scholars disagree on whether this portrayal is about African ancestry or a symbol of fertility.

of 13

Ashotep (1560–1530 B.C.)

G. Dagli Orti/Getty Images

Scholars have little historical record of Ashotep. She is thought to have been the mother of Ahmose I, the founder of Egypt's 18th Dynasty and New Kingdom, who defeated the Hyksos (foreign rulers of Egypt). Ahmose I credited her in an inscription with holding the nation together during his rule as a child pharaoh when she seems to have been regent for her son. She may also have led troops in battle at Thebes, but the evidence is scant.

of 13

Sobeknefru (Died 1802 B.C.)

A. Jemolo/Getty Images

Sobeknefru (aka Neferusobek, Nefrusobek, or Sebek-Nefru-Meryetre) was the daughter of Amenemhet III and half-sister of Amenemhet IV— and perhaps also his wife. She claimed to have been co-regent with her father. The dynasty ends with her reign, as she apparently had no son. Archaeologists have found images that refer to Sobeknefru as Female Horus, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, and Daughter of Re.

Only a few artifacts have been positively linked to Sobeknefru, including a number of headless statues that depict her in female clothing but wearing male objects related to kingship. In some ancient texts, she is sometimes referred to in terms using the male gender, perhaps to reinforce her role as pharaoh.

Neithhikret (Died 2181 B.C.)

Neithhikret (aka Nitocris, Neith-Iquerti, or Nitokerty) is known only through the writings of the ancient Greek historian Herodotus. If she existed, she lived at the end of the dynasty, may have been married to a husband who was not royal and may not even have been a king, and probably had no male offspring. She may have been the daughter of Pepi II. According to Herodotus, she is said to have succeeded her brother Metesouphis II upon his death, and then to have avenged his death by drowning his murderers and committing suicide.

of 13

Ankhesenpepe II (Sixth Dynasty, 2345–2181 B.C.)

Brooklyn Museum Archive

Little biographical information is known about Ankhesenpepe II, including when she was born and when she died. Sometimes referred to as Ankh-Meri-Ra or Ankhnesmeryre II, she may have served as regent for her son, Pepi II, who was about six when he assumed the throne after Pepi I (her husband, his father) died. A statue of Ankhnesmeryre II as nurturing mother, holding the hand of her child, is on display at the Brooklyn Museum.

03

Khentkaus (Fourth Dynasty, 2613–2494 B.C.)

According to archaeologists, Khentkaus has been characterized in inscriptions as the mother of two Egyptian pharaohs, probably Sahure and Neferirke of the Fifth Dynasty. There is some evidence that she may have served as regent for her young sons or perhaps ruled Egypt herself for a brief time. Other records suggest she was married either to the ruler Shepseskhaf of the Fourth Dynasty or to Userkaf of the Fifth Dynasty. However, the nature of records from this period in ancient Egyptian history is so fragmentary as to make confirming her biography impossible.

02

Nimaethap (Third Dynasty, 2686–2613 B.C.)

Ancient Egyptian records refer to Nimaethap (or Ni-Maat-Heb) as the mother of Djoser. He was probably the second king of the Third Dynasty, the period during which the upper and lower kingdoms of ancient Egypt were unified. Djoser is best known as the builder of the step pyramid at Saqqara. Little is known about Nimaethap, but records indicate that she may have ruled briefly, perhaps while Djoser was still a child.

Meryt-Neith (First Dynasty, approx. 3200–2910 B.C.)

Meryt-Neith (aka Merytneith or Merneith) was the wife of Djet, who ruled around 3000 B.C. She was laid to rest in the tombs of other First Dynasty pharaohs, and her burial site contained artifacts usually reserved for kings—including a boat to travel to the next world—and her name is found on seals listing the names of other First Dynasty pharaohs. However, some seals refer to Meryt-Neith as the mother of the king, while others imply that she herself was a ruler of Egypt. The dates of her birth and death are unknown.

ACORN and SEIU at work in the last Nevada Gubernatorial and Nevada U.S. Senate election? Is this the same thing that happens in the California Gubernatorial and California U.S. Senate elections? Jerry Brown? Diane Feinstein and Nancy Pelosi?

The reason I bring this up is because this morning while at work at the Manheim Auction on Auction Lane in Las Vegas, I happened to see a woman there who I noticed from being at this same last Nevada election. Her name is Shontel and she is sent out by the Manpower Temporary Office here in Las Vegas to various conventions and contracted out Manpower temporary job positions. We occasionally see each other when placed on job assignments by Manpower.

When I voted in the last Nevada election I voted at the Boulevard Shopping Center site here in Las Vegas, Nevada. This is located close to where I reside and is off of Maryland Parkway. I remember that just while I was there on voting day, there were hundreds of people in line to vote. I was assigned a voting booth (there were very many of these state of the art electronic voting machines that I had never seen before when voting) and Shontel was working having voters sign in through the intake process and giving directions so people could go to the location where these booths with voting machines were located. We recognized each other then.

So when I saw Shontel this morning, we reacquainted ourselves with each other and how we recognized each other. We briefly discussed her Manpower job assignment that day of the last election when I voted at the Boulevard and I asked her if she knew where those state of the art voting machines came from. She told me that she didn't know. But she said they sure did pay her well that day!
